BELFAST (UPI) — A group of Protestant and Roman Catholic children embarked on a vacation to the United States today, temporarily escaping the daily horror of hate and murder in Northern Ireland.

"It's just a dream come true for these kids," said David Russell, a school principal who helped select the 126 children from 5,000 applicants for a six-week vacation in Minnesota.

The children, aged 9 to 11, were evenly divided along religious lines —63 Protestants and 63 Roman Catholic youths.

"Most of them have scarcely even traveled outside Belfast," Russell said.

The cost of the trip was paid for by the American Rotary Clubs under a program begun in 1971 by a Belfast housewife named Sarah Hughes.

"I only wish our American friends could have enjoyed the pleasure these children have got just from looking forward to the trip," Russell said.

The 126 children are all from areas of Belfast where shootings, assassinations and other violence has been part of their lives for the past four and a half years.

Most of the children have lost relatives or friends to the long-running terror campaigns of religious extremists.

Hundreds of firemen in Belfast battled a lumberyard fire touched off by fire bombs early today and gunmen shot and critically wounded a British soldier and a doorman at a pub.

A rooftop sniper shot and critically wounded a British soldier at the border town of Newry, 50 miles south of Belfast, the army said.

In Belfast, two teen-aged gunmen shot at pointblank range the doorman of the downtown Club Bar before fleeing in a waiting automobile, police said.

The dock area fire, which police said was touched off by firebombs, threw a pall of smoke over central Belfast and caused $240,000 damage.

It followed bomb blasts in the same dockyard area and a shopping street signaling the end of a three-day bombing lull. Police said there were no casualties.

A spokesman for the group said later that the children would be arriving in Chicago at 4:30 p.m. CDT aboard British Airways flight 569Y. After a two-hour layover, they will depart for Minnesota at 6:50 p.m. CDT aboard flight NW751.

Heart disease, energy, housing

Nixon signs agreements with Russ

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon reached agreement with the Kremlin leadership today on the first concrete results of his summit meeting—joint U.S.-Soviet ventures aimed at fighting heart disease, finding new energy sources and developing safer housing.

Signing of the agreements followed a two hour, 10 minute meeting between Nixon and Soviet leaders which also included a general discussion of nuclear arms control, according to White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Nixon smiled as he signed the documents and Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev stood behind contentedly puffing a cigarette in an atmosphere of friendship that has prevailed since the President's arrival Thursday for his weeklong summit.

"We feel the additional agreements ... signed today chart a concrete course for the future and contribute to the process of making detente irreversible," Ziegler said.

Before —plunging into the major business of his trip, Nixon did a bit of campaign-style handshaking with a startled group of Russians at Red Square. It was an unusual event on both sides since visiting dignitaries rarely meet the Soviet public.

Someone in the crowd shouted, "Peace is very important."

Nixon shouted back, "For everybody, the whole world, the Russian people and the American people."

An interpreter relayed his remarks in Russian to the crowd, but on one occasion, Nixon himself spoke Russian: "Ochen khorosho" (very nice).

The Russian citizens' attitude toward him obviously pleased Nixon. He remarked to newsmen, "They are happy, friendly people. They have a great desire to have friendship with America and they have asked me to return."

The first agreements of the third Nixon-Brezhnev summit in little more than two years provide for:

—Joint research over three years on development of an artificial heart, development of instruments to detect heart disease in children and extension of the operational life of cardiac pacemakers.

—Cooperation in exploration and research on oil, shale, natural gas and coal and on new methods of drilling to increase the rate of extraction of oil and gas, a five-year pact also providing for swapping technology on solar and geothermal energy and synthetic fuels.

—Development over a five-year period of new techniques of home construction in earthquake-prone areas and in extremely cold and arid regions.

There was still no agreement on nuclear arms limitation — and none was expected. U.S. officials have stressed that there probably won't be any out of this meeting.

White House sources said today, however, a partial underground nuclear test ban pact was being worked on. These tests have been used extensively by both sides to perfect major weapons systems.

Nixon had planned to go nearby Star City Saturday to view training by U.S. astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts for their joint 1975 space flight but Ziegler said it was canceled so that Nixon could continue his talks with Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

Suspect held in shooting of rancher

POMONA — Police today said they have arrested a suspect in the wounding and robbery of egg rancher Bernad Volkas, 57, at the Quass Egg Ranch, 3531 Pomona Blvd., last Sunday.

The victim, still with a small-caliber bullet in his chest, was reported in serious condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, Fontana. Surgery is planned early next week to remove the bullet when Volkas' condition has improved, authorities said.

Meanwhile, police booked Ray Richard Ayala, 25, 1274 W. Second St., on suspicion of five Pomona armed robberies (including Volkas'), assault with intent to commit murder and possession of heroin. Detectives planned today to seek a complaint against him from the district attorney's office.

Besides the egg ranch robbery, Ayala is suspected in robberies of a Scott Brothers drive-in dairy, Lucky Angler fishing tackle shop, 722 N. Garey Ave., and service stations. Police said that when they arrested him they found two pistols, one a .25-caliber and another a .22, and a narcotics kit.

Descriptions of cars used in the holdups and the study of police photos of narcotics addicts led to Ayala's arrest, officers said.

.71 ozone in Upland

Record smog and heat still smothering Valley

Air Pollution Control District officials are advising valley residents to remain indoors and curtail driving as much as possible during the heavy smog siege that authorities say set a new mark Thursday and will remain the next few days, accompanied by 100-degree weather.

A third stage smog episode was called in Upland Thursday afternoon, where the ozone level reached .71 parts per million, the highest level ever recorded in a valley community.

Jerry Brown of the San Bernardino Air Pollution Control District said a layer of stagnant air that has been hanging over the valley for the past few days is causing the heavy smog.

"It is essential that people living in these areas restrict all activity and stay indoors out of the smog. Driving should be reduced. The more driving we have, the more smog we will have," Brown said.

Brown said there is a possibility that another third stage episode will be called again for areas of Upland, Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Montclair today.

The Los Angeles APCD forecast smog at levels of .30 for Pomona today afer a peak reading Thursday of .34 ppm.

Wilbur Shigihara of the National Weather Service office gave little hope today for any relief in the hot weather that is 20 degrees above normal for late June.

The high temperature in Pomona Thursday was 99 degrees and 101 degrees is forecast today. Ontario recorded an afternoon high of 104 Thursday and expects 105-degree temperatures today.

But valley areas are cool compared to downtown Riverside, where 109 degrees was recorded Thursday afternoon.

Shigihara said valley areas will have very hot weather at least through the weekend. Temperatures may slip down to the mid-90s by Monday, he said.

Thursday's 99-degree high temperature in Pomona broke a previtus record of 93 degrees set in 1943.

State senators reject budget; huddle again

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An angry Senate, disgruntled over "pork barrel" beaches and parks projects, rejected a proposed compromise $10.3 billion stake budget bill Thursday night but decided to tackle the issue again today.

The compromise, fashioned by a six-member conference committee, blew up on the Senate floor when Republicans and Democrats alike bitterly protested inclusion of $69 million worth of beaches and parks projects and other additions to the budget which they had not previously considered.

One critic, Sen. John Holmdahl, D-Oakland, asserted that members of the committee earmarked the funds for projects in their own districts at the expense of other lawmakers.

Another, Sen. Mervyn Dymally, a Democrat from Watts, charged that "urban areas, such as I live in, never get any pork in the barrel."

The measure hung up originally on a 13-20 vote, with 27 required for approval. The Senate recessed for a two-hour dinner and returned still without patching up differences.

Brown proposes video debates, but no TV ads

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor, Thursday proposed that he and the Republican candidate, Controller Houston I. Flournoy, agree to hold televised debates and ban paid television campaign commercials.

Flournoy was to deliver his reply today at a news conference in San Francisco, a representative said.

Brown said that banning television commercials would reduce costs for both him and Flournoy, and thus contribute to their common goal of limiting campaign spending.

Although the pertinent provisions of Proposition 9, limiting campaign spending, do not take effect until next year, both Brown and Flournoy have voluntarily agreed to abide by the spirit of the rules.

Flournoy proposed a limit of $1.3 million apiece. Negotiators for both camps have been working on an agreement but have not reached one yet.

Brown said that instead of buying television time for commercials that "resort to slogans and catchy phrases and shed no light on the campaign," he and Flournoy together could pressure free television time out of stations.

He proposed they hold about six debates, at 10-day intervals after Labor Day.

Mother, daughter, 5, reunited, ending 7-month hunt in bizarre kidnap case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Hi, mommy," cried 5-year-old Karen Huber, bursting into tears and ending Mary Ann Huber's seven-month hunt for her daughter, a misplaced kidnap victim.

Karen was kidnaped in Los Angeles last year, and although she wasn't reunited with her mother until Thursday, it turned out she had actually been recovered by police in San Diego in January.

At the time, it was thought she was the daughter of her alleged kidnaper.

A San Diego policewoman and a Los Angeles juvenile detail sergeant finally put together the pieces that led to Karen's recovery from a foster home.

"I had never given up hope that I would see her again," said Mrs. Huber, a divorcee. "Deep down I knew she was all right because I knew no one could hurt someone so sweet and loveable."

Karen was found because of the arrest in San Diego last week of Jack Clifton Sharp, 45, a convicted child molester, for the alleged kidnaping of another little girl, Michelle Booher, 4.

She was found last Friday in San Diego by police, acting on a tip from the landlady of a rooming house where Sharp lived, who did not believe his story that the girl was his daughter.

Police arrested Sharp on charges of child stealing and child molestation.

The landlady said he had another "daughter" there for about five weeks in December. She knew Sharp as William Knapp.

The remark was seen in a news story by Los Angeles juvenile detail Sgt. Harry Gilpin.

He was struck by the resemblance of the Booher girl—a pretty, blue-eyed blonde — to Karen Huber, who disappeared Nov. 13 from a kindergarten school grounds.

Meanwhile, San Diego policewoman Lynn Donnelly was working the case from the other end —wondering whether a girl listed in San Diego files as "Karen Knapp" was really Knapp's daughter.

Sharp was arrested under the Knapp alias in January for car theft. He told police the little girl with him —who called him "daddy" —was his daughter.

The little girl was put in a children's home. She said she was Karen Knapp. When Sharp was arrested again for child molesting, Karen was made a ward of the court, put up for adoption and placed in a foster home.

That was where she was when the investigations by Gilpin and policewoman Donnelly came together Wednesday and they began wondering whether the accused kidnaper's "daughter" and the long missing kidnap victim were not the same girl.

Gilpin called Mrs. Huber Wednesday night and told her he would drive her to San Diego Thursday to meet a girl he suspected was her missing daughter.

Gilpin said Karen had been "intimidated and brainwashed" by Sharp to give her name as Karen Knapp. But she took one look at Mrs. Huber, cried "mommy," and burst into tears.

Karen's foster parents, who police said identify only as "a kindly older couple," were "pretty broken up" when she left, the officers said.

Legal nudity zone planned near L.A.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A city council committee agreed Thursday to set up a legal nudity zone.

The council was debating an ordinance to ban public nudity, aimed primarily at parks and beaches — particularly Venice Beach, where nude sunbathing has begun on recent weekends.

After spirited testimony from nudity advocates, the police, fire and civil defense committee agreed to write into the ban a provision for setting up "clothing optional zones" and to suspend enforcement of the law until there is at least one such area for legal nudity.

Crash fatal to 12

PUEBLA, Mexico (UPI) — A truck loaded with construction materials —mostly stones—collided with an automobile, then struck a bus Thursday. Police said 12 persons were killed and 17 injured —aboard the bus.

The driver of the bus and the truck both fled the scene of the accident.

The occupants of the car which was hit first apparently escaped serious injury.

Stabbing murder trial opens with autopsy findings

POMONA — A medical examiners findings opened testimony Thursday in Pomona Superior Court in the trial of two local men accused of murdering and robbing J.W. Clements, 40-year-old tire company worker.

The defendants are Johnny R. Thomas, 28, a house mover, and Roger L. Cox, 29, a swimming pool service employe. The trial, before a jury of five women, seven men and two male alternates, is in the court of Judge Carlos M. Teran.

The state's first witness was Dr. Donald E. Schaffer, deputy county medical examiner. Dr. Schaffer performed an autopsy on Clements' body March 24 and testified that Clements had bled to death as the result of being stabbed 23 times. The physician was the only witness called Thursday as the trial was continued to until Monday.

Earlier, Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard L. Jenkins, co-prosecutor with Gerard Poirier in the case, delivered an opening statement in which he told the jury that Cox and Thomas had been with Clements at the Frontier Club here the night he was slain, that the three left together and that after the victim's body was found in Live Oak Canyon, Cox and Thomas left town.

Jenkins told the panel that Cox's car was found abandoned near Needles and that blood stains and a knife were found inside. He said the pair later was arrested in Kansas in Thomas' truck and that blood stains were found inside that vehicle also.

When Clements' body was found by a hiker, Jenkins said, his pockets had been turned inside out, his watch and ring were missing and investigators found only a "thin dime" on the body.

Murder gun traced back to burglary

POMONA — The pistol used to kill 19-year-old Arnold Keith Anderson Wednesday evening was stolen in a burglary a year ago, police investigating the slaying said today.

The victim was found lying half-out of his car parked along the Corona Expressway near Philadelphia Street. He had been shot in the chest and died about 90 minutes later at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Police said that prior to his death, Anderson refused to tell them who shot him, saying he would take care of it himself.

The weapon, a German-made .38-caliber revolver, was found in bushes near the car. It is considered a well-made gun, police technician Sgt. John Ellenbecker said.

The revolver was reported stolen in a burglary in the west end of San Bernardino County.

Police said they are not ready yet to speculate on the reason Anderson, 2460 S. Angela St., was killed, but are checking out leads. There have been no arrests.

Two women distract clerks and tap tills

MONTCLAIR — Two women distracted sales clerks in the housewares departments of the Broadway and May Co. stores in the Montclair Plaza and took money from the cash registers Thursday, police said.

Officers said the first "till-tap' was reported by a clerk at the May Co. about 4 p.m. who opened her cash register after waiting on the two women and found it empty. The clerk told police that she had waited on the two women a few minutes earlier, and one had her go to the far end of the department for some merchandise, while the other waited at the register. The clerk said the women ended up buying nothing and left.

A few minutes later at the Broadway store on the other end of the mall, another sales clerk in a housewares department discovered her cash register had been emptied. She described the same set of circumstances with the two women customers.

A security guard at the Broadway said he saw two women matching the description of the suspects leave the store hurriedly and get into a 1970 to 1973 blue Cadillac with a black vinyl top. The guard said two men were in the car waiting for the women.

Police described the two women as Negroes in their mid-20s. Both appeared to be pregnant. One of the women was described as wearing a black sloppy hat, a blue and white checkered blouse and blue denim pants. The other woman was described as having an afro hair style and was dressed in blue denim pants. Both were about 5 feet 5 and 130 pounds.

Detectives later learned that several women matching the same descriptions had been using the same method to steal money from other major department stores in the area.

Ontario youth injured in bicycle accident

ONTARIO — A 14-year-old Ontario youth was injured Thursday afternoon when he rode his bicycle into the side of a car at Mission Boulevard and Grove Avenue, police reported.

John Robert Hillbush of 2847 Whispering Lake Road, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment of multiple abrasions following the 12:51 p.m. accident. He was later released.

Three more saved from flood control channel

MONTCLAIR — Three more persons have been plucked out of the swift moving waters of the San Antonio Flood Control Channel here.

Wednesday's was the fourth such incident in the channel in less than a month where persons were caught in the swift moving 40 mile per hour current and unable to get out.

This time, according to Montclair Fire Capt. William Voock, four persons —Malcolm Eckel, 20, of 9665 Fremont Ave.; Sherri Thomas, 25, and her eight-year-old son Kelly, of 5143 Harvard Ave.; and a fourth unidentified person got onto two small rubber rafts in the channel waters at Base Line Avenue.

The four, not realizing the danger said Voock, started floating downstream and quickly found themselves in trouble. One of the four on the rafts managed to get off in a slower stretch of water and cliimb up the cement enbankment to safety.

The remaining three were spotted floating helplessly downstream at Orchard Avenue and the channel by a Montclair resident who reported them to firemen. Firemen set up to catch the rafts and the people at Mission Boulevard overpass where two were brought to safety. Mrs. Thomas was rescued further downstream. The trio suffered only minor bruises and abrasions.

City sanitation workers stay on job

POMONA — Sanitation workers in Pomona today continued to cross picket lines to dump refuse at the county-operated Spadra landfill as the county employe strike begain its third day.

County sanitation employes defied a court order that they return to work and said they would not return until there is "a fair and equitable settlement of the issues."

A spokesman from the county Employes Association Local 660 said the strike dispute is over a classifications study of job assignments and promotions adopted by the sanitation district.

Superior Court Judge David A. Thomas Wednesday ordered union members to end the strike pending a July 10 hearing. A civil suit was filed in Superior Court Thursday by the union asking the court to force the Los Angeles County Sanitation District to "meet and confer" on several issues.

The suit says that the union was not consulted on the new promotion list and is asking the court to order the district to work out a new list with the union.

Tony Pagliuso, superintendent of sanitation for the City of Pomona, said County union members are permitting the nonunion sanitation workers to cross the picket lines at the Spadra landfill. Pomona has 200 tons of refuse to dispose of daily.

But the city of Claremont, which is union, decided Thursday to dump its refuse at a private refuse site in Azusa instead of crossing picket lines.

Pagluso said Pomona officials are discussing plans with officials from San Bernardino County to use the Milliken Avenue refuse site, if the need arises due to the strike.

Grass fire hits Chino golf club

CHINO — A fire, started under "suspicious circumstances," roared over 20 acres of tinder dry grass and brush Thursday night in the Chino Hills above the Los Serranos Golf and Country Club, before being extinguished by Chino firemen.

Firemen said the fire was first reported about 9:10 p.m. by a resident on Palomino Drive in Los Serranos. Three tanker trucks, a pumper, and a staff car were dispatched to the scene of the fire that had topped a hill and was burning downward towards the golf course.

The Chino firemen, with help from a state Division of Forestry crew, extinguished the blaze by 11:10 p.m. No structures were burned.

Fire inspectors said the fire started under "suspicious circumstances" and is still under investigation.

Ayala casts first 'no' on $10.3 billion budget

SACRAMENTO — State Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, freshman legislator from Chino, cast the first "no" vote Thursday as the Senate rejected a proposed state budget of $10.3 billion.

Ayala, elected in a special election last year, said he couldn't vote for a budget without knowing what provisions it contained.

"They dumped the book (budget) on our desks Thursday and expected us to approve it," he said.

Ayala also opposed most of the public works projects for the new fiscal year being allocated for Northern California while the bulk of the state's population is south of the Tehachapi Mountains.

The senator also objected to the "system" where no one knows what is in the budget except those on the joint committee.

"It's quite a funny feeling to be the first to vote no and not knowing how the other senators will vote," he noted. The Senate roll call is done by alphabetical order. "But I was happy to lead the parade."

In the first Senate vote, the proposed budget was rejected by a 20 to 12 vote. A second vote was 22 to 14.

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos signed a sweeping amnesty decree today, pardoning Moslem rebels who lay down their arms and cease fighting for independence in the southern Philippines.

Pedestrian hit by car, killed

CUCAMONGA — A pedestrian suffered fatal injuries Thursday night when struck by a car as he started to cross Archibald Avenue south of Ninth Street.

Samuel Chavarria, 34, of 8871 Center St., Cucamonga, died at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland about 45 minues after the accident.

The victim had jumped a small picket fence and had run in front of the oncoming vehicle, said investigators.

Debra K. Campagne, 20, of 9545 Balsa st., Cucamonga, the driver, was not held.

Firemen battle to save a replica of Columbus's vessel, the Santa Maria, which was gutted by fire on Thursday. The vessel, valued at over $750,000, was a popular tourist attraction at Titusville, Fla.

Follows county trend

Area population declines

This area of Los Angles County, like the county as a whole, experienced a turn downward in population last year, according to estimates released by the county's Regional Planning Commission.

The figures, compiled up to the date July 1, 1973, indicate that the Pomona area, despite gains in La Verne and San Dimas and unincorporated areas nearby, had a net loss of 435 residents between 1970 and mid-1973.

These statistics show a continuation of a decline in population reported by the county Regional Planning Commission at the end of 1973. Between 1970 and 1973 Los Angeles County reversed a 123-year trend of population growth.

Unincorporated areas continued to grow, notably with additional mobile home units. Mobile homes now comprise approximately 2.9 per cent of the total housing supply in unincoprorated areas. studies indicated that 12,687 people now live in mobile homes in the county.

In the Pomona area, population declined between 1970 and mid-1973 was in some cases sizeable. The City of Pomona lost 3,641 residents, dropping to a population of 83,743.

Claremont declined by 188 inhabitants.

La Verne, however, gained 1,776 to reach a population in July, 1973 of 14,741. San Dimas increased its population by 830, and Walnut grew by 361 to a total of 6,353.

The county study showed that housing in Pomona during the same period dropped from 28,864 units to 28,798 units.

San Dimas, Claremont and La Verne each increased the number of housing units within its borders, however. Claremont, for instance, had 327 more housing units in July, 1973 than in 1970. La Verne had added 770 housing units and San Dimas 452.

Unincorporated areas around Pomona also increased the number of housing units for county residents.

SEOUL (UPI) — Three North Korean gunboats attacked and sank a 200-ton South Korean police patrol vessel today in a battle in the Sea of Japan, a South Korean military spokesman reported. North Korea said it captured several crewmen.

The South Korean spokesman said air force fighter planes and navy vessels rushed to the scene after radio contact with the boat was lost but bad weather hampered rescue and search operations.

"We presume the missing police craft was sunk by the enemy fire," he said. "The search operation is almost impossible because of the bad weather. We were unable to come within 100 yards from the scene of the incident."

The two countries blamed each other for provoking the sea battle. South Korea said its boat was south of the military demarcation line that extends east into the sea. North Korea said the boat was north of the line.

The police patrol boat was on a routine mission to protect southern fishing vessels operating in the area, the South Korean announcement said. The area is considered a good fishing ground.

A military source said North Korean MIG fighter planes came within two miles of the South Korean planes at one point. They left the area without incident, it said.

South Korean spokesman Yoon Shu Yung said the attack was similar to one Feb. 15 in the Yellow Sea when two North Korean gunships sank a South Korean fishing boat and hijacked another with a crew of 14.

"We cannot but think that today's incident was planned in advance as part of North Korea's aggressive military scheme," Yoon said.

He said the South Korean ship went down in a fight with three Communist gunboats near the eastern extension of the Korean Demilitarized Zone that runs along the 38th parallel.

The boat first reported two Communist vessels approaching and an hour and a half later, just before radio contact was lost, said it was exchanging fire with three North Korean vessels.

North Korea, in an official broadcast monitored in Tokyo, did not say how many survivors had been picked up. Korean newspapers and radio reports said the vessel carried about 30 crewmen.

"We strongly demand that North Korea apologize for the incident and return survivors, if any, and the bodies of those killed in the sinking," Yoon said.

A South Korean government spokesman also said Seoul had filed an official protest during a political meeting at the truce village of Panmunjom. North Korea ignored the protest.

A South Korean spokesman said its representative termed the incident a grave military provocation on the high seas in violation of the July 4, 1972, joint communique renouncing hostilities on the Korean peninsula. He said the Communists asserted the police boat provoked the battle.

The spokesman said South Korea blamed North Korea for failing to use the hotline installed in 1972 between the two capitals of Seoul and Pyongyang to prevent the military clash on the high seas.

Nurses vote to return to work

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Striking nurses have voted overwhelmingly to return to work today at 41 private hospitals and clinics in Northern California.

Members of the California Nurses Association Thursday night ratified a two-year contract which sets a staffing policy in special units at the facilities from Sacramento to San Jose.

Hospitals were crippled by the strike. Nursing staffs were reduced to a minimum agreed to by the strikers before the June 7 walkout.

Neither the nurses nor the three hospital groups claimed victory, but the nurses were granted concessions in the staffing of such areas as coronary, burn and intensive care units.

Hospitals said such a move would infringe on the authority of doctors and administrators.

CNA members said after the vote that the new pact was "a stepping stone" to more control over placement of nurses in special units.

The nurses were granted a $60-a-month pay increase retroactive to Jan. 1. They will also receive another $40 a month July 1. The contract raised a top scale nurse's salary to nearly $1,100 a month.

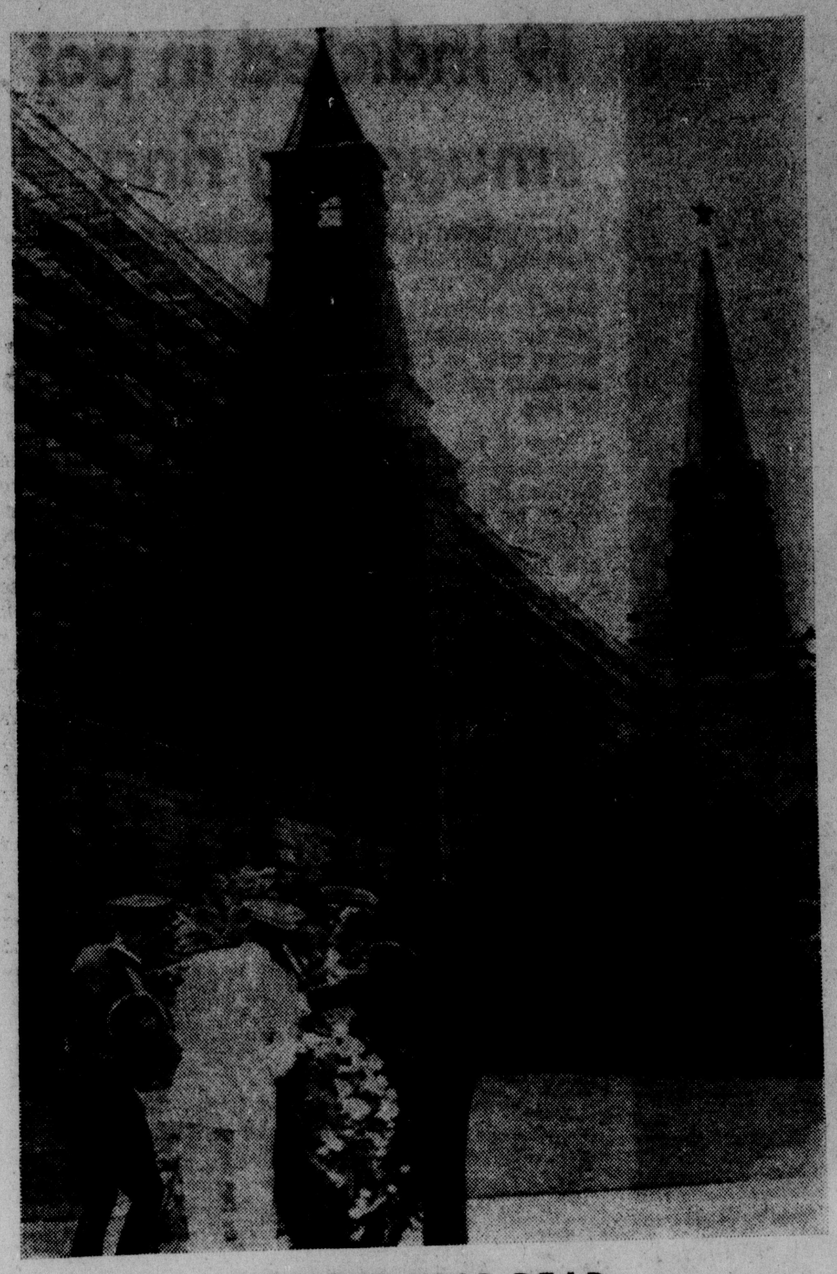
The pact also liberalized week-end off policy with 24 weekends a year. The number before was 17.

"It was the best settlement we could obtain under the circumstances," said Burton White, the chief negotiator for the nurses.

Strikers volunteered help in intensive care and emergency rooms while negotiators met at the bargaining table. However, the nurses later withdrew their help on grounds hospitals were using them to relieve supervisors for other duties.

Nurses and hospitals both maintained that no patients went without essential care.

Hospital administrators and the nurses met in sessions headed by W.J. Usery, the chief negotiator for the Federal Mediation Service. A tentative agreement was reached Wednesday.



HONORS WAR DEAD

Nixon, Russian people banter in Red Square

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet citizenry got a rare glimpse of a visiting dignitary and President Nixon got a chance to speak some Russian today when he got out of his limousine to shake hands with a large crowd in Red Square.

On his way to his closed meetings with Soviet leaders, Nixon got out of his car to meet the Russians were on their way to work or out shopping.

Someone in the crowd shouted, "Peace is very important."

Nixon shouted back, "For everybody, the whole world, the Russian people and the American people."

Once Nixon himself spoke Russian: "Ochen khorosho" (very nice).

"Please come more often, Mr. President," one woman in a flowery dress said. "Friendship, peace and friendship," others chorused.

Such public appearances by visiting officials are rare in the Soviet Union. During his first trip to Moscow as President in 1972, Nixon was sheltered from such crowds and during his motorcade from the airport to the Kremlin Thursday only a chosen few were allowed to see him pass.

Even then very few could see him since his closed car sped down the wide Lenin Prospect at a fast rate.

But today was different. Russian security men, often heavy handed in dealing with crowds, appeared good-natured as they joined U.S. Secret Service agents in keeping the crowd from pushing in too close.

One woman shouted in English, "Good luck." Another woman cried in English, "We don't want another war repeated."

Scores of Russians pushed out of an underground pedestrian passage and reached across an iron railing to grab Nixon's hand.

Mother blames indifference of police for baby's death

BOSTON (UPI) — The mother of a baby whose body was found Thursday inside a cardboard carton on a freight train 1,500 miles from home blames police indifference for the death. Authorities disputed the charge.

Police found the body of the child, 18-month-old Jeffery Holman, in a boxcar at the Santa Fe Railroad yards in Chillicothe, Ill., about 150 miles southwest of Chicago.

Boston police previously arrested the father, Raymond Holman. Officers said he put the boy inside the carton and put it on a westbound freight car in Boston after telling his estranged wife "God told me to kill Jeffrey." He was arrested Tuesday and placed under mental observation after the mother reported the incident.

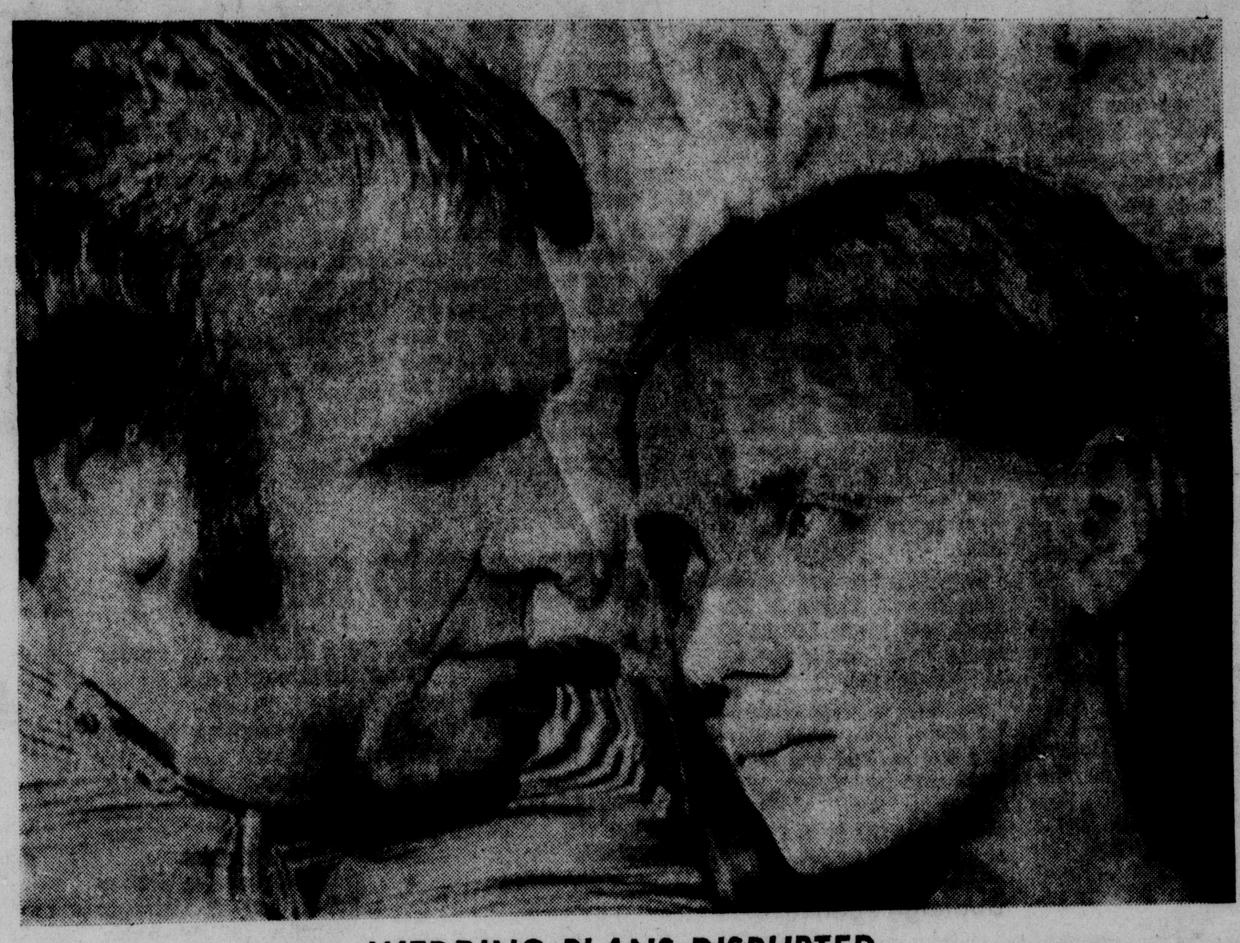
The mother, Amelia Holman, 25, angered Boston police officials when she said her son's life might have been saved if police had taken her case more seriously

Mrs. Holman said her husband forced her to bring Jeffrey to a freight yard. "He told me we were going to go to San Francisco," she said.

Once there he told her "God told me to kill Jeffrey," and threw the infant from the freight car, she said.

The baby appeared all right after landing in soft dirt, she said, but Holman grabbed Jeffrey and carried him away.

"He's in God's hands," she quoted her husband as saying. "I think he really thought he was sending the baby to God."



WEDDING PLANS DISRUPTED

Chrysler ups price of cars, trucks by $60

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chrysler Corp. Thursday increased new car and truck prices for the 10th time —by $60 —making the average cost of all 1974 models $568 higher now than when they were first introduced.

In a brief, three-paragraph statement, Chrysler said its steel costs have increased an average of $102 per vehicle since April 30, the same day the No. 3 automaker announced an average $122 price increase.

Chrysler's action followed by one day a price hike by U.S. Steel, the No. 1 producer, on cold rolled and hot rolled steel sheets.

Other automakers said they still were studying the new pricing actions by U.S. Steel and earlier in the week by No. 2-ranked Bethlehem Steel.

The $60 increase by Chrysler includes an average $49 boost on the base price of vehicles and $11 on options —an average of 1.4 per cent.

Compact cars were increased $36, intermediates $55 and fullsized models $80. On options, the range was from two cents on a glove compartment lock to $7.42 on the automatic temperature control for large models.

Since relatively few 1974 models remain to be produced, the latest pricing action by Chrysler is seen as a way to lessen the blow when the 1975 models are introduced this fall.

Found unconscious in cemetery

Pair put on ice--to save them from dying of drug overdose

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Police said two young men found unconscious Thursday night in a local cemetary survived apparent drug overdoses because their bodies had been packed in 85 pounds of ice.

Homicide Detective Lt. Charles Lenz said the ice, placed beneath their heads and arms and around their rib cages, slowed body activity and prevented rapid absorbtion of the drug.

Lenz said police found James J. Moore, 27, and Thomas Slobodnyak, 24, both of Pittsburgh, in the Calvary Cemetary after an anonymous caller informed police of their location around 8:30 p.m.

He said the men were apparently dragged to the cemetary and covered with ice cubes because their companions feared being identified at a hospital.

A spokesman at Homestead Hospital, where Moore was in critical condition, said the ice "could have saved their lives."

"I could see where it would have lowed absorbtion and delayed the drug from reaching the brain, where it would have caused respiratory arrest," the spokesman said.

Detective Ronald Freeman said the victims were found lying on their backs with their heads resting on concrete blocks in a manner "appearing like a ritual."

Police said they would not be able to determine the type of drug used or whether it was self-induced until later today.

Marriage barred

MOSCOW (UPI) — A 22-year-old American woman who planned to marry a Russian Thursday was still single today because Soviet officials claimed the man was the father of another woman's unborn child.

"It's just a bunch of lies," Diane Nemec, daughter of a Chicago policeman, said. "Sergei (P. Inashev, her fiance) never heard of this girl and we have not been able to find her."

Miss Nemec said she was informed of the other woman on Wednesday.

"The authorities said they would not allow us to be married until the thing is cleared up even though there is no law saying such a thing can delay a marriage," she said.

Namath suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath filed a $750,000 suit in Brooklyn Federal Court Thursday charging a chewing gum company with unauthorized use of his picture on bubble gum wrappers and player cards.

Namath charged the Topps Chewing Gum Co. had been using his picture since 1965 without his permission and said such unauthorized use endangered the income he receives from endorsing other products.

Old knee injury

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Gov. Philip W. Noel is worried that he might need an operation on an old knee injury, before or during the upcoming primary elections.

"I can't walk normally, and it's beginning to concern me," he said. He reinjured the knee while marching in a St. Patrick's Day parade. "Trying to play tennis on it was a mistake too," the athletic governor said.

"If I have the operation before the elections it could hurt the campaigning, and if I wait, the knee could become more damaged," he said.

Streaking fine

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Prancing nude through a Pancake House has cost the son of the American Bar Association president and the daughter of a former Florida Board of Regents chairman $102 each.

Chesterfield Harvey Smith Jr., 22, Bartow, Fla., and Jacquelyn Kibler, 21, Lakeland, both Florida State University students, pleaded no contest to disorderly conduct charges Wednesday night before city judge Dennis Fontaine.

They had been charged with indecent exposure but were allowed to plead no contest to the lesser charge and pay $102 fines.

Miss Kibler is the daughter of D. Burke Kibler, former chairman of the board of regents, which administers Florida's state universities. He is a law partner of Chesterfield H. Smith, Sr., president of the ABA.

The two, who are vacationing from classes at the Tallahassee school, were arrested June 18 when they streaked nude through a Pancake House and were intercepted by a Lakeland policeman.

Charge dropped

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A charge against Los Angeles hypnotist Ronald Dante, former husband of Lana Turner, of defrauding a California electronics firm was dropped by a Pima County justice of the peace.

Dante, 54, still faces trial here July 16 on a charge of attempting to hire a killer to murder a rival hypnotist. He had been charged with defrauding a Van Nuys, Calif., electronics firm of $3,565 worth of equipment for his airplane. He said he had paid for the equipment and had receipts. The charge was dismissed Wednesday for lack of evidence.

New president

SANTAGO (UPI) — Gen. Augusto Pinochet, leader of Chile's junta, received the presidential sash of Chile Thursday, a day after he was appointed chief-of-state by decree.

"With patriotic emotion, I assume the post of supreme leader of the nation," Pinochet, 58, said.

Present were the other three members of the junta, Admiral Jose Merino, Gen. Gustato Leigh of the air force and Gen. Cesar Mendoza of the Carabineros police.

Man drowns

MALIBU (UPI)—A 21-year-old Oxnard man drowned Sunday in a secluded lake near here, sheriff's deputies said.

Keith Monroe McDowell had been swimming with some companions who said he had been missing for nearly 2 ½ hours when they discovered his body floating in about six feet of water.

McDowell was pronounced dead on arrival at Parkwood Hospital.

Bus driver shot

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Harland A. Bubb, 40, a Rapid Transit Distrcit bus driver, was wounded Wednesday after he and a male passenger stepped out of a bus to continue an argument.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies a passenger, about 19, argued with the driver, saying the bus was taking the wrong route.

Witnesses said the pair exchanged only a few words when the youth pulled a small caliber pistol from a pocket, fired once and fled on foot.

Two accused

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Willy F. Lee and Johnny D. Thompson were to be arraigned today in Municipal Court on charges of beating a vending truck driver to death during a $12 robbery.

Murder petitions were filed Wednesday with the juvenile Court against three teen-agers in connection with the slaying of Victorino A. Paredes.

VISIT FROM QUEEN MOTHER — Her Majesty the Queen Mother inspects the Royal Guard of Honour on her arrival at Dorval International airport in Montreal, Thursday. She is there to present the Queen's colors to the Black Watch Regiment of Canada.

19 indicted in pot smuggling ring

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Vacaville physician and 18 other persons have been indicted by a federal grand jury here for conspiracy in connection with an alleged million-dollar marijuana smuggling ring.

"One of the major marijuana distribution networks in the West has been effectively closed by this indictment," Assistant U. S. Attorney Donald H. Heller said Thursday.

The indictments charging conspiracy to distribute and import marijuana were issued Wednesday and most of those named have been taken into custody.

The indictments, Heller said, culminated a joint investigation by state, federal and local officers dating back to 1972.

The physician indicted was identified as Dr. Fritz Roschen of Vacaville. Heller said he was the alleged "financier of part of the operation."

Heller said the smuggling operation involved more than $1 million in marijuana which was flown from Northern Mexico to an airstrip near the U.S. border. From there it was transported by car to Sacramento, San Francisco, Vacaville, Fairfield and in some instances, New York.

The other suspects, including four women, were from the Sacramento, Fairfield and San Francisco areas. Heller identified the ringleader as Rodney Ellison, about 30, of Sacramento.

Made furniture out of victims

Murderer loses bid for freedom

WAUTOMA, Wis. (UPI) — Ed Gein, the murderer who made furniture out of the bodies of his victims, Thursday lost his bid for freedom in a court hearing.

Gein, 66, says he has recovered his sanity and is now competent to live in society, but Circuit Judge Robert Golloer ruled after a day of testimony that Gein was mentally ill and not yet ready for release from the Central State Hospital at Wautoma.

In November of 1957 the body of Mrs. Bernice Worden was found hanging by the heels in the summer kitchen of Gein's home in Plainfield, dressed out like a deer.

Police also found a total of 19 skulls, shrunken heads and death masks in the home. A human heart was in a pot on the stove.

Furniture was fashioned of human remains —such as lampshades made of skin. Clothing and bracelets appeared made of human skin and hair.

Gein was charged with Mrs. Worden's murder, but was not tried until 1967, when he was finally found competent to stand trial. He was convicted of the murder, but the verdict said he was insane at the time of the killing.

During the murder trial psychiatrists testified Gein had told them he had engaged in grave robberies since 1947, two years after the death of his mother, to whom he was strongly attached.

Dr. Thomas Malueg, a Neenah, Wis., psychiatrist, told the court Thursday Gein was a residual schizophrenic who might break down again under social stresses.

Wasn't aware of any illegal gifts--HHH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., says if any corporations contributed illegally to his 1972 presidential bid he "was unaware of it."

The former vice president and 1968 Democratic presidential nominee was accused along with Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of accepting illegal corporate gifts in a draft report prepared for the Senate Watergate Committee. The report also said both their campaign managers invoked the 5th Amendment to avoid testifying.

"I have not seen this draft report, but according to information made public by the press it is filled with innuendos and inaccuracies," Humphrey said in a two-page statement Thursday.

Humphrey said he had not cooperated with the Watergate Committee's investigation of an alleged $25,000 donation from the Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) because he did not know about the gift.

He said his personal expenditures during his try for the 1972 nomination came from a trust fund he established in 1965.

The report charged that Jack Chestnut, Humphrey's former campaign manager, destroyed the campaign's financial records for the period before April 7, 1972, when a new full disclosure law went into effect.

The report charged that Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Inc. (3M) illegally contributed $1,000 to Humphrey in corporate funds channeled through a consultant in Europe.

Humphrey said he received 10 checks of $100 each from individuals, and "if these individuals were reimbursed with corporate funds, I was not aware of it."

Humphrey also said his office had provided more than 200 documents requested by the committee.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Pat Nixon oohed and aahed the daring young men on the flying trapeze at the Moscow circus school today and watched open-mouthed as two young students collided in flight, narrowly averting a fall.

"I thought they were all so marvelous," the first lady said after her hour-long visit.

Mrs. Nixon, wearing a pink shirtwaist dress, sat in the front row between Victoria Brezhnev, wife of the head of the Soviet Communist party, and the director of the circus school, Alexander M. Voloshin.

Seconds after the show began, two male acrobats collided in flight on the high trapeze, winced but managed to avoid a fall. Mrs. Nixon gasped.

The trapeze artists were being held by two other artists hanging by their knees from swings about 40 feet above the safety net.

They were supposed to miss one another narrowly as they swung past but a slip in coordination caused them to bump. They kept their grip on the wrists of their holders.

Mrs. Nixon, traveling with President Nixon on his Russian summit meeting, watched eight acts put on by senior students at the school, which has trained more than 2,000 circus artists since it was founded in 1927. It is the only one of its kind in the Soviet Union.

"Last time I was here, when we went to the circus, maybe you saw a picture of me shaking hands over there," she told newsmen. "I had a marvelous time, so this time I wanted to see the young people training."

After an hour of juggling, tumbling, clowning, acrobatics and high flying on the trapeze in the one-ring circus, students and faculty members came together into the spotlighted, red-carpeted arena.

Each faculty member gave Mrs. Nixon a couple of carnations until in the end she was holding a large bouquet. Voloshin gave her several gifts, including a book about the circus.

"They are so generous here," she said. "Did you see the gifts?"

After the circus, a newsman asked Mrs. Nixon what else she planned to do in the Soviet Union.

"Oh, I may surprise you," she replied. "All sorts of things."

Asked if she had a good time with Mrs. Brezhnev despite the language barrier, Mrs. Nixon said, "Yes, indeed. She knows more English than she'll admit. We talk all the time and we have a good time together."

Mrs. Nixon said she only wanted to talk about the circus. But commenting on her husbands phlebitis —an inflaumation of veins in his left leg — she said: "He's feeling fine. And he's working hard."

Senate passes measure giving ex-convicts voting franchise

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Exconvicts would be given back the voting franchise under a proposed constitutional amendment which has won narrow passage from the Senate.

The measure (ACA38) by Assemblyman Julian C. Dixon, D-Los Angeles, was approved Wednesday on a 27-8 vote, the bare two-thirds necessary, and returned to the Assembly for concurrence in amendments. It would require voter approval.

Currently, the state Constitution prohibits exfelons from voting unless they are pardoned by the governor. They would be given the franchise back under the legislation provided they had completed parole.

Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, Senate floor manager of the measure, said some county clerks currently register exconvicts to vote on the basis of various court decisions while others do not.

He said the proposed constitutional amendment would clear up the issue once and for all.

A COLLECTOR — Burrel Rowe of Houston reads copy of "Superman" Number 1, a 1939 issue of the fantasy hero for which he recently paid $2,000. Already the price is up. He started collecting as a child.

Comic books are big business

By JAMES L. OVERTON

HOUSTON (UPI) — As a boy in East Texas, Burrel Rowe whiled away lazy summer days at the town drug store spellbound in comic book adventures dominated by a cast of heroes and villians.

"I started with a hundred comics I bought for a dime apiece," he said.

Today, at 37, the boyish and bespectacled municipal bond attorney buys, sells, trades and still reads comics. But the price has gone up —$2,000 for a 1939 "Superman."

"Sure, there's a nostalgic attraction," Rowe, 37, said. "It's the most relaxing thing I do and it's a lot of fun.

"But I really appreciate the art in them. Many of the comics have beautiful art and beautiful stories.

"You can say now, 'I collect comics,' and people are surprised. Four or five years from now that won't be the case. It will be like collecting stamps.

"Soon they will be museum items because the price just gets higher and higher," he said.

Rowe recently paid $2,000 for "Superman" No. 1, a 1939 issue of the fantasy hero. To do that he sold a similar issue for $725.

"I trade so I can buy what I want," he said.

He went into serious collecting several years ago when he moved to Houston and began swapping issues with Texas author Larry McMurtry, another comics fan. His collection includes about 1,200 selected issues.

"It's the only investment I've made that keeps going up each year," Rowe said. "I have to insure them every year, and each time they go up 30 per cent or more.

"I have saved them since a child; and even back then, I tried to get back issues of my favorites, 'Jungle Comics.'"

Rowe doesn't read his rarest pieces any longer, because the cheap paper they are printed on is easily damaged when brittle with age.

"I'm usually too scared to open them, but then a coin collector doesn't spend his coins, and a stamp collector doesn't use his stamps to mail letters.

Money expert: inflation may be way of life

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) — Unless individual Americans and the government learn to live within their budgets, inflation will become a way of life, according to a national money expert.

Dr. Philip Coldwell, president of the Federal Reserve Board at Dallas and a member of the Federal Open Market Committee, told the Laredo Chamber of Commerce recently that the United States has become a nation of credit and borrowing and business as usual meant "spending money we don't have."

Coldwell said between 1965 and 1970, inflation rose at a rate of 4 per cent per year, but now the figure was 14 per cent annually and Americans continue to ignore it.

He said the inflation could not be attributed to just one war. Many factors enter in, he said, not the least of which is individuals "spending and borrowing more than they have."

"The time has come for the American people to take direct action themselves. The problem is when you ask for people to act against their own economic living standards, you run into a stone wall. We have to resist the idea of spending more money than we have, or else inflation will be a way of life

Congressional committee wrapping up pension bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House-Senate conference committee is nearing completion of a pension reform bill which would halt abuses that have left many workers without pensions after a lifetime of labor.

The bill, expected to be passed by both House and Senate later this year, may become the most important social legislation to pass the 93rd Congress.

The conference committee and staff members of four congressional committees have been working for three months to iron out the differences between earlier House and Senate bills. Basic decisions have been made and the committee is expected to wrap up its deliberations within a day or two.

The major parts of the bill would set minimum standards for persons who must be included in a private pension plan, how those plans must be funded, and how soon employes must become "vested" and therefore entitled to their pension even if they quit or are fired before retirement age.

The vesting standards are among the most important in the bill. They are designed to prevent long-term employes from losing their pensions when they leave work before retirement age. In some cases employes have worked 30 years or more, paying into a pension plan, then lost their pensions by retiring a few months before retirement age.

In addition, the bill sets up a government termination insurance plan, financed by employer payments, to guarantee pensions for workers of industries that go out of business.

The bill sets up these three minimum vesting standards:

—Vesting of 25 per cent after five years of work, gradually increasing to 100 per cent vesting after 15 years.

—Full vesting immediately after 10 years.

—The "rule of 45" which provides 50 per cent vesting after the sum of an employe's age and experience equals 45. Vesting must come nonetheless after an employe has worked 10 years, even if his years and experience do not add up to 45. Older employes would not be immediately vested, however, because an employe would have to work a minimum of five years.

The bill does not provide for employes to move their pensions from one employer to another when they change jobs, but does provide that they can take their built-up pension funds and set up an individual retirement account, tax-free.

Several other sections allow individual tax-free retirement accounts, within limits, for the self-employed, professionals and others.

FBI fingerprints go to automation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has revealed plans for development of an automated system of processing fingerprints to replace the slow process of matching them manually.

Kelley said the new system will not only process the standard fingerprint identification cards containing prints of all 10 fingers but will be capable of making a search on the basis of a single print found at the scene of a crime.

If this system proves successful, Kelley said, it will be one of the more significant advances in law enforcement since fingerprints were first adopted as a means of identification.

Kelley made the disclosure in a statement announcing that the FBI's Identification Division, which the late director J. Edgar Hoover set up in 1924, will celebrate its 50th anniversary next Monday.

Hoover established the division as a national clearinghouse for identification, replacing fingerprint files of the former National Bureau of Criminal Identification and the U.S. Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

The division now has on file almost 160 million fingerprint cards, including cards filed for civil identification such as members of the armed forces, and criminal identification cards, Kelley said.

Kelley said the division, in addition to criminal identification work, conducts a missing persons program, and assists an FBI disaster squad which has helped identify victims in 106 major disasters since 1940.

"For more than 40 years," he added, "the FBI Identification Division has pioneered for a means of utilizing electronic technology to the task of classifying, searching, storing and retrieving positive fingerprint information," he said.

AAA: holiday gas supplies will suffice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Automobile Association says motorists should find plentiful supplies of gasoline, even though the traffic volume is expected to increase sharply during the coming Fourth of July holiday period.

The AAA said a survey of 5,556 gasoline stations around the nation showed that only one in 100 reported dry tanks. The percentage of stations pumping fuel after 6 p.m. weeknights increased to 70 per cent from 69 per cent last week while 62 per cent said they now operate after 6 p.m. Saturday and half of them on Sundays.

The Marine Corps believes that every young man wants to point himself in the right direction—toward the kind of work that will suit him best, the kind of skills that will stick with him for life.

So if you've got what it takes to be a Marine, and you can qualify for our new option programs, we'll let you choose the right direction. If it's aviation administration and support, you'll be on your way as soon as you complete recruit training.

There's also computer programming, supply and logistics, combat arms, radio communications... and many other directions you can go. Come in and look over the list. You tell us what you're interested in. We'll tell you if we can get you there.

For Saturday, June 29

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your plans will suffer minor frustrations today but it won't be anything that can't be worked out. A "fun" evening is ahead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Get your domestic responsibilities out of the way as soon as possible so you can do something that satisfies today's active social urge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Superiors tend to look upon you at this time in a very friendly light. A good day for a private confab with the boss.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's your big ideas that have the best chance of success today. Concentrate on major issues that have far-reaching effects.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best to keep certain confidential family matters to yourself. Nothing of value will be realized by talking loosely to outsiders.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will be the victorious party today if you are willing to make compromises and concessions to facilitate an agreement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't treat with indifference or complacency propositons you now are offered by persons who can further your present ambitions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something that you have thought through carefully may look risky to others. If you stick to your game plan it will turn out as you envision.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The outcome of something important appears to be in doubt at this time. You shouldn't despair. The end result favors you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't rely upon hearsay information. Instead, go directly ot the source. You'll hear first-hand the words you hoped to hear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're still in a fortunate cycle for getting what you go after. Don't sit on your duff, start piling up points.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Behave in an open and generous manner toward those you have dealings with. You'll find you will be treated with the same consideration.

Your Birthday June 29

Certain desires that are important to you will be realized with surprising ease this year. Be optimistic and positive about your plans.

Nixon to give Soviet leader another auto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev will receive another American automobile from President Nixon, but it will be a different make and model than the ones he has received before.

During Nixon's summit visit in 1972, the President gave Brezhnev —an automobile hobbyist —a Cadillac as a gift. When Brezhnev visited the United States in June, 1973, Nixon gave him a Lincoln.

This time when Nixon visits Moscow, General Motors Corp. said that the gift will be a sporty 1974 Chevrolet Monte Carlo with a silver-colored body and a white vinyl roof.

GM said the car would be delivered through an Atlantic City, N.J., agency. It was loaded aboard a cargo plane recently for delivery to the Soviet Union.

Chances of buying house for $1 slim—coordinator

POMONA — Although there are some 700 federally owned abandoned houses in this city, the chances of these properties being sold to residents for $1 apiece are slim, local officials say.

The House of Representatives recent approval of legislation that would permit the sale for $1 each of houses owned by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) resulted in a flood of telephone calls to city hall, newspaper and federal offices.

But local officials point out that the Housing and Urban Development Act (HR 15361) is a long way from reality.

'It must go to the Senate for joint conference approval. Date for conference has not been set," said Mrs. Maggie O'Donnell, city housing coordinator.

"The bill, if it is passed by both branches of Congress, will direct HUD to make some homes available for homesteading. The criteria for eligibility are still vague and undetermined; cities may add costs of administrating the program, bring the program total amount necessary to a figure well above the $1 stated in the article," she said.

"The City of Pomona and Valley Association of Cities will be notified of the number and location of said homes, if legislation is approved," she said.

Pomona Councilman Charles W. Bader, chairman of the Valley Association of cities, (VAC), said he does not believe the $1 sale is the answer to the abandoned-vacant house problem.

The association, which represents 10 cities in eastern Los Angeles and western San Bernardino counties, was formed to combat the problem.

"We have not supported the homestead legislation in front of us," said Bader.

An amendment to the act concerns homesteading and contains a provision permitting the sale of HUD-owned houses for $1 apiece.

Joseph Korpsak, VAC's executive officer, stressed that even after legislation is finally approved, it normally takes three to six months to implement new HUD legislation.

Bader said he thought the kind of $1 deal VAC would buy concerns the sale for $1 of houses in such bad shape they are not considered worth rehabilitating.

Korpsak estimates only 25 to 50 of the abandoned houses fall in this category.

'I'm persuaded there's a market for the houses (abandoned)," said Bader. "The houses are moving pretty quickly in Pomona" he said, referring to house sales in general.

Bader noted that VAC has a five-point program for dealing with the problem of abandoned houses.

This program, which has an aim to reduce the abandoned house inventory in nine cities from 1,000 to 200 by December 1975, calls for resale facilitation, an early warning, identification, surveillance and security system, a home ownership counseling program, a research study and maintenance of abandoned properties.

Bader said that a major problem being faced by VAC is not that buyers can't be found but that the houses are not being placed in the buyers market fast enough.

He said once Congress adopts the legislation, the association would draw up guidelines on how to go about disposing of the properties under the homesteading program.

"But until we know what specific legislation we're talking about, we're just not in a position to go into details," he said.

Computer responsible for loss of assistance

I run a rest home.

For the past six months an 89-year-old lady has been among residents here. I have never received an old-age pension check for her.

I have been to the Social Security office so much that the people know what I'm there for. They give me a different clerk every time.

Now they tell me she isn't eligible. She has been getting old-age assistance for a good many years. Why, all of a sudden, is she ineligible?

She has arthritis very badly. She has gone down to the office with me although she has to use a walker. It hurts her so badly to walk that she is in bed for two days after she goes to the office. — P.O., Pomona.

We found out that your lady still is eligible for old-age assistance but has been the victim of the villainous computer.

Until that mess is cleared up, she will be paid manually each month by the U.S. Treasury Department. It will be necessary for you to report to the local office that her check hasn't arrived.

After we contacted Social Security personnel she received an $813 check representing retroactive and current payment.

You talked to us about another resident whose checks, you said, had stopped arriving.

For some reason the local Social Security office hasn't been able to fathom, her checks have been issued at irregular dates and in varying amounts.

Since you spoke with us, payments have been made which bring her up to date.

Where are there transactional analysis therapy groups in this area which charge according to your income?—J.B., Pomona.

David Roy, assistant director of the Pastoral Counseling Center in Claremont, told us that transactional analysis is the type developed by the late Eric Berne and popularized by Thomas A. Harris in the book "I'm OK—You're OK."

Although he and others we talked to didn't know of groups using transactional analysis techniques exclusively, they did know of groups which draw on several techniques, including TA.

Information about therapy groups which charge according to income and which are aware of TA techniques may be obtained from the Pastoral Counseling Center in Claremont and from the community programs office of the Tri-City Mental Health Center.

I want to get in touch with the Austin Studio which used to be in Pomona but has closed shop here and moved on.

Austin Studio took pictures of my son, as a graduate of Sacred Heart School, 10 years ago.

I took two finished pictures to the studio to have them framed.

Then I had hard luck trying to finance my son's schooling. Not until last month did I try to call the studio and discover the firm had moved.

I can now finance the charge for framing these pictures, which they still have, and would like to get them for keepsakes.—J.K., Pomona

Your description of the way your son looked 10 years ago—butch hair cut, full face, large round eyes, big smile—had us crying into our chocolate milk.

The reason we were crying is that Austin Studio not only moved, it went bankrupt, we are told by colleagues at the Progress-Bulletin.

A call to the Pomona Library revealed that the last phone listing for the studio was in 1967.

Since the firm no longer exists, it is unlikely that its old files do.

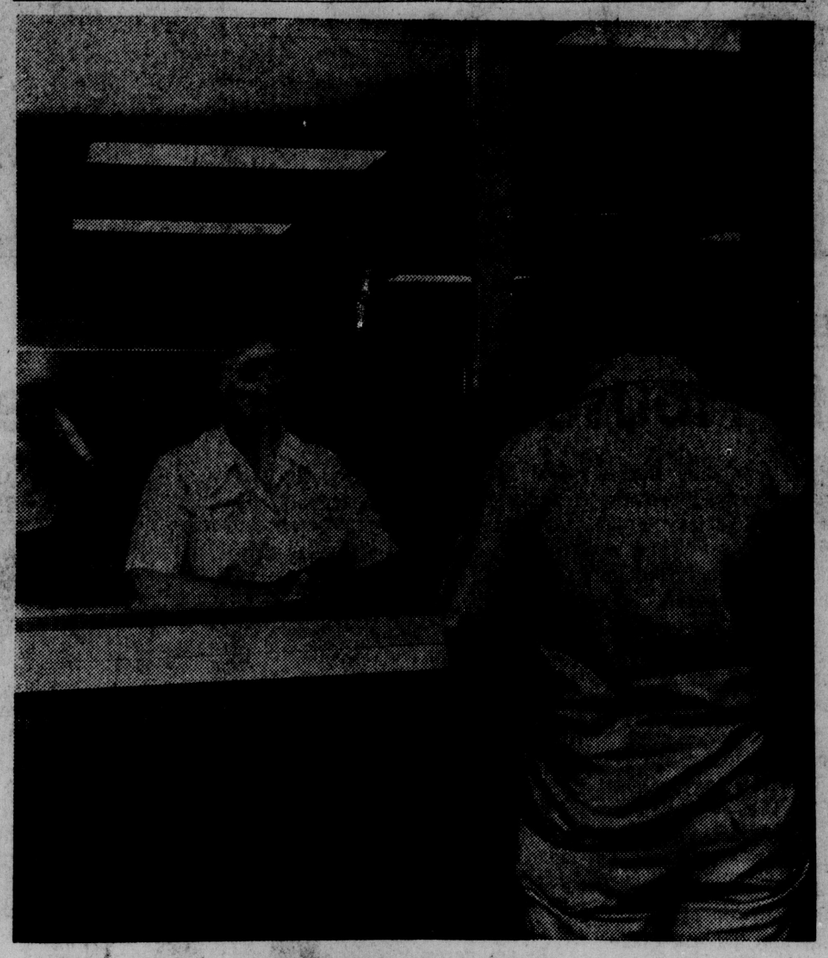
I sent in $7.50 for a subscription I wanted to give my daughter for "Mrs. Laub's Daytime Serial Newsletter." That was last December.

My daughter still hasn't received her subscription. I would like to get a refund but no longer have the address.—Mrs. M.C., Pomona

We confess total ignorance of Mrs. Laub's etcetera. When we told you we had been unable to find the address, you suggested readers might know it.

Our only clue is that your check was cashed in San Francisco.



OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Communications Officers P. E. Meyers talks from behind a pane of protective glass to a customer at the new Claremont police station which opened for business Monday on Bonita Avenue. Papers can be passed back and forth through a separation in the panes. Claremont voters in October 1971 supported a $700,000 bond issue to erect the 10,000-square-foot facility on the site of the old city yards.

Neighborhood parade is shaping up again

POMONA — Their favorite holiday, the Fourth of July, has rolled around again and for the ninth consecutive year the Stanley Brooks family of 371 Ivy Court will celebrate with a neighborhood parade.

This year's parade, according to 12-year-old Steve Brooks, will start at 11 a.m. Thursday. Approximately 50 neighborhood kids will decorate their bikes for the event. Two men in the neighborhood are building a float in their garage.

"Every year the float is a surprise," said Steve.

The line of march will begin at the Brooks' house, proceed north on Dawn View Avenue, west on Mark Way, north on Robin Way, west on Fuego Avenue, south on Falcon Street, east on French Lane and north on Dawn View, returning to Ivy Court.

Thursday night, Steve said, there'll be a neighborhood dinner on Ivy Court, a cul-de-sac.

Steve, his parents and two brothers, Doug, 17, and Dale, 13, have been involved in planning the Fourth of July neighborhood parade each year since 1965.

For Wes Brooks, 10, it's the only way he has ever seen the Independence Day holiday celebrated.

Claremont resigns from the freeway association

CLAREMONT — The City Council has decided it doesn't want to be a member of the Foothill Freeway Association during the 1974-75 fiscal year.

During a budget session Tuesday night, Councilwoman Claire McDonald suggested that the council withhold the $50 payment to the association, and added, "For the next 10 years, we might not need to be in that group."

Mayor Bertye Smith said that the freeway is a matter of financing, and that the association keeps the city abreast of any progress in getting freeway funds.

Newly sworn-in Councilwoman Eleanor Cohen, who in 1970 was vice chairman of the city Environmental Resources Task Force which urged opposing extension of the freeway through Claremont, said she would be happy to drop the membership.

Only Councilman Frank Hungerford favored staying in the association.

P-B to start series on stamp collecting

There are more than 25 million Americans currently collecting stamps and millions more "on the verge."

Many times, lack of proper instruction is the reason people don't get started or become frustrated and drop the hobby after a few months.

How do you start a stamp collection?

Starting Monday the Progress-Bulletin will publish a 10-part series aimed at answering that question. The series is written for the beginner in a simple matter-of-fact approach by veteran newsmen Hubbard Keavy and Erne Bennett.

How to Start Collecting Stamps covers all the fascinating areas of stamps and gives the beginner the information to enter the hobby intelligently.

The series covers such areas as plate blocks, first-day covers, stamp quality, oddities, fakes, origin of U.S. stamps and stamps as investments.

Planning Commission rejects dance hall

POMONA — A proposal to open a dance hall for young adults at 1475 W. Mission Blvd. has been rejected by a tie vote.

Myron P. Jones, the applicant, had sought approval from the Pomona Planning Commission for a conditional use permit. He proposed opening a center for persons 18 and older, with no alcoholic beverages being allowed or served on the premises.

He planned to use a structure previously occupied by the "Playmate," a topless bar. Jones prpposed to refurbish the structure to meet city requirements.

Those planners favoring the operation were Stan Kawa, John Nabarette and Anne Gustaveson. Opposed were J. Romo, E. J. Gaulding and Clyde Stephens.

Since the motion failed to pass, the applicant may appeal to the City Council.

In other matters, the planners approved a new conditional use permit which allows the First Baptist Church to continue using five commercial coaches for elementary and Sunday school classrooms for another six months. These have been on the church parking lot since July, 1972.

DIAMOND BAR — Diamond Bar-Walnut Branch YMCA will sponsor a junior high school dance Saturday from 8 to 11:30 p.m. at Lorbeer Junior High School.

It is open to all seventh-eighth and ninth graders in the Walnut-Diamond Bar area.

The Y teen activity calendar lists five events for July. They are:

— A Teen Center opening July 6, from 7:30 to 11 p.m. with ping pong, "air" hockey, stereo, games and free popcorn. Those in grades nine through 12 are invited.

— A beach trip July 9, for junior high school girls. They will leave at 1:15 p.m. and return at 7 p.m. They will spend the day at Newport Beach. Cost is $1.50 for members and $1.75 for non-members.

— A dance July 10, for high school students. It will be held at Walnut High School from 8 to 11:30 p.m. Cost will be $1 for members and $1.25 for non-members.

— A bicycle trip July 11, by van to Lytle Creek, cycling home.

— A Surf South Carvan, July 12-14. They will leave at 3 p.m. July 12, and return at 8 p.m. on July 14. Cost will be $11.50 for members and $12.50 for nonmembers.

Those wishing to participate are urged to sign up early at the "Y" office, 400 S. Brea Canyon Road. The office telephone number is 595-5015. Mick Gillan is director.

4 programs open for registration

Registrations still are being accepted in four summer job training programs offered by the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program (ROP).

The programs with openings are restaurant occupations, heavy equipment maintenance, auto-tronics and child care.

Anyone interested in enrolling may call 626-3538.

ROP is part of the public school system and is operated jointly by Pomona, Ontario, Chino, Claremont and La Verne school districts.

Opinion

Are leaks worse than deception?

"This matter of "leaks" needs more thoughtful discussion than it has been getting.

Assume the worst: that anybody in government who leak information to the press must have an ax to grind or enemy to get; that reporters are more eager for a scoop ro editors more interested in getting a jump on the competition than they are in exercising responsible judgment; that disclosure of government secrets harms the United States.

Even assuming the worst—and it is assuming much more than is warranted by any existing body of evidence—the sad fact remains that neither the news media nor the American public could get along without leaks, the way the game of government has been played in this democracy the past few administrations.

The current controversy centers on what presidential speechwriter Patrick J. Buchanan has called systematic leaks from "weasels in the hen house" of the House Judiciary Committee, constituting "nameless, faceless character assassination" of the President, the secretary of state and other officials.

The recent leaks naming the President have been variations on the old Watergate theme of "What did he know and when did he know it?" Those concerning Secretary of State Henry Kissinger allege that in 1969 when he was President Nixon's chief national security advisor, he either initiated, or at least permitted if not approved, wire taps on 13 members of his staff and four reporters in an attempt to trace the source of certain "national security" leaks.

Kissinger, as everyone knows, stunned the nation by threatening to resign if his name was not cleared. His vociferous defense of himself, against the background of his brilliant services to the nation, did more than anything in a long time to give leaks a bad name.

Senators quickly lined up in support of the secretary. The man in the street asked: Who is out to get Kissinger? Or is this a flank attack through him against Nixon?

Hardly anybody stopped to think about the original leak which had occasioned the wire tap surveillance—the secret bombing of Cambodia.

For a full year, without the knowledge or consent of the American people or Congress, the President sent American B-52s on thousands of bombing raids against Viet Cong or North Vietnamese targets in Cambodia, all the while claiming to be respecting that country's neutrality.

If this information had not been leaked by a person or persons still unknown who had access to top-level government strategy, would the American people have ever learned about it? Would the administration ever have admitted the truth, as it finally did four years later?

Whether he initiated or whether he reluctantly went along with the wire taps, Henry Kissinger was a party to this deception of the public. Americans have a right to know this about the man who is now their secretary of state — and they would not know it had someone not leaked it to them.

Of course, it may be that most people don't really want to know as much about their government as the press thinks they ought to know. The utter absence of repercussions over the Cambodian bombing strongly suggests that this is so.

In that case, if the saying is true that people get the kind of government they deserve, then Americans have got theirs.

Committees

You won't get much of an argument against the need for informed public advice for federal agencies dealing with a wide variety of public problems and needs. But what has happened along that line is ridiculous.

The Library of Congress Research Service has issued a 995 page index of federal advisory committees—1,439 of them, with 24,500 private members, and staffed and operated by 4400 government employees at a cost of many tens of millions of dollars a year.

What do the committees advise about? Well, without denigrating any of them, the subjects run the gamut—hoof and mouth disease, peanuts, anthropology, plant variety protection, laxatives, and on and on. There's even a women's Advisory Committee on Aviation.

Especially considering the fact that these committees—noble in motive as they may be—do offer opportunities for rather effective lobbying free of most controls, perhaps we've gone a bit far, in the wrong direction, in providing expert advice for government.

White House leaked info to reporter

WASHINGTON — The White House howls about news leaks have moved us to relate for the first time how those same horrified gentlemen have tried to use our column to leak unfavorable stories against their political foes.

First, the White House tried to establish a direct pipeline into our office. This was shut down after our exposes of the Nixon Administration landed us on the White House "enemies list."

Thereafter, the President's men used indirect approaches to plant stories with us, once routing information through the Virgin Islands.

Here are the details:

Early in 1969, President Nixon's political tutor, the late Murray Chotiner, called on us to say that the new President wanted friendly relations and that the resources of the White House would be available to us for hard-to-get information.

We don't know whether Nixon himself was a party to this arrangement. but ex-White House aide Clark Mollenhoff has told us that he learned from the President's former staff chief, H.R. Haldeman, of Chotiner's secret relationship with our office.

Through the Chotiner channel, we received only half-a-dozen stories, including the Justice Department's file on the tax investigation of George Wallace and his brother, Gerald. This was at a time when the White House feared the Alabama governor would run for President as an independent in 1972 and drain votes away from Nixon.

We always double-checked the White House leads and seldom gave the facts the emphasis Chotiner wanted. When we also started publishing Nixon scandals, the olive branch was withdrawn and the Chotiner leak dried up. But we learned that the White House still kept trying to plant stories with us indirectly. We have obtained the confidential White House file, for example, on Sen. George McGovern's campaign treasurer, Henry Kimelman. The file shows how the White House tried to slip us derogatory information about Kimelman.

On May 12, 1972, presidential aide W. Richard Howard wrote to a White House colleague, Fred Fielding, alleging that Kimelman "was nearly indicted last year because he is a liquor importer in the Virgin Islands and apparently he really rakes off the profits."

The allegation, it turned out later, was erroneous. But the memo continued: "We believe there must be material at Justice and Interior on this sleezy character that we would like to obtain through your fantastic sources.

"We could, of course, control the release of this material but need your help in getting what apparently is some pretty good stuff." The memo was stamped "Confidential-Eyes Only."

Not long afterward, the White House received a memo from Interior Secretary Rogers Morton's executive assistant, Bob Hitt. This one was stamped "Very Confidential-Eyes Only."

Hitt provided a rundown on Kimelman, telling about an investigation into alleged irregularities but concluding: "The investigation turned up nothing sinister that I am aware of."

By an interesting coincidence, we received a communication about this time from William N. Greer of the Virgin Islands. He enclosed a two-page summary of allegations against Kimelman, which we investigated but could not stubstantiate.

We were startled to find this letter in the White House's confidential Kimelman file. It was accompanied by a letter from Greer's wife to White House aide Harry Dent. "Enclosed herewith," wrote Nellie Greer, "is a copy of information sent by my husband to Jack Anderson.

We have learned that Greer, a former U.S. marshal, is a security specialist who does undercover work for commercial firms in the Virgin Islands. His wife in 1972 was a minor Republican appointee working in the Government House.

Reached in the Virgin Islands, Greer denied that the White House had instigated his letter to us. He had obtained the detailed accusations against Kimelman, said Greer, from local law enforcement agencies.

The Kimelman file shows that several Watergate figures—ex-Attorney General John Mitchell, ex-White House counsel John Dean, ex-presidential aide Charles Colson and a few others—tried to dig up dirt on Kimelman.

The results can be summed up in a June 5, 1972, memo from Dean to Howard. "To date," wrote Dean, "we have been unable to come up with any material on Kimelman that might be used to illustrate the true nature of the money man in McGovern's life."

ZIEGLER'S FISH: A year ago, we revealed that the National Aquarium was forced to spend 10 per cent of its meager budget to maintain fish tanks for senators, representatives and other pampered poohbahs. Our story shortly put an end to the government's door-to-door guppy service.

There is, however, one lone fish fancier holding out. The President's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, has stubbornly refused to give up his Bleeding Heart Tetras.

Rumor has it that Ziegler gains great inspiration from his fish. He is about as communicative as his finny friends.

SENATE WHISPERS: There have been whispers in the Senate cloakroom that, if too many embarrassing tapes are subpoenaed at an impeachment trial, the President may release some of his taped conversations with individual senators.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., acknowledged that he could be hurt by the release of his private talks with the President, because he probably used "the most embarrassing language" of any senator on the White House tapes.

If his conversations were released, said the candid Goldwater, "I would be sorely tempted — although I would try to resist I to vote (against the White House) on that basis alone. '

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., said he remembered the "high points but not the low points" of his meetings with the President. If embarrassing conversations were made public, said the senator, "we'd have to say he (the President) lost stature in our sight.

Most senators agreed with Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, who said the release of presidential senatorial tapes "would push senators over to the other side."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The House impeachment staff still is relying upon the investigations of others to build the case against President Nixon. House investigators haven't yet gotten around themselves to interviewing some of the key Watergate figures. The staff has placed great stress upon the White House tapes, including those President Nixon is still refusing to hand over. Some committee members contend the staff is counting, foolishly, on the President to hang himself . . . Justice Department specialists are worried about computer fraud. Embezzlers with a mastery of computers are able to cheat banks and businesses by manipulating the right buttons. The crime is difficult to trace and to prove through the maze of tangled computer tapes. . .

THE PRESS AND THE PRESIDENCY

'Not hounds chasing the hare'

(Editor's Note: Richard C. Wald, vice president of NCB news, recently circulated a memo among his news executive — not the reportorial staff — which warned that coverage of President Nixon's impeachment difficulties will provide a severe test of news judgment and balance. The memo, reprinted below, originally appeared in Variety.)

We are about to embark on the most important story this division has ever covered. It may be the most important story of the century.

Before us there stretches the certainty of a redistribution of presidential power, no matter what the outcome of the process that begins with the deliberations of the Judiciary Committee. The Imperial Presidency is over, for a time at least. No president has given up so much, so visibly, ever. And no period of our history has ever involved so many of us in the fabric of how we are governed.

It is the biggest event of our times and we were drawn into news because we wanted to deal with history, with events greater than ourselves, with the issues and the men that are important.

But therein lies a problem that worries me. We tend at times like this to get manic, to fall into that form of excitement that sustains us in the small hours of an election morning and makes the problems seem worthwhile. The deadline pressure and the story carry us along, unthinking, on a crest of activity.

I do not want us to become part of the story. We are not hounds chasing the hare. The excitement is in the event, not in us. What begins in journalistic energy must not end in predicting, or reaching or guessing.

This is an awful time, and I mean that it should fill us with awe. A great, wheeling tragedy is being played out before us and I do not want to anticipate its movements. I want to report each day as it happens, record each significant moment, but I do not want to push it along. There is no specific remedy I can give you. There is no set of rules handy for contingencies such as this. Just be aware of the problems, be aware of your own tendencies. There is no glee in this. It will bring good to none.

And if we do not get caught up in the moment, history will hold us better.

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

As others see it . . . letters

Displaying Christian grace

For some time now I have been planning to send in a letter indicating my appreciation for the difficult job which is handled by the person who does the Saturday religion pages.

It has come to my attention that the religion editor's job is not the most sought after on a newspaper and, in fact, is an almost dreaded assignment. The reason being that sometimes they find that those persons who seek publicity for church affairs are difficult to deal with, even rude, and at times belligerent.

I have observed that some religion editors are highly disillusioned about churches after being on that assignment for a few years. As reported to me, both clergy and laity have been guilty of abrasiveness.

I, for one, one would to express appreciation to the religion editor and the Progress-Bulletin for donating space for announcing special meetings or events at the church which I attend.

I have discovered that even if an error creeps in, that it isn't the end of the world and will soon be forgotten. It seems that on occasion the religion editor has to display much more Christian grace than those who should exemplify it. — Evelyn Hollinger, La Verne.

Gossip for today

Today, frustration is a way of life and everybody and his brother is getting into the act. One fellow I know is so upset and disillusioned with what is happening in the United States that, while he isn't quite ready to give the country back to the Indians, at least he is willing to give them back the buffaloes.

Others turn to eating and drinking in order to forget their sorrows. Last year the candy consumption in the U.S. rose to 18.7 pounds per person; and over the past 10 years the per capita consumption of alcohol increased 26 per cent.

If you are interested in more on the subject of damnable frustration, how about filling up with gasoline at the station where a sign reads: "LAST GAS FOR 25 MILES", and then finding that you could have bought it for 4 cents a gallon less at a new station 2 miles on down the road?

Or from a mere male's standpoint consider this: —If a man says something nice about a Women's Libber he is accused of being condescending. If he says something derogatory, he's a male chauvinist pig.

Then there's that frustrating moment you suffer when, after patriotically doing your bit to help conserve on electricity, you pick up your paper and read that the lights are going on again all over Las Vegas.

RAY CROMLEY

Are we overlooking real Soviet threat?

WASHINGTON — A friend who advises the Defense Department on intelligence gathering and in advanced military trends is despondent.

He has a gut feeling the frenetic Russian strategic nuclear buildup may be a diversion. The aim may be, he says, to frighten us so badly we will concentrate singlemindedly on intercontinental weapons and overspend in this department. This would leave the U.S. vulnerable around the world to efficiently-fought local wars in which Soviet clients would be supplied multi-tons of advanced Soviet conventional weapons.

Make no mistake about it. The Soviet intercontinental missile reasearch and development program is real and dangerous. If both the U.S. and Russia continue their programs at their present pace, Soviet nuclear capacity will be a threat to U.S. security in the 1980s. But my source is convinced the Kremlin, in its own imperialist interests, is not aiming at nuclear war or the chance of nuclear war which could leave the USSR devastated.

He believes current evidence makes clear that Leonid Brazhnev and his associates are bent on expanding the Soviet sphere of domination indirectly through revolutionaries, through military action by pro-Soviet states and through terror, that is, the fear of what the Soviet Union might do.

The convulsive expansion of Soviet nuclear research and development in intercontinental missiles and in submarines provides the terror sufficient to send shivers through all major Western capitals.

Not so well publicized is evidence that the Kremlin, while building the ICBM threat, is moving even more rapidly and on a broader scale in the development of tactical conventional weapons in a quality and in quantities we may not be able to match because we have funneled such a heavy percentage of our dollars into the nuclear race.

The October Israeli-Arab war was an eye opener. The Russian weapons supplied to the Egyptians and Syrians in that fighting were in a remarkable number of instances superior to those given the North Vietnamese only a short time before. In important respects, some were superior to U.S. equivalent .

My source is convinced this is just the beginning. The breadth and scope of the new developments in air and tank defense, infantry equipment and weapons and in tactical battlefield bridging was not only surprising, but, in some instances, breathtaking, not primarily because of scientific advances but rather because of the ingenuity and simplicity of the improvements. Techniques long known to American technical men were used but applied in unique, effective ways.

In all, the evidence was clear to those who would see that the Soviet Union has set forth on an improvement of its conventional arms that promises great potential effectiveness for Russian-supplied revolutionaries and for the Kremlin-assisted armies of selected pro-Soviet regimes in Asia, Latin America, Africa or Europe.

This threat may be the major free world danger for the next decade.

W. Virginia group names president

MONTCLAIR — A Montclair resident, George V. Ripley, was elected president of the West Virginia State Society at the organization's recent annual picnic in Bonelli Park.

The West Virginia State Society was organized about 50 years ago by former residents of West Virginia and now has approximately 900 members, according to Ripley. Its one function is an annual picnic for Southern Californians from West Virginia.

Ripley is retired and resides at 518 San Bernardino Ave. He moved to California in 1957 from Wheeling, W.V.

Photographer wins 4th place

POMONA — Dennis Bittikofer, 29, a dog groomer, has won fourth place in a photo contest sponsored by Dog's magazine, a national trade monthly.

Bittikofer is the owner of Elegant Grooming, a dog-grooming business at 424 W. Monterey Ave. The photograph which won fourth place was entered on Feb. 13. It was a picture of Bittikofer's German shepherd.

Forest job course opens

The program is open to people of all ages, and it could involve working as little as one day a month on a non-paying basis.

An orientation meeting will be held Saturday at Pasadena City College, Room 122R, at 9 a.m. Selection, training and skills will determine work assignments.

Volunteers are needed to help with information services at ranger stations and to assist with fire prevention and park maintenance.

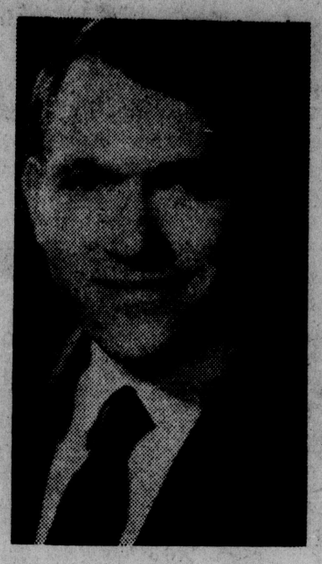
Overstreet joins company

POMONA — Craig A. Overstreet, 25, has joined the Lubrizol Corp., as a sales engineer in the company's Whittier office.

Overstreet holds a B.S. degree in industrial technology from the Cal State Long Beach. He and his wife, Sandra, live at 294 Ford Ave.

Frank Buck plans seminar

SAN DIMAS — Frank Buck, an economics consultant, will conduct a seminar on the topic "Economics of Inflation" Tuesday July 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the reading room of the San Dimas Library.



PHILLIP W. BLACKBURN of Hacienda Heights has been promoted to assistant vice president for loans at the Bank of America's office at Seventh and Flower streets in Los Angeles. He joined the firm in 1969 and had served as loan officer at the San Gabriel Valley regional headquarters. He and his wife, Mary, have two children.

Grant helps emergency medical aid

Covina and West Covina will be able to improve their emergency medical services, thanks to a portion of a $2.1 million federal grant awarded to Los Angeles County.

Sen. Alan Cranston announced that California is receiving $3.7 million under a new $17 million federal program to improve emergency services. The grants are the first to be made under the Emergency Medical Services by the Department of Health, Systems Act of 1973.

The grants to California, of which the largest amount is going to Los Angeles County, Education and Welfare.

Cranston said the county will use the money to extend its paramedic program to 11 cities not now covered by the services, including Covina and West Covina.

He added the services "will help save many thousands of lives across the country by bringing fast, sure medical care to the scene of an accident or emergency, and by improving hospital emergency rooms."

A spokesman for Supervisor Pete Schabarum said Covina will receive $79,000 and West Covina $93,000 under the program. Monies are for equipment and salaries for paramedics, he added.

Chinese worried by Nixon's visit to Soviet

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor

HONG KONG (UPI) — China is worried about President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union.

There has been no public comment so far from Peking on the president's new "journey for peace." But Chinese officials have expressed deep concern in private talks with diplomats based in Peking and to visitors to the capital.

The only bright spot the Chinese see, according to Peking-based diplomatic sources, is the fact that Nixon is going to Moscow with a new agreement that strengthens the unity of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Publicly, the Chinese scoff at the idea of American-Soviet detente. They say this is only a facade aimed at covering up the "contention for global hegemony" between the two "superpowers".

"The two superpowers talk superficially about detente and sometimes reach agreement on some things," a recent article in the Chinese Communist Party newspaper People's Daily said.

"But at the bottom their focus is on contention. The agreements are temporary; the detente is a deceit. The contention is absolute and irreconcilable."

"This is purely wishful thinking on the part of the Chinese," said one Western diplomat who has sat in on meetings with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai when such matters were discussed privately.

Any improvement of relations between the Soviet Union and the United States or the NATO nations does not augur well for China, particularly when it results in a reduction of military tension in Europe.

The Chinese are fearful that lessening of tension in Europe gives the Soviet Union an opportunity to bring more pressure to bear along the disputed Sino-Soviet border, where Peking claims more than a million Soviet troops already are massed.

Battery hooked up to brain may make cripple function

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "When we came in the other morning he was singing," said the amazed father of an 18-year-old youth whose brain now works with a dry-cell battery.

Mark Bevins, 18, could barely talk or move the past several years until doctors recently implanted electrodes in his brain and hooked them up to a battery that stimulates the brain.

"He held a glass of ice tea and drank through a straw for the first time in three years," said his excited father, Jake Bevins, a Tulare, Calif., car salesman.

"He's been crippled seven years but the other day he was talking his head off where before he could hardly get any words out.

"He'd stored it all in his head and when he could finally talk, he really cut loose. He was telling his hospital roommate all about our community, about the things he heard on the radio. He could hardly stop."

In a rare operation at the University of California Medical Center, doctors implanted two electrodes in Mark's cerebellum, then ran wires under his skin through his chest. The wires were attached to a battery and regulator worn on a belt.

"Those nerves in his cerebellum have been laying dormant," said Bevins. His son has been suffering since childhood from a rare condition whose crippling impact was not felt until about 10 years ago.

"There's no name for it," said Bevins. "Even the doctors don't have a name for it. They know what it's doing to him, but they don't know what's causing it."

The battery send electrical impulses to the cerebellum, he says, stimulating those dormant nerves so they'll work again. When his brain tells him to do something, they nerves respond."

Bevins and his wife are still learning how to work the regulator. It isn't certain how much voltage is proper and it may take months of experimentation.

"We have to unhook the battery for 15 minutes each hour, but yesterday he seemed to remain the same when we disconnected it," he said.

"All we can do is hope and pray," says Bevins. "But after 11 years of searching we think we've found something that looks hopeful.

Neither is it certain whether the experiment will allow Mark's brain to function normally.

"You couldn't know the feeling of having a son and now being able to talk to him. It's like a whole new world. He could reach up and grab my finger."

Doctors' ranks divided

AMA joins government in shaping watchdog program

CHICAGO (UPI) — After two years of indecision, the American Medical Association has decided to help the government shape a controversial doctors' watchdog program rather than push for its repeal.

The AMA's policy-making House of Delegates, adopted the stand on the long-simmering issue by a vote of 185 to 57 without the floor fight expected by AMA leaders.

The program, known as PSRO for professional standards review organization, calls for the establishment of 200 groups of doctors across the nation by 1976 to monitor the quality and costs of medical care administered under federal health programs. The first was established in Utah. Critics charged PSROs would stifle innovative approaches to medicine, lead to "cookbook" medicine, and threaten the confidentiality of patient records. Other doctors, however, see PSROs as a way to raise the standards of medicine practiced by some physicians.

The House of Delegates, which represents AMA's 160,000 members, agreed with a committee recommendation that it would be "unwise to commit the resources of the association to an inflexible course of seeking repeal." The group's board of trustees predicted such an effort would fail anyway.

Instead, the position adopted by the house is to push for construcive amendments to the law "with particular effort directed at amending those sections of the law which present potential dangers in the areas of confidentiality, malpractice, development of norms, quality of care and the authority of the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare."

The stand, however, said that if a continuing evaluation of the program reveals it does affect the quality of health care, or conflict with AMA policy, the organization would be directed to use all legal and legislative means to rectify such shortcomings.

Dr. Malcolm Todd, who was inaugurated as president of the AMA Wednesday evening, said the action "gives us the direction that is necessary in the interests of quality medical care ..."

In Washington, Dr. Charles S. Edwards, assistant HEW secretary, applauded the stand taken by the AMA and said organized medicine now will be able to work closely with the government in shaping a quality assurance program based on the concept of peer review that truly represents the best interests of both the physician and his patient."

"The new, definitive policy demonstrates the firm commitment of the leaders of American medicine to the delivery of the highest quality medical care to the American public," he said in a statement.

The AMA had been criticized for straddling on the PSRO issue and many doctors said they did not know what the organization's position was.

In 1972, the house adopted a position that the AMA should take a dominant role of leadership in the program. Last June, the house said repeal of PSRO might eventually be required and last fall it said the best interests of the public would be served by repeal.

Soviet study shows family woes push women to crime

MOSCOW (UPI) — The typical Soviet woman criminal is a mother, between 30 and 50 years old, who has little formal education but a lot of family troubles.

These troubles —disappointment in love, illicit affairs, drunken husbands —are usually what drive her into a life of crime, according to a woman researcher who has made a study of crime among women.

Literaturnaya Gazeta, the weekly newspaper of the Writers Union, reported these findings and expressed concern that women living in a Communist society could sink to a life of crime for such purely personal motives.

"It seemed that the extensive involvement of modern woman in public production, her equal participation in the public and political life of the country and the abolition of the offensive economic basis of bourgeois marriage would have protected our women from serious offenses for personal motives," the newspaper said.

"The woman is still too strongly oriented to the family. Some portion of our women has not yet molded the new values which correspond to the new social standing of the once weak sex."

The survey of women's crime, through interviews with inmates, was made by V.A. Serebryakova, a lawyer and senior researcher for the Institute for the Study of the Causes and Prevention of Crime.

She found that most women criminals are poorly educated divorcees and more than one-third have no job specialty.

The researcher cited a number of case histories:

—A woman in Moscow, after 21 years of a happy marriage, was abandoned by her husband in favor of another woman. She started drinking and began committing petty thefts at the place where she worked.

—A woman accountant at a state farm fell in love with a married man who needed money and began slipping him rubles from the state farm cash box.

—A young girl from a rural village, spurned by the man she expected to marry, started stealing to try to get enough money for a train ticket to go see him.

All these women, Literaturnaya Gazeta concluded, lacked the "moral resistance" to face up to misfortune because they were too oriented to family life.

"When you hear that girls should not necessarily...enter university, this talk should be greeted with attention," the newspaper said. "The contemporary woman needs a well-settled business life as much as a good private life."

The doctor comments

Phantom limbs are a medical mystery

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Possibly you can help with my problem of "phantom toes." These attacks occur from three weeks to three months apart, and last from 8 to 24 hours. My missing toes feel as though someone has given them an electric shock. These shocks last from a split second up to a full second or two, and my stump often jerks upward convulsively. This is very distressing, although not really painful.

My left leg was amputated in 1924 in the middle of the thigh. I have been most active on an artificial leg.

I'm 68, five-feet-ten and have weighed 136 to 139 pounds for many years. In general I'm in excellent health.

The various doctors I have consulted suggest aspirin for my phantom toes as an alternative to an operation. They say an operation on the stump is rather uncertain of success. I'm hoping you may have some helpful recommendation for me.

DEAR READER — The problem of the "phantom limb" is really a medical mystery. In most cases the amputee has the sensation immediately after surgery, but it can occur years later. He may have the sensation of still having the complete limb that has been cut off. This can lead to difficulties. If he still has the sensation of the original leg, and gets out of bed quickly, stepping on the phantom leg, he will fall. If it is the arm that has been amputated he may reach out with the phantom hand and nothing happens.

As time goes on the phantom leg may shrink into the stump or disappear. In other instances the leg may disappear, but the foot may remain, floating in the air so to speak. The same thing can happen to the hand in relation to the arm. In your case I take it that you feel the presence of your toes, but not the missing leg.

Obviously the sensation is transmitted some way through the nerves. There seem to be sensitive spots (trigger areas) that, when pressed, make the limb or the sensations appear. There are a variety of sensations reported, including tingling (the most common) and sensations of hot and cold.

No one has been successful in defining the anatomy of the pain. It is not from irritated cut nerve ends. Surgery has been tried, even by snipping off the roots of nerves at the spinal cord, without success.

Because of the lack of correlation of the pain with anatomy, some have thought the problem was related to psychological factors. While emotional upsets can trigger an episode, it just isn't that simple. You can inject the nerve areas and provide relief. One proof of the anatomic basis versus just "nerves" is that if you do not inject the right nerve areas or trigger points, there will be no relief. In general for patients with severe problems, efforts should be made toward treatment with injections of demonstrated trigger areas that set off the reaction of nerves to that area. This sometimes gives relief for many months and occasionally leads to complete remission.

You may not need the injections since your sensations are usually short-lived and you have long periods of freedom from your phantom toes. If your problem progresses, though, your doctor may want to try local nerve blocks to see if he can help relieve the symptoms.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on hiatal hernia, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Hiatal Hernia" booklet.

Expo '74 given gambling permit

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Expo '74 Wednesday was granted a gambling permit for the duration of the environmental fair.

The action was taken by the Washington State Gambling Commission, which had issued a temporary permit prior to the opening May 4.

The permit allowed the corporation to hire Nequin Corp. to run the amusement area for the fair. Under the license, however, Expo will take over some 166 amusement games of chance and skill on the Expo site.

Expo last month said it was investigating possible ties between the Nequin Corp. and a firm convicted of interstate racketeering. However, Expo officials have not disclosed what, if anything, that investigation has turned up.

Actress leaves estate of $400,000 in will

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — The will od the late actress Agnes Moorehead was filed in Muskingum County Probate Court here recently, showing total assets of nearly $400,000 in Ohio.

The will, which did not set a total assets figure, had been filed Aug. 23, 1973, by the actress who died at the age of 67 in the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., last May 30.

She left her 320-acre farm home here, including a $100,000 house, to John Brown University, Siloam Spring, Ark., along with Bibles and Biblical materials. The farm was to be a meorial to her parents, the late Rev. and Mrs. John Moorehead.

Muskingum College, where she graduated in 1923, was given $25,000 for the establishment of an Agnes Moorehead Scholarship Fund. She also left the college one-half of her manuscripts and theatrical materials.

The other half of the scripts and theatrical material was given to the University of Wisconsin, where she obtained her masters degree.

Her Beverly Hills, Calif., home was willed to a friend, Franklin Rohner, who was named trustee of the estate.

The sum od $5,000 was willed to each of two personal employes, Fred Jones and Olivia Garland, and a similar sum to tte Motion Picture County Home and Hospital, the New York Gospel Mission and the Pacific Garden Mission. The Radio Bible Class, Grand Rapids, Mich., was to receive $2,500.

Water glasses hard to keep

By ERMA BOMBECK

You know what I'm going to do after the kids are grown?

I'm going to get up early one morning, dress in something chick, sweep majestically into a department store and demand in a loud, clear voice, "I want eight water glasses that match . . . NOT PLASTIC!"

I guess of all the tackiness of child-raising, the odds and ends of glasses have bothered me the most. The sofa draped in plastic, I lived with. The car seats covered in chenile, I lived with. The toilet seat with the arms and the picture of the duck on the back, I adjusted to. The oilcloth that often smelled better than what I was serving, I accepted. The little gates at the stairways that the kid could unlock but I fumbled with for ten minutes before climing over the top, I became reconciled. But the first time I was hosting a get-acquainted tea for the neighbors and my toddler came through drinking milk out of an Old Fashioned glass, I knew the honeymoon was over.

During the toddler years, we broke on the average of three glasses a week, most of which were bonus premiums from buying gas. When the children started doing dishes, we couldn't keep ahead of it. They were braking more glasses than we were buying gas. One night my husband sat down and figured out that only a car trip to Australia and back could possibly give us the glasses we needed to set a complete table.

At dinner one evening when my mother hoisted a glass to her mouth and caught her lip in a mayonnaise jar ridge, she said annoyed, "How can one family break so many glasses? Why aren't you careful? Why, I still have my B.C. glasses," she said proudly.

"You mean the comic strip ones offered at a gas station a couple of years ago?"

"No," I said irritably. "She means the ones before The Birth in Bethlehem."

Some people just seem to hang onto glasses. But not at our house. I watched one of the children in one day alone use a cup to brush his teeth, rinse it, fill it full of juice, wash it, plant a dandelion in it, empty it, put Kool-Aid in it, drink it and catch a lightning but in it.

Just as I was thinking how durable it was, he came to me and said, "Hey, this cup has a chip in it."

I couldn't believe it. The cup was styrofoam.

Mental cases often respond to animals

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: A distant relative now living with us has a very serious mental problem, and is being treated, of course, by a physician. The only thing she has ever stated she wanted from us since living here is a puppy. My husband feels this might be too much responsibility for her, and that probably she would change her mind once we went to the trouble to get a puppy for her anyway. I would like to give it a try in spite of the risk on the basis that she talks very little to anyone, including us, and has never asked for anything before. So it must be important to her. Her doctor agrees she can have it as far as he's concerned. What do you think? — B. F.

Dear B. F.: It's very possible you may have to ssume some of the responsibility for puppy care, at least initially though this should prove more than worth the effort. Reports indicate mental patients often respond to an affectionate puppy or dog when they will not respond at all to other humans or even to intensive medical treatment.

Since she has already expressed a desire for a puppy, the chances of this being a beneficial relationship for both patient and pup would be extremely high, and any risk involved comparatively low.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Big Al is not your run-of-the-mill runty parakeet. He's plenty hefty. Hes no problem except he doesnt have many feathers over the belly and it looks kind of funny when you turn him upside down. Is there something I can do about this that's pretty cheap? — N. D.

Dear N. D.: The cheapest "cure" is to leave Big Al right side up. Who's to see his bare belly then? A far better answer, though, would be to have him checked out by a local bird-oriented veterinarian to determine just what his problem is. It could be it's simply a matter of being too big, (around the middle that is.) It's normal for only a few contour feathers to cover the abdomen. When this area enlarges, sufficient skin tension may occur to cause the feathers to separate and expose the skin. If Big Al's abdominal enlargement is actually adipository then a diet could cure his bare belly and possibly prevent other problems.

Bridge

Defense spells the difference

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Some of the best plays in bridge look so easy that no one realizes how difficult they really are. Here is one that helped decide an important team match.

The bidding and play of the first three tricks was the same at both tables. South won the first trick with the queen of hearts, led a diamond to dummy's king and a spade back to his queen and West's king.

Opening lead—♥ 2

At the first table West led the king of hearts, South took his ace right away and started to run diamonds. East showed out on this lead so South could only cash his three top diamonds. He needed several spade tricks for his contract. So he proceeded to lead his last spade, finesse dummy's 10 and ended up with his contract plus an overtrick.

At the other table West had taken the trouble to listen to the bidding. He was sure that South was counting on five diamond tricks and therefore West led back the eight of spades at trick four. South promptly refused the spade finesse. He thought his contract was safe. Then he came to his and with the ace of hearts and had to go down two when the diamonds failed to break.

She's in love with man, 21

By JEAN ADAMS

FIVE YEARS: (Q.) I am not just an ordinary 16-year-old girl. I am president of the pep club, manager of the ski team, and have good grades. I am told that I am very mature for my age.

I also like Sim very much, but he is 21 and my mother says he is too old for me. I do not fight her, but I would really like to go out with Sim. What do you think? Discouraged in Maine

(A.) If you were 21 and Sim were 26, I would say go ahead and date him. And I believe your mother would too. But right now I feel that there is too much of a gap between your age and his age.

Remain a good friend, but not a girl friend, to him. Later, when the difference in your ages is comparatively smaller because you are both adults, you may want to get together.

NO JOB: (Q.) My sister is 21 years old and doesn't have a job. My parents keep telling her to find one, but she just loafs around the house.

She went to airline school but couldn't find a job with an airline.

Do you think I should tell her? And if so what should I tell her? I am 14.—Concerned in Connecticut

(A.) Many young people are jobless today.

Be sympathetic with your sister and as cheerful as you can about her situation. But realize at the same time that the problem is hers and your parents. Let them work it out.

Rattles & straws

A satellite for all ages

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Born as we were, thee and me—if you're between 30 and 60—into the Age of Science, we tend to be more awed than our children at the gargantuan strides our civilization has taken since the dawning of the Space Age. Gosh, when we were young, there wasn't even a weapon capable of obliterating all mankind. How primitive!

Item: my kids wouldn't come in from their softball game on the lawn to watch the first man step on the moon. No, not Adam—that other guy.

Item: A friend of mine watching a moon shot on television sighed, "Golly, they're half-way to Africa and I haven't even finished my Bloody Mary!"

Item: My wife was astonished—and appalled—to hear the announcer on a later moon-flight broadcast state that "the early space suits are obsolete." Did you ever think you'd live to see the day when a SPACE SUIT was obsolete?!

Because, as I say, I remember the days when there was no television and even radio wasn't so hot on those Atwater Kents, I was wide-eyed to learn that Uncle Sam has popped up a new weather satellite that doesn't move, just sits in one spot in the sky like the Star of Bethlehem, sending down minute-by-minute weather statistics to the Wise Men at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

We have weather satellites galore, heavens knows, but they scoot around the earth so fast they only hit the same spot twice a day. Synchronous Meteorological Satellite (SMS), however, is timed to the earth's rotation so, in effect, it just sits there in one spot in the sky (22,900 miles above the Pacific, just south of Acapulco) sending down hemispheric weather photos every half hour.

The satellite's telescopic camera system will produce daylight earth and cloud pictures with a resolution (clarity) of half a mile. Nighttime resolution, using infrared sensors, will be five miles. In other words, they are taking pictures of us day and night—so don't park your car in front of that cute divorcee's home. You may end up on a data acquisition weather outprint for worldwide distribution.

SMS has been placed in PERMANENT equatorial station at 100 degrees west—how does that grab you! The 1,300-pound satellite is going to be there, high in the sky, FOREVER! Long after civilization as we know it has been exterminated in the nuclear holocaust, little SMS will be hanging there in the sky, obediently sending down weather pictures and environmental data to a wasted and barren planet far below. His not to reason why, his but to photo and fly.

And eons hence, perhaps a new race of mutants and humanoids will evolve, and as their science develops, they will look to the skies. They'll be able to learn the stars and planets, as our ancesters did—but what on earth will they make of that little steel ball in the sky, with its cameras and antenna, its solar-charged batteries and infrared sensors?

If our descendants, a million years from now, are anything like us, they'll put little SMS down as an unidentified flying object and jail (for drunk and disorderly) anyone who reports seeing it.

Survivor 'keeps quiet'

2-day turtle ride ends with rescue

MANILA (UPI) — Although she didn't believe it herself, the Philippine navy says it's true. Mrs. Candelaria Villanueva, 52, survived a ferry sinking by riding a giant sea turtle for two days until she was spotted by a passing vessel.

The Philippine government's National Media Production Center said Mrs. Villanueva, 52, one of 277 persons aboard the ferry Aloha which sank off Zamboanga del Norte 600 miles south of Manila June 2, became the 243rd person to survive the disaster when the navy ship Kalantia spotted her atop the turtle.

"I would not have believed it if I had merely heard it," the center quoted Lt. Cesario F. Mana, an officer aboard the rescue ship, as saying. "The truth is I was an eyewitnes myself together with practically everyone else aboard the Kalantia."

Mana said Mrs. Villanueva was clinging to what seemed to be a "huge oil drum."

"Someone threw her a life ring. The moment she transferred her hold to the life ring, the drum sank. We did not realize it was a giant sea turtle until we started hauling up the old woman. For the turtle was beneath her, apparently propping her up.

"The sea creature even circled the area twice before disappearing into the depths of the sea, as if to reassure itself that its former rider was already in good hands," Mana said.

Mrs. Villanueva herself "kept quiet on the episode, giving some the impression she did not believe it ever happened at all."

Bill permits U.S. to order coal burning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has signed a bill empowering the government to order power plants to burn coal instead of scarce oil and gas.

The act, intended to conserve scarce energy sources, also postpones additional controls on automobile exhaust emissions possibly until 1978 models and delays enforcement of more stringent downtown parking regulations in some cities as a step to reduce auto pollution.

What your lawyer may not tell you

Equal justice under law not available to millions of Americans

". . . . lawyers have, to a large extent, allowed themselves to be adjuncts of great corporations and have neglected their obligations to use their powers for the protection of the people. We hear much of the 'corporation lawyer' and far too little of the 'people's lawyer.' The great opportunity of the American bar is and will be to stand again as it did in the past, ready to protect the interests of the people."

—Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis

By LEW KOCH

(Fourth in a series)

In the 60 years that have passed since Justice Brandeis made that statement not much has changed. If anything, the situation has gotten worse.

Sen. John V. Tunney (D., Calif.), estimates that there are more than "30,000 legal questions each day affecting Americans personally which are not resolved because people cannot afford legal counsel." Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell, acknowledging the problem said, "Looking at contemporary America realistically, we must admit that despite all our efforts to date—and these have not been significant—far too many persons are not able to obtain equal justice under the law." Nor has the disproportionate number of lawyers involved in illegal and extralegal activities surrounding Watergate enhanced the image of lawyers in the public's mind.

All the studies of people's attitudes towards lawyers point to the fact that the rich and the elderly trust lawyers while the poor and the young don't. The rich always have their lawyers, the crime syndicate has theirs, and even the ultra-poor can now go to legal-aid or poverty lawyers.

But the great (in numbers) middle class, those 35 million families making $7,000 to $17,000, simply cannot afford the services of a lawyer in many cases.

Perhaps the greatest single factor contributing to the high cost of lawyers has been that up until about a year ago, lawyers were guilty of monopolistic price fixing—which had been going on since 1795.

A federal Court of Appeals last summer finally ended this ungentlemanly agreement, saying that the fixed-fee schedules of bar associations were devised solely to produce more money for the lawyers.

Minimum fees were defenced as "educational" guidelines for lawyers but the lawyer who wasn't "educated," the lawyer who offered to charge less than the minimum fee, could be disbarred by his more educated fellow attorneys.

Bar associations around the country began to see the handwriting on the wall when the antitrust division of the Justice Department filed suit against accountants for price fixing (in the exact same manner as the bar associations were doing).

Last year the Justice Department testified that the lawyers' minimum fee schedule was illegal. Moving with astonishing speed, the board of governors of the American Bar Association two weeks later recommended to all state and local bars that the 200-year-old practice be abolished.

In fact, in a little-known ruling (Formal Opinion 329) the ABA said it was not permissible for lawyers to enter into competitive bidding for legal business.

Four years ago, a new way to skin the cat of high legal fees was conceived: group legal services. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America developed the plan which works like this:

The union hires a law firm. Each member of the union pays a certain amount of money each month (in Amalgamated's case, the sum is 50 cents) and in turn, each union member is entitled to the services of that law firm.

As is so often the case, most of the union members were unaware of the many areas where legal advice and assistance was necessary. So the lawyers from the firm (Dannen, Crane, Heyman & Hass) visited the workers and tried to educate them about the areas where the services of a lawyer were necessary—consumer transactions, domestic relations, landlord-tenant problems, real estate transactions, wills and so forth.

(The firm will not handle criminal matters against a union person, nor a suit when a member wants to collect money, nor for obvious conflict-of-interest reasons, when a union member wants to take legal action against the union.)

This type of group legal service is called a "closed panel" because the union members have to use one of the attorneys in the law firm. Some lawyers have bitterly criticized the "closed panel" approach to prepaid legal services, darkly predicting an end to the concept of freedom of choice—the same free enterprise concept that was so conveniently subverted by the minimum fee standards. These lawyers call for an "open panel" approach similar to that designed by Blue Cross-Blue Shield where the consumer pays his premiums and then goes to the hospital and doctor (or in this case, lawyer) of his choice.

What proponents of the "open panel" approach fail to note is that Blue Cross-Blue Shield was a financial bonanza for hospitals and doctors and that bills went up, not down. What also is ignored is that insurance companies (who are never reluctant to make money) are studying the idea but thus far, have failed to become involved in such prepaid insurance plans. There are simply more imponderables, less data and more variables on legal usage than on medical aid.

As for the criticism that "closed panels" are a get-rich-quick device for some lawyers, Avrum H. Dannen (one of Amalgamated's "closed panel" laywers) says, "Look, you're taking a gamble that all 8,000 members who are paying 50 cents a month for complete legal service don't come to your office all at once and start demanding those services. A lawyer may get some financial security belonging to a closed panel but he'll never get rich at it."

There is no question that some parts of the legal profession are strongly opposed to "closed panels" but Lewis Bernstein, chief of the litigation section, antitrust division of the Justice Department, warned bar associations recently that they might well be guilty of violating the antitrust laws if they attempt eliminate competition by ing that "closed panel" pla cannot be pursued.

To date, not one sing "open panel" plan is in ex tence in the nation wh there are several "closed p nels" operating around t country and hundreds more the planning stage.

"The times, they are ac anging." Whether lawye like it or not, 35 milli American families are goi to try and get justice und the law—for the first time a reasonable price.

Duke Ellington leaves $200,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jazz great Duke Ellington left an estate of about $200,000 when he died last month, but court papers disclosed Wednesday he failed to leave a will.

Ellington's son, Mercer K. Ellington, of Washington D.C., has filed a motion in court asking for authority to administer the assets.

The papers said that Ellington's estate did not yet include copyrights to his musical compositions or royalties from them, because it was too early to estimate their value.

Ellington died May 24 at the age of 75. In addition to his son, he was survived by his sister, Ruth.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The National Forest System is made up of 154 national forests, 19 national grasslands and other minor acreages which totaled 187,101,120 acres in 44 states, as of June 30, 1973. Alaska had the most national forest area with 20.7 million acres, followed by Idaho and California with some 20 million acres each, The World Almanac says. Connecticut had only 10 acres of national forest.

On way: color TV cassettes for home use

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Scientists have come up with a way to record color television programs complete with stereophonic sound on a flat photographic film plate.

The development may cut the cost of commercially reproduced television recordings and simplify storage problems.

The system, developed by Battelle's Pacific Northwest Laboratories for Digital Recording Corp., Scarborough, N.Y., uses a laser beam and a mechanical scanner. It is a patented process employing computer-like circuitry to record video signal information on a fixed photosensitive plate.

In addition to its promising impact on the home entertainment industry, the new information storage and retrieval system has numerous applications in the field of business systems, education and computer technology.

Battelle calls the process "optical digital recording."

"Digital recording represents a new capability for very high data storage density," explained James T. Russell, Battelle staff scientist who conceived the idea.

Eventual development of a system to provide recorded TV-cassettes for home use is the goal of the current research effort, he explained.

"Information is recorded as a track of binary bits, or dots, each one micron in diameter," Russell said. "Track-to-track spacing is about two microns in the current preproduction prototype."

In the playback mode, a light beam is scanned over the record and a photodetector picks up the resulting patterns of light and dark, coverting that information to an electronic signal, Russell explained. Relatively simple circuits then reconstruct the original signal in a form suitable for display on an ordinary television screen.

Russell said the records could be replicated very inexpensively in commercial production. For instance, a 5x7 inch record may cost as little as 25 cents while the half-hour magnetic tape cassette needed for current commercial television recording systems costs about $25.

The Battelle system also presents the potential for significant improvements in high fidelity sound recording and reproduction, and long record life, because it is noncontacting.

An entire set of the Encycolopedia Britannica could be stored on a piece of film 10 inches square. A complete Social Security record — a 600-word, typed page) — for 200 million persons could be stored on 1,000 5x5 inch plates.

Donates new car, but wins it in drawing

HERKIMER, N.Y. (UPI) — Robert Castle operates a successful automobile agency here, but there are times when he just can't give a car away.

He donated a 1974 automobile to Temple Beth Joseph as a prize in its fund drive. He also purchased two tickets.

Then he won the drawing.

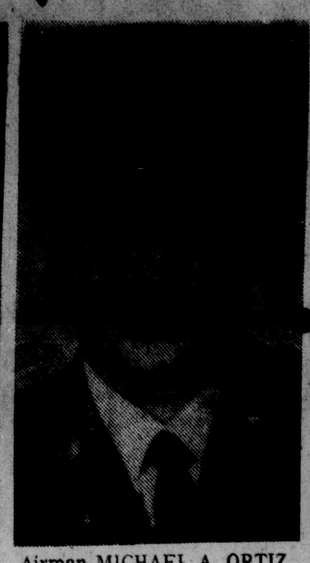
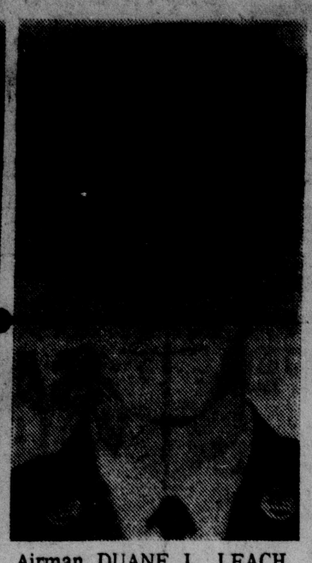
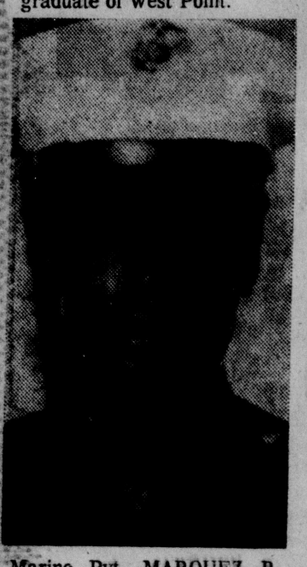
Cadet FRANK N. ROBERTS JR., son of Maj. Gen. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. Frank N. Roberts Sr., 978 Maryhurst Drive, Claremont, has graduated from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, received bachelor of science degree and a commission as infantry second lieutenant. A 1969 Claremont High School graduate, Roberts received a presidential appointment to the academy. His father is a 1920 graduate of West Point.



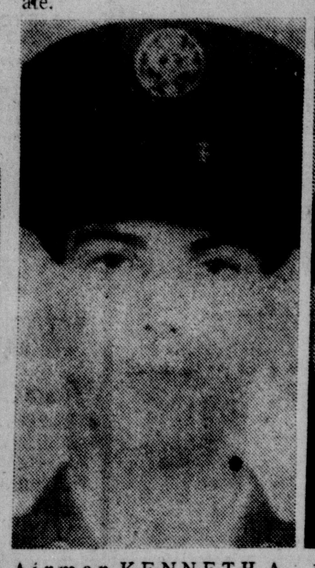
Airman MICHAEL A. ORTIZ, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus P. Ortiz, 12958 Tenth St., Chino, has been assigned to Lawry AFB, Colo. for training in the munitions and weapons maintenance field. Ortiz is a 1973 Chino High School graduate.



Airman DUANE L. LEACH, son of Mrs. Wilma F. Leach, 144 N. Palmetto Ave., Ontario, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. and will remain there to receive specialized training in the security police field.



Marine Pvt. MARQUEZ R. BLACKWELL, son of Mrs. Jeri Berg, 9624 Helena Ave., Montclair, has been commended for superior achievement upon completion of training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego. He scored a perfect 300 points on the Marine Corps physical fitness test, which consists of situps, pullups, and a timed three-mile run.



Airman KENNETH A. HINES, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hines, 1009 Belfort Ave., Pomona, has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill. for training in aircraft maintenance. Hines, a 1973 Pomona High School graduate, attended Mt. San Antonio College.

Marine Pfc. MANUEL RODRIGUEZ, son of Mr. and Mrs. Margus Rodriguez, 4504 Wheeler Ave., La Verne, has completed basic training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Origin of tureen

The word "tureen" comes from the Latin "terrinus," meaning earthen, which referred to the composition of the large covered vessel from which soup was served.

More miles

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There's a lot of truth in the report that radial tires provide better gas mileage, according to experts.

A Treasury Department staff study found that radials can improve gas mileage by 10 per cent. Fuel consumption rates wer measured in cars with and without radials at 30, 50 and 70 miles per hour. Savings overall were 10 per cent greater on cars with radials.

Wilderness in 8 states

DENVER (UPI) — An eight state region in the Mountain West includes more than 56 per cent of the nation's officially designated wilderness and more than 55 per cent of the nation's primitive areas, excluding Alaska.

The eight states encompass only 24 per cent of all U.S. land. Figures were compiled by the Federation of Rocky Mountain States for the region comprising Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

Welder wants to be next U.S. president

SHERMAN, Tex. (UPI) — "Three horses for sale, six pigs, one seeder and fertilizer spreader. Reason for selling — running for President of the United States."

J.W. Burdell, who has spent most of his 50 years as a sharecropper, field hand, truck driver, roughneck, hitchhiker, yard man, fry cook and welder, has run that classified ad in the local newspaper.

"The world is getting into a heck of a shape," said the thin, 135-pound candidate. "I want to be the first working man's president."

And in the front yard of his modest frame home in North Texas about 15 miles from the Oklahoma border is a sign that reads: "You'll Get Well With J.W. Burdell."

Burdell never has held elective office but he said he was among the runners-up in the race this year for captain of his four-man bowling team.

"They way I'm figuring on getting campaign money is through rallies and each individual person — dollar a head."

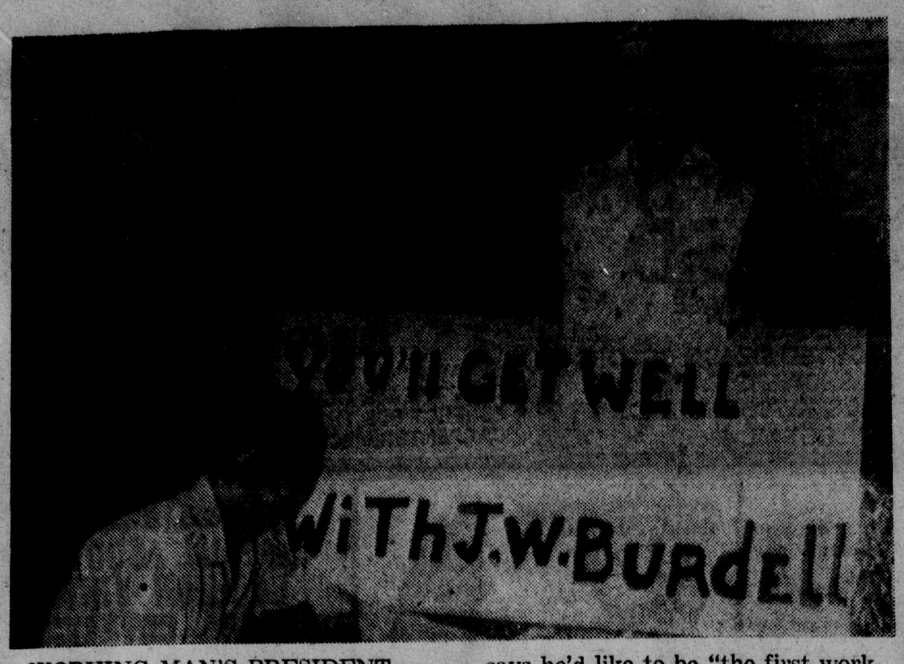
Burdell said he often has dreamed of being president but never did much about it until now.

"Prices of everything need to be lowered and men need to be paid a living age so the women can get back home and raise the kids," he said.

As for the energy shortage: "There's enough gas and oil in Texas and Oklahoma alone to supply energy for the entire United States."

Burdell is employed as a welder at a Sherman industrial plant and in his spare time mows yards and takes care of his horses, cows and pigs.

The slow-drawling Texan considers himself a "common ordinary man" who "doesn't know anything about politics. All I know is just common horse sense."



WORKING MAN'S PRESIDENT — J. W. Burdell, shown here with his wife, Tony, wants to be the next president of the United States. He says he'd like to be "the first working man's president." Burdell is writing states to find out how he can get on the various ballots.

He has begun writing to the various states as a first step toward getting his name on the ballot in 1976.

"Lots of folks around here think I'm just kidding. They say that somebody needs to run, but they don't want to run themselves. Well, I'm gonna run myself.

"I volunteered to fight for my country in 1942, and I'm volunteerin' to fight for my country now."

Asked about Watergate and its effect on the campaign, he said: "I don't know anything about it. I wasn't there, but I hope it quietens down by the time I get there."

New medical offices here

NEWPORT BEACH — The Landmark Medical Services, Inc., which operates a psychiatric hospital in Pomona, has opened a new corporate office at 4340 Campus Drive here. The Pomona facility is the Landmark Medical Center.

New SCVC head elected

LOS ANGELES — Albert A. Dorskind, vice president of MCA, Inc., has been elected new president of the Southern California Visitors Council.

He succeeds Robert T. Howard, who was vice president and general manager of KNBC and is now president of NBC Television Network in New York.

On Hearst case

Saxbe: would have kept mouth shut

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Attorney General William Saxbe says if he had to do it all over again, he likely would keep his mouth shut about the Patricia Hearst case.

The attorney general, visiting Expo '74, said he still holds the opinion he expressed in April that Miss Hearst is a "common criminal" but said if he had the incident to re-do he likely would hesitate to express himself.

In April Saxbe was quoted from Washington, D.C., saying he believed Miss Hearst was "not a reluctant participant" in a San Francisco bank robbery and labeled her a "fugitive."

He said he still has the same opinion as he had in April and said he had more information about the robbery than many other people.

However, Saxbe said he would hesitate to issue an opinion now "because it is a personal opinion and I've found out I can't have a personal opinion."

6,288-foot mountain up for sale

Land from New England's tallest peak is to be parceled out a bit at a time to raise money for redevelopment.

The first section of land was purchased here recently by Bradford Washburn, a mountain climber and director of the Museum of Science in Boston. Washburn handed over a check $100 to Sherman Adams, former special assistant to the late President Eisenhower and a former New Hampshire governor.

Adams is now chairman of the Mt. Washington Commission, a group attempting a $3 million program to rejuvinate and replace many of the dilapidated structures now standing near the summit of the popular mountain.

Actually, the sale is a gimmick designed to raise $1 million through private sources. The remaining $2 million is to be raised through a bond issue approved by the state legislature.

The commission is selling 6,288 one-foot linear sections — representing each foot of altitude —at a minimum of $100 per section.

Alan A. Smith, president of the Mt. Washington Observatory, who is directing the land sale, explained that since "a line, by definition, has no planes perpendicular to it, there is no area involved, and therefore no real estate tax.

Cardinals get salary raise, but pay for it

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Cardinals working at the Vatican have received an unpublicized pay raise, but the papal state's administrators are taking back part of it with the other hand, Vatican sources said recently.

They said the Vatican, taking into account the steep rise in the cost of living in neighboring Italy, has been paying the 35 resident Cardinals a monthly bonus of $123 since January as a partial reimbursement of servants' salaries.

On the other hand, the sources said, Cardinals now have to pay for their own electricity, gas and heating, which previously was free, and this has wiped out a good share of the bonus.

The sources said the bonus came on top of the normal pay of about $1,080 a month for ordinary Cardinals or $1,154 for those who head Vatican departments.

In addition to this, Cardinals have been receiving bonuses of $77 each on Christmas, Easter and St. Peter's feast day, plus free lodging and official cars.

Interesting proposal for Presidency

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of this week's public opinion polls shows President Nixon regaining public support while another has him falling further from favor.

I don't know what the significance of that is, but it is certain to deepen the quandary in which many congressmen now reside.

These are the congressmen who fear that no matter how they vote on the impeachment question, it will hurt them politically.

It is no secret that a goodly number of lawgivers dread having to take a stand and are looking for ways to avoid it.

One House member told me recently that he was thinking about introducing a resolution to shift the impeachment issue to the United Nations.

"This isn't just a domestic matter," he said. "Millions of foreigners feel they have a stake in the outcome too.

"It is clear from the tremendous reception he received in the Middle East that the Arabs would like to see Nixon remain in office.

"They even admitted the welcome they gave him was designed in part to bolster his support back home.

"And Soviet leader Brezhnev said recently that the impeachment move would not permit him from reaching good new agreements with Nixon when the President visits Moscow.

"In the light of these developments, the only fair thing to do is turn it over to an international tribunal."

But another congressman with whom I discussed the impeachment dilemma believes there is a better way of getting off the hook.

"Look at it this way," he said, "It is generally agreed that the Nixon administration has made some notable progress in international relations.

"If Congress were to impeach him because of Watergate and other domestic controversies, we would lose the benefit of his conduct of foreign policy. So why not compromise?"

I said, "You mean impeach half of him."

"Exactly. Rather than have a President and a Vice President, we would have two Semi-Presidents.

Both of these proposals may strike you as a bit drastic. But when the President is going up and down in the polls simultaneously, extremism is no vice.

Hopes stamps will impress on Watergate

TIBURON, Calif. (UPI) — Peter Martin has published a series of Watergate commemorative stamps because he feels the scandal "should be kept alive."

"I don't go around carrying a spear, but I feel we've been had," says the 50-year-old graphics designer.

Air pollution toll set at 108,000

DENVER (UPI) — Air pollution has killed 108,000 persons prematurely in New York during the past 10 years, says a prominent researcher. The figure is based on an air pollution study by Dr. Herbert Schimmel and Dr. T. J. Marawski of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. The finding were reported by Schimmel at the 67th annual conference and exhibition of the Air Pollution Control Association here.

Clubwomen!

Special forms are due

Valley Women, a supplement of the Progress-Bulletin highlighting activities of all women's clubs in the valley, will be published July 23.

Madame President will your club be included?

Fact sheets, sent out May 16 to club president or publicity chairmen, are due by the end of this week if they are to be included in the special edition.

If any club has not received the form to be filled out, an officer of the organization should contact the Progress-Bulletin women's editor, Mrs. Mary Remillard, at the newspaper, 622-1201, this week.

The annual edition will carry interviews with the four Woman Achievers for the valley who were selected rently by a panel of judges, in addition to the stories of almost 200 women's clubs.

Barcelona and Shaw vows are exchanged

Miss Cristi Shaw and Michael Barcelona were united in marriage in a late afternoon ceremony at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Montclair.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Shaw of Chino was given in marriage by her father. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Barcelona of Ontario.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Jonnie Camping, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were sister of the groom, Mrs. Nita Pace, and Miss Denise Fritz, Mrs. Jeanne Gay and Mrs. Pamela Forester.

John Barcelona served as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Scott Shaw, and Paul Pace, John Cunningham and Russell Greene.

Summer party classes slated in Los Angeles

Summer party enthusiasts should mark their calendars for July 17 or July 18 as the dates for the debut of "Summer Party Starters," a three-hour demonstration cooking class at Los Angeles based Lawry's Center at 568 San Fernando Road.

Three party - loving professionals in the world of foods will guide the class through a lighthearted cooking journey embracing thirst-quenching coolers, a raft of party-starting dishes and a number of ideas on how to entertain in the heat and enjoy it.

Carolyn Campion, San Francisco, who is a home economist and education specialist for Castle and Cooke Foods, will present an accent on freshness. Ruth Conrad Bateman, free-lance food writer, food industry consultant and author of several cookbooks will feature party-starter dishes selected from her new book, "Fifty Great Buffet Parties."

Sandra Petrov, Lawry's director of consumer services, will demonstrate her company's quick and easy methods for turning out tidbits and munching foods.

The classes are available at either 1 or 7 p.m. on both days. A $6.50 fee includes an after-class party in the tree-shaded, California gardens of the Center. Paid reservations should be made early as seating is limited. Mail payment to Lawry's Foods, Inc., in care of Elaine Myers, P.O. Box 2983, Los Angeles, 90051. Include name, address, telephone number, specifying date and time selected. For further information, call 213-225-2491, Ext. 299.

Vacation home offers lighthouse keeping

SEASIDE, Ore. (UPI) — The least one could say about George Hupman's idea of a vacation retreat is that it's different.

Hupman, an executive who lives and works near the Atlantic seaboard, is planning his future vacations on rocks a mile out in the Pacific Ocean off to Oregon coast.

The 53-year-old Philadelphian got the idea when he was working in Oregon on an electrical project.

"I came down here and looked out at the lighthouse and told my wife I want to buy that," he said, pointing to the abandoned Coast Guard lighthouse station that once served ships navigating waters near the Oregon coast.

"You've lost your marbles," she answered. But now they have bought the four-four-story lighthouse on the story lighthouse on the rocky island, she said: "I think it is a great idea. It is a challenge for him and it gives him something to think about instead of how much money I spend."

"I figure it is going to cost us a lot of enjoyable hours and about $10,000 before we get it into shape for a weekend and vacationing," said Hupman, who with a friend from New York were here recently to begin the renovation of converting the lighthouse into a vacation retreat. Travel to and from the lighthouse is by helicopter.

The top of the lighthouse stands 132 feet above sea level, but Coast Guard records show that on more that one occasion storms have been so severe that waves have washed right over the top.

A fellow engineer is designing a wind-powered generating unit to charge batteries at the lighthouse, which has five tender rooms, all being converted into bunk rooms. The light room at the top is up a flight of 60 stairs.

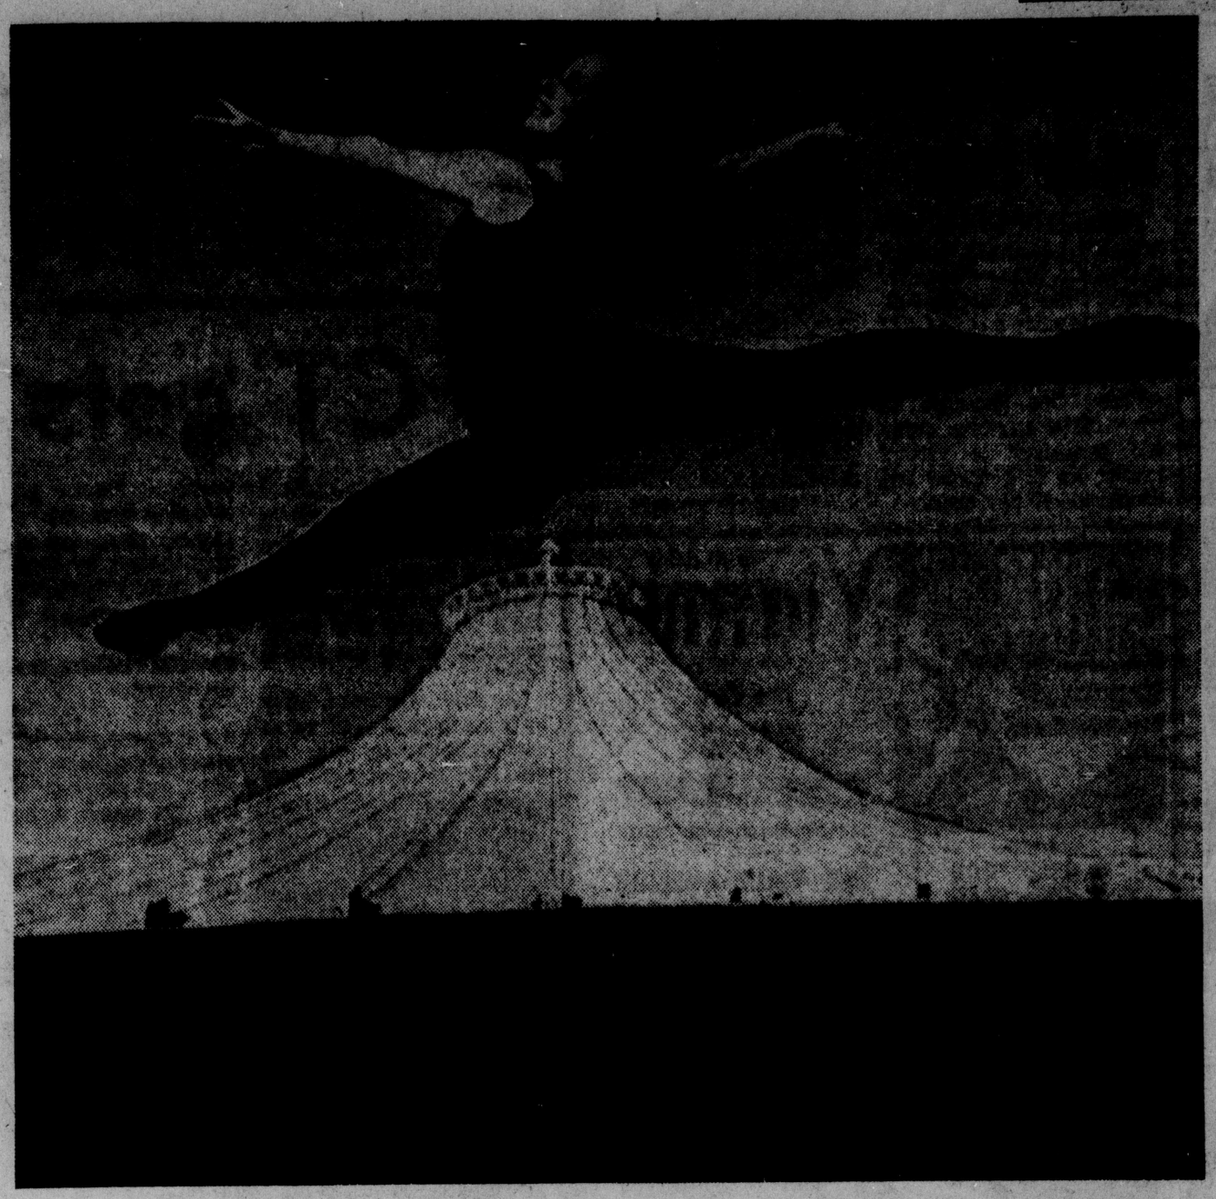
The lighthouse was built in 1880 and has accommodations for five keepers. In its day it warned ships of the treacherous Tillamook Head until it was abandoned by the Coast Guard in 1957 to be replaced by a whistling buoy.

Macrobiotic diet termed deficient

EVANSTON,Ill. (UPI) — Infants fed on a Zen macrobiotic diet run "a real risk" of protein-calorie deficiency, researchers reported in Pediatrics, the journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Researchers from the University of Michigan reported two cases of underweight infants admitted to a hospital after being fed a diet that included Kokoh, a macrobiotic food.

They said the children's diets did not meet dietary standards set by the National Academy of Sciences.



OVER THE TOP — Macarena was warming up for a performance at Expo '74 when she was caught in the middle of a leap that seemed to carry her over the 160-foot tall canopy of the U.S. Pavilion. Macarena is a member of the McLeod Mime Theatre which is presently performing at Spokane's World Fair.

Simon: administration may try for big budget surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today the administration may try for a large budget surplus in years ahead as a means of dampening consumer buying power and slowing inflation.

Simon said Congress should consider giving more tax breaks to big business to encourage investment in new facilities to boost supplies of scarce products and materials.

The administration's newly revised budget forecast calls for a deficit of about $6 billion in fiscal 1975 beginning July 1, followed by a balanced budget in fiscal 1976. Simon suggested in testimony to a subcommittee of Congress' joint economic committee that the administration should tighten up even more.

Simon also said the administration is "taking a careful look" at the idea of providing investment incentive for industry through the tax system.

—"It would enlarge the flow of savings available to the private sector because the government would reduce its claims on the capital markets." One effect of this strategy would be to provide more funds for the financially strapped housing industry.

The Extraordinary Choice From Peugeot

Gasoline

With all the conflicting claims from economy cars, we're tempted to call the 504 the True Economy Car. Because the 504's economy isn't just based on miles per gallon, but, on Peugeot's engine which enables the 504 to deliver maximum engine efficiency consistent with maximum engine life.

That's true economy and Peugeot has it without sacrificing performance (acceleration is 0-50 M.P.H. in 12.1 seconds as reported in a Popular Science road test—November 1973).

The mid-size 504 also gives you the inside roominess of many larger cars and provides a surprising amount of clean, usable luggage space. (Along with a separate easy-access tire compartment.) And it gives you 4-door convenience along with a special child safety lock.

The Peugeot 504 Sedan also delivers these uncommon features as standard: Michelin steel-belted radial tires, sports-car handling ease from 4-wheel independent suspension, rack and pinion steering, 4-wheel power-assisted disc brakes, fully reclining seats, and a steel-sliding roof.

We invite you to make this the year to start appreciating the Peugeot Sedan and Station Wagon. Outside. And in.

The choice is yours

Diesel

It's now in America. The Peugeot 504 Diesel, from one of the world's oldest and largest manufacturers of Diesel passenger cars. Clearly this is a car whose time has come.

This is the automobile for you if you drive often and over long distances. The 504 Diesel is for you if you're concerned with getting maximum economy and efficiency in fuel usage. Or, if you're seriously concerned about the future effects of the energy shortage.

While actual mileage varies depending on road conditions, car maintenance and individual driving habits, in a typical mixture of urban, suburban and highway driving, the 504 Diesel should average around 30 M.P.G. —providing a range of well over 400 miles per tank full. Think about it!

And it has a deserved reputation for remarkable engine life. Fuel economy and durability, certainly nothing new to Peugeot, are enhanced in the Diesel because of its unique characteristics.

With no carburetor, no spark plugs, no distributor and no points or condenser, about half the normal tune-up costs are eliminated.

The Peugeot Diesel has a fuel injection system which is virtually maintenance free. Important too, the Diesel engine is so inherently clean, ecologically, it requires no emissions control devices.

With all this the Peugeot Diesel Sedan and Station Wagon offer the same comfort and handling qualities as the gasoline-powered Peugeot. As well as the same standard features. If you really drive a car long and hard, the 504 Diesel should be your car.

VCT gets federal grant

POMONA — The National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C. has awarded Valley Community Theater a matching grant of $9,500 to expand four major programs during the 1974-75 season.

The grant, announced today by Mack Gilliland, VCT president-administrator, will be used for two major youth programs, a theater education workshop, production of three original plays and tours of presentations to correctional and medical institutions. The grant will also allow "considerable expansion" of theater technical facilities, according to Gilliland.

Matching funds will be raised from regular box office revenue, donations, memberships, and program advertising. The season is budgeted at $19,000.

The NEA grant is the second public assistance VCT has received in as many years. Last season the local community theater received $3,850 from general revenue sharing funds dispursed to local organizations by the City of Pomona. The money was used to upgrade technical facilities and to purchase needed equipment.

VCT is a non-profit corporation, and all donations are deductible under the Internal Revenue provision.

Specific aspects of the programs funded by the NEA grant will be announced during the summer. Courses to be offered in the theater education workshop will include acting, directing, stage craft, and theater promotions. Instructors will be drawn from VCT's regular staff and local personnel.

A New Voices Showcase has been scheduled as a part of the season of plays to be offered in the coming season. Featured will be the work of local writers, staged and directed by community performers. The tentative date is May 1975.

Free performances for correctional and medical institutions have been offered by VCT in the past but on a scale circumscribed by time and financial considerations of the totally volunteer cast and crew. Such past productions as "Barefoot in the Park," "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," "Cactus Flower," and "The Fantastiks," were taken to institutions such as California Institution for Men and Patton State Hospital Narcotic Unit. Inmates of the Youth Training School in Chino have been bused to the theater for other productions.

Residents of Mt. San Antonio Gardens and medical rehabilitative units at Casa Colina Hospital have seen other VCT productions, including, "Shot in the Dark," "Oliver!" "Carousel" and "Sound of Music." More of these performances will now be possible, and with technical calibre considerably enhanced.

"Valley Community Theater can now begin to offer all the services a community theater ought to give the residents of the Pomona Valley," Gilliland stated. "In the past the tyranny of box office revenue discouraged creative and unique programs. With the new grant we can undertake the efforts that make theater the exciting adventure it can be when fiscal saddles don't pinch quite so hard as in the past."

Participation in the upcoming season is open to all residents of the Pomona Valley. Membership in VCT is of three varieties: contributing memberships of $50, $75, and $100 denominations which are tax deductible; active memberships of $7.50 per year, available to all adults; and student memberships open to full time students at $3 per year.

"We will need to draw upon all of the creative resources in the community to meet the terms of the grant and to make VCT a project which speaks well for the people of our valley," Gilliland said.

Further information on all the programs may be obtained at 622-6954, or by writing to the theater at 132 E. Third St., Pomona.

Pickle factory gets police in a pickle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police did not relish explaining why Tony Martinez, 24, a burglar and narcotics offender, was able to escape from the holding tank at a municipal court building in the Glassell Park area recently.

"The building has some security problems," a spokesman said, "because it's a converted pickle factory."

At Knott's, we aim to please.

There's a lot to do at Knott's. From panning for gold to a thrilling log ride down Timber Mountain. From shopping for turn-of-the-century toys to eating a genuine buffalo burger.

But you don't have to do anything to enjoy Knott's. Because... if you like...we'll entertain you all day long.

In Fiesta Village mariachis play and Mexican dancers whirl and turn to the harps and guitars.

You amble over to the Knott's John Wayne Theater to take in the Wild Animal Follies... with wild animals live and uncaged on stage...

Back outside, you step into Gypsy Camp to see Zoltan's puppets.

Music, music, music.

Dusk. And it's time to relax around the fire in Wagon Camp, listening to country rock performers.

Back to the Knott's John Wayne Theater in time for the evening performance by a top name star. Like Rick Nelson. Kenny Rogers and the First Edition. Kay Starr. Or the Lennon Sisters.

Outside again and over to the lake to watch Knott's Incredible Fireworks Machine blaze into action.

Like we said, all you have to do is show up. Knott's will entertain you.

Thrilling rides.

Of course, for the action hungry, Knott's is a special thrill. You can ride the Butterfield Stagecoach or the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad...and get in on an old-fashioned hold-up.

You can take the Calico Mine train into the depths of a goldfield "glory hole" across shaky trestles and under raging waterfalls. You try your skills in the arcades of Gypsy Camp.

Or the archery range at Ghost Town.

For the hungry, there's Mrs. Knott's Chicken Dinner Restaurant. Or the steak house where you dine in view of famous Indian chiefs.

Knott's Berry Farm and Ghost Town. Buena Park. We aim to please.

BACK ON STAGE — Ruby Keeler, dancing star of the 1930s, and actor Don Ameche are back on stage and scoring a hit. They are shown here at opening night Tuesday of the Roaring Twenties musical, "No, No, Nanette," in which they are starring on a 14-week tour of the straw hat circuit. The first night was in Albany, N.Y.

Ruby Keeler back with Don Ameche

By JOHN MALOY

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Ruby Keeler, the dancing darling of the 1930s, and Don Ameche, who many people think invented the telephone, are back on the stage and wowing audiences.

Ameche and Miss Keeler are starring in the Roaring Twenties musical "No, No Nanette," in a 14-week tour of straw hat theaters.

"Nanette" opened in Albany Tuesday night to a capacity crowd. Miss Keeler still projects the same winsome quality that first made her a star 45 years ago. And when she went into her tap dance routine to "I Want To Be Happy" in the first act, she stopped the show.

"She's still my kind of girl," said a gray-haired matron, who had driven 50 miles in the rain to see the show. "She looks like she could join my bridge club and be one of the gang."

Commented a man to his wife, "It's wonderful to see something simple and happy again.

Miss Keeler hit stardom in Florenz Ziegfeld's 1929 revue "Show Girl." She went to Hollywood in the early days of sound and appeared in such films as "42nd Street," "Footlight Parade," "Golddiggers of 1933," and "Dames."

She came out of retirement to star in the Broadway revival of "Nanette," and now is in her second year on tour. After this tour, she said she'll go home to Laguna Beach, Calif.

"I want to sit back and watch my grandchildren." she said. "I'm not going to do anything else."

Ameche, her leading man, is as trim at 66 as he was in his Hollywood prime in the late 1930's. He is greying, but still handsome, with the rich voice so familiar to audiences who heard and watched him star in radio, television, theater and films.

Ameche is perhaps best remembered for his title role in "Alexander Graham Bell" — not his favorite, considering the years in which comedians used the line: "Call me up on the Ameche."

He recalled the golden years of radio when he played middleman in the battle of wits between W.C. Fields and Edgar Bergen's dummy, Charlie McCarthy.

Citrus group to present benefit show

Jazz guitarist to perform at Arabian Nights Sunday

UPLAND — Jazz guitarist Joe Pass, winner of Down Beat's New Star Award in 1963, will perform at the Arabian Nights restaurant, 1275 W. Foothill Blvd., at 4 and 6 p.m. Sunday.

After a recent concert in Los Angeles, jazz critic Leonard Feather praised Pass' "unadulterated virtuosity." "Pass combines all the excellences for which you look in a jazz guitarist," Feather wrote. "He swings with limitless vigor, yet every phrase is as natural as a waterfall."

Pass was born Joseph Anthony Passalaqua in New Jersey. He took up the guitar at 9 and was playing professionally at 14.

Pass has issued more than 15 albums and has performed with such stars as George Shearing, Louie Bellson, Frank Sinatra, Julie London and Johnny Mathis.

He is the author of the books, "Joe Pass Guitar Style," "Joe Pass Chord Solos," "Jazz Guitar Solos" and "Joe Pass Guitar Chords."

Radio drama returns to local station

POMONA — "Theater of the mind," a daily, 30-minute radio drama program developed and produced in Pomona, will be heard at 11 p.m. Sunfay through Thursday on station KWOW, 1600, starting Sunday.

The programs are re-makes of old radio shows such as Suspense, Inner Sanctum and Escape, featuring the original stars.

The programs will include science fiction such as this Sunday's "Show of Heaven: tales of the supernatural (Vincent Price in "The Pit and the Pendulum"); adventure stories such as "Treasure Island," and others.

"Theater of the Mind," produced by Impact Audio Services at 567 E. Holt Blvd., is carried on more than a dozen stations throughout Southern California.

The series is the work of John Mielke of Monterey Park, and Bob Bosche and Merrick Cherticow, both of Pomona.

Turfgrasses of the future grown at UC field station

SANTA ANA — Improved turfgrass varieties and management practices for Southern California home lawns and recreational uses are on the horizon.

Bentgrasses developed at the station for saline soils—a problem in many Southern California areas—now are being tested under actual use conditions as golf course putting greens.

Zoysiagrass varietal field plot research has progressed to the point where work can begin to breed vigorous hybrids that will establish lawns rapidly. A warm-season grass, Zoysia can stand up under heavy use and is more shade-tolerant and requires less maintenance than bermudagrass.

New strains of tall fescuegrass selected at the station are now being field-tested for seed yield in Oregon. Bearing finer leaves than present commercial sources, they show good potential for use where extensive, low-maintenance turf-grass plantings are desired. The best-adapted cool-season grass for Southern California, tall fescue can survive a month or more without water and show no thinning or other permanent injury when watering is resumed.

Trials in progress at the station are comparing pairing of various cool-season grasses with bermudagrass for turf quality and longevity. Results to date have demonstrated that the common Southland practice of overseeding bermudagrass with a cool-season grass during the fall to maintain a lawn's green in winter can be improved by substituting perennial for annual ryegrass.

Recent SCFS field trials have shown that new, fine-textured perennial ryegrasses will live through hot summer months in bermudagrass with proper, frequent irrigations. They'll provide a green lawn the following winter without the renovation and yearly costs of overseeding with an annual ryegrass.

The man closest to the turfgrass plots at the station is Stanely Spaulding. He has been intimately involved in the station's turfgrass research the past ten years as staff research associate for Dr. Victor M. Youngner, UC Riverside professor of agronomy and turfgrass expert.

Most of the some three acres in turfgrass plots at SCFS are a part of Dr. Younger's research projects. Others are cooperative studies being conducted by him with other UC researchers and Cooperative Extension specialists and farm advisors with turfgrass responsibilities.

Some past SCFS turfgrass developments, Spaulding notes, are much in evidence today in Southern California. There's the Santa Ana variety of bermudagrass, a tough, smog-resistant, salt-tolerant turfgrass used on athletic fields, playgrounds, golf-course tees, and other heavy-use areas. It's a great demand today. Southland turfgrass nurseries have more acreage in this SCFS-developed variety than any other bermudagrass, according to Spaulding.

More recently, he adds a new strain of dichondra has been released. Containing four individual dichondras, two medium height and two low height, it can be mowed short or left uncut. Current dichondra plot work at the station also is focused on disease and pest problems.

He has a lot to say about al lof the turfgrass research going on at the station. Discussing the Zoysiagrass plots, he noted that an evergreen Zoysia will be available for coatstal areas, one that equals Santa Ana bermudagrass on color retention during cold months and which is smog-resistant, like the Santa Ana variety.

The bentgrasses developed for saline waters, Spaulding noted, can thrive under sewage effluent irrigation. Cooperative plots have been established on golf courses where these bentgrasses are being compared by golfers for their suitability to the game.

Spaulding is enthusiastic about the new UC strains of tall fescue. The present stock from commercial sources, he explained, has the appearance of pasture grasses. The UC strains have finer leaves, are thicker, and are more cushiony than presently available tall fescue.

He sees new tall fescues as practical substitutes for bermudagrass in many Southern California turfgrass applications. One such application could be school athletic fields, if top-quality turf is desired. "Bermudagrasses are a high-maintenance grass," Spaulding explained. "Unlike tall fescue, they are dormant or inactive during most of the months when the school and their athletic fields are in use."

Spaulding noted that today the difference in the cost of perennial and annual ryegrass is decreasing. The annual ryegrass seed was much cheaper years ago. Results of a study conducted by Spaulding, a sequel to earlier turfgrass irrigation research at the station, show that new perennial, fine-textured ryegrasses such as Pennfine and Manhattan can be substituted for annual ryegrasses for year-round green in bermudagrass plantings.

Roots of the cool-season ryegrasses generally grow only a few inches deep. Bermudagrass roots penetrate downward two to six feet into the soil. The soil surface must be kept moist to promote growth in the shallow-root grasses, which is not the case for bermudagrass.

"Maintenance of the new perennial ryegrasses in bermudagrass during our hottest months here," Spaulding said, "has not required use of any more water than would be used for bermudagrass alone. The difference in management is to apply the water more frequently. When the temperature rises above 90 degrees Fahrenheit, we'll irrigate our perennial ryegrass-bermudagrass plots every morning at the station, three times weekly in the 70's and 80's, and once or twice a week when the sky is overcast."

Cool-season grasses such as the new perennial ryegrasses can survive the summer along the coast generally with one or two irrigations a week and with daily irrigation inland, according to Spaulding. "We aren't far enough along to talk about their survival in our desert areas," he added.

Proper pool care means problem-free operation

STAMFORD, Conn. — This spring millions of American families are thinking about one thing — their swimming pools. If you're one of these lucky people, it's a wise idea to prepare the pool now for healthy, trouble-free operation during the season. Water scientist Bob Waldvogel of Olin Corporation, suggests the following checklist for in-ground pools.

If your pool was empty during the winter:

1. Sweep down the bottom, all four walls and remove debris.
2. Close drain plugs and flush the piping.
3. Remove surface stains and grease (in-ground pools only). Severe stains may require brushing with an acid solution (this should be done by a professional), but most of them can be removed with a commercial cleaner, available at swimming pool supply dealers.
4. Check for winter damage. Look carefully around the main drain pot, around expansion joints and underwater lights and near the skimmer throat. Minor cracks can be repaired with the newer epoxy materials available at hardware stores. After making repairs, paint the pool if necessary.
5. Clean and reconnect any chemical treatment equipment.
6. Refill the pool. There are many ways of doing this, including the old garden hose method. If you're in a hurry, or unable to use your home facilities, call a professional pumper listed under "Water Dealers" in the Yellow Pages.
7. Backwash the filter thoroughly and check the filter's air valve. Then place both the filter and pump in operation. Best results are obtained by running the pump and filter 24 hours a day.
8. Install diving boards, ladders, etc., which may have been stored for the winter.
9. Test your pool water with a kit available at any pool supply dealer. Using a product such as Olin's PH-Plus or Ph-Minus, get the water's pH into the 7.2 to 7.6 range. Chlorine sanitizers are most effective at this pH level. Also check for residual chlorine. Initial chlorine demand should be around 1 oz. per every 1000 gals.
10. Using an effective pool sanitizer, follow a regular routine or chlorine dosage to keep your pool water clean and sparkling. Don't forget, however, that heavy pool usage, hot weather and heavy rain will use up your pool sanitizer at a much faster rate. Test your water when in doubt.

If your pool was full during the winter:

1. Remove the pool cover and all ice buffers.
2. Close all the drain valves on your filter and heater, then followsteps, 2, 3, 8, 9 and 10 above. These steps should be completed five days before the opening date of the pool to allow sufficient time for the "shakedown" period.

Flowers can add color to gardens

The African Daisy is considered by many as the most elegantly textured and sophisticated of all daisy types.

You even have a choice of varieties . . . the grey-green basal, small clusters of leaves can be in a lobed or cut style.

The slightly curving stems are a graceful support for the slender petaled daisies that are about four inches in diameter. You can have single or double blooms in shades of yellow, white, cream, pink, coral, deep rose, pale orange and red.

These blooms will grace your garden through December and also make delightful indoor accents in cut flower arrangements because they are exceptionally long lasting.

As if beauty isn't enough for you to add these lovelies to your garden collection, there is added incentive in that they are relatively care free. Place them in an area that affords some shelter from wind. Give them good drainage. When you decide to plant, make sure you place them in the ground with no less than ¼ inch of crown showing above the soil. Water deeply but infrequently.

Every three years they should be divided in the springtime for a neater appearance and healthier plants. You can plant them single or in clusters of harmonizing colors.

Cucumbers grow fast

Cucumbers and squashes are space users but can be grown in the mini-garden using vertical space, such as a fence or a trellis. Very little ground area is needed when the vines are trained on a support and you will harvest more attractive fruit and fewer culls. Maintenance and insect control is easier, too.

The short growing season (50-60 days to first harvest) of summer type squash and cucumber makes it possible to find the right slice of climate almost anywhere. They can both do with less heat than melons, but if you have doubts about your climate try a cold frame. To keep these hogs within bounds, pinch back the third set of leaves. Two laterals will form; pinch back each one of these after the second leaves form. After that, stop them above every fruit.

Sow cucumber seed 1 inch deep, 3-5 seeds to 1 foot of row. Thin to 12 inches in rows 48-72 inches apart. In hills sow 9-12 seeds in each hill, thinning to 2-3 plants per hill. Space these 24-36 inches apart in rows 48-72 inches apart. With a short growing season start indoors and transplant using 'hot caps' or plastic to increase the temperature.

Zucchini, crookneck and summer scallop squash sow seed in the same way as cucumber, but 16-24 inches apart after thinning. Make the rows 5-6 feet apart.

Both of these fast growers respond to generous amounts of organic matter. For special treatment dig the planting furrow or hill 2 feet deep. Fill the first foot with compost or a mix of manure and peat moss. The rest of the hole fill with a mix of soil, peat moss and 5-10-10 fertilizer (nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium) at the rate of 2 lbs. per 50 feet of row.

Watering should be slow and deep as the roots will go to three feet.

It's natural if the first blossoms fail to set fruit. Some female flowers bloom before the pollenization of male flowers. The same thing happens when the plant is using all its resources for a heavy load of fruit. The aborting of young fruits is a self-pruning process. You can help by keeping all fruit picked as it reaches usable size.

In very hot weather leaves may wilt in the middle of the day, but check for moisture below the surface to be sure there is sufficient water.

To combat the fungus and bacterial diseases that plague these vegetables in humid weather, choose disease resistant varieties. Seed catalogues are helpful.

Public transit use in state up by 23%

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The number of Californians using bus and rail public transit has increased 23 per cent in the past year, according to the state Department of Transportation.

H. L. Parrish, chief of the department's Division of Mass Transportation, recently attributed the increase to reduced fares, better service, expanded routes and the higher cost of operating a car.

Parrish said the 23 per cent hike emerged from a survey of 28 public transit operators throughout the state.

About 60 per cent of the increase occurred in the Los Angeles area, where the Southern California Rapid Transit District reduced fares to a flat 25 cents and other improvements were made, Parrish said.

He said the survey showed the current ridership on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system at more than 1.5 million passengers a month, "higher than the estimates for this state of system development."

Amtrak also is showing an increase in passengers, he said.

"Patronage on the Oakland-Bakersfield run increased more than 5,000 from March to April, 1974, while the volume on the San Diego-Los Angeles line jumped 44 per cent in the first four months of 1974 from a comparable period last year," he said.

Prison logging classes paying big dividends

Editor's note: The following story was written by an inmate of the Oregon State Penitentiary, Larry Fitzgerald, who also is president of the prison's gateway timber class.

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — At the Oregon State Penitentiary there is a logging rehabilitation program that is paying big dividends.

In 1971 a logging class was started by some prison inmates with the help of an outside instructor, William Easter of Mill City. Easter has not only volunteered his time, but has been the classes' sole source of funding until recently. In his spare time Easter raises a family of six children and is a lay minister for the Free Methodist Church at Mill City. He is employed as a full-time logger in the logging industry.

How does the gateway timber class function? It is organized under the auspices of the education department of the penitentiary and teaching is done by inmates and volunteers alike.

It operates under its own bylaws which were recently enacted and is ruled by an executive staff consisting of an outside representative, president, vice-president, internal secretary, external secretary and four appointed committees.

The program is also divided into three terms varying from eight to 11 weeks in length. These terms cover all aspects of logging from safety to cable splicing.

At the present time the class is in the process of setting up an outside advisory staff consisting of, but not limited to, an attorney and an accountant. They would handle the legal and accounting problems of the class. The remainder of the advisory committee will be primarily devoted to future employment of class members.

Along with the basic logging technology the class is also interested in vocational testing and counseling for its members. The class is also working with self-improvement aids such as transactional analysis.

Why the logging class? Because prisons create the starkest possible segregation from the community, isolated and full of subcultures strange to normal life. Months or years in a prison environment followed by sudden release and full responsibility for one's self for items such as clothing, food, shelter and employment, and handicapped by a criminal record and living in a new and suddenly strange emotional environment is enough to unsettle the most stable of individuals.

There lingers a personal disorganization, an emotional instability and the threat of returning to prison if things do not go right. The timber class hopes to help men avoid environmental difficulties with organization via education.

Where is the good investment that we spoke of earlier? More than 200 men have completed the loggins program since 1971 and the recidivism rate has only been 3.7 per cent. This compared to the national average of between 65 and 70 per cent is something well worth looking at.

In terms of dollars and cents it represents the following: By using the per cent of recidivism on a national average and computing this against the recidivism of the gateway timber class past members, and also by figuring in the variables—length of normal life span plus the cost of keeping a man in prison for one year—we can then derive at a realistic figure of what the timber class has potentially saved the taxpayers in future incarceration expenses.

If the present trend continues, and just using the number of members that have gone through the program todate, the savings to the taxpayers, will amount to $21.4 million. And that's at present day prices. These figures do not include the immeasurable amount of cost of human suffering or self-worth caused by re-incarceration.

And finally, upon graduation from the class a member is given a certificate and is thereby entitled to all the benefits the class provides: employment, economic and social adjustment back into the community from which he came.

DMV to refuse registration if car noisy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Starting next year, the state Department of Motor Vehicles will refuse to register any new car, truck or off-highway vehicle which does not meet state noise standards.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed a bill (AB661) which prohibits the DMV from registering such vehicles. Its author is Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada.

Current state law prohibits any person from selling any new motor vehicle or new off-highway vehicle which exceeds certain noise standards.

Alert lawmen help man find $10,000 note

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two mounted patrolmen making their measured rounds of Golden Gate Park saw an intriguing green piece of paper fluttering on the drive.

One dismounted and picked it up, as the other observed an elderly man a half block away frantically looking for something.

Dick Williams outlasts Finley

That was in Aesop's time, and if Charlie Finley ever read his fables, he should've remembered the one where the Wind and the Sun get into this big dispute over which is stronger.

They agreed the winner will be whichever is able to make a traveler take off his coat soonest. The Wind tries first, blowing and puffing with all its might, but that only makes the traveler pull his coat around him tighter. Then the Sun breaks out, shining brighter and brighter, and pretty soon the traveler removes his coat.

Aesop concluded that the sunshine of a kind and gentle manner will sooner prevail than all the threats and force of blustering authority.

Dick Williams simply outlasted Charlie Finley.

Actually he only had to wait less than 90 days. That's how long he was out of baseball.

Now he's back in as the new manager of the California Angels with "the best contract I've ever had," and all Finley has left is some meager satisfaction.

Williams climbs back into uniform this coming Monday night in Anaheim, Calif., and the Angels truly must be on his side because it will be Nolan Ryan's turn to pitch. And whom do you think the opposition will be? You're right, Williams' old club—the Oakland A's.

Ryan warmed up for that assignment with a nifty one-hit, 5-0 triumph over the Texas Rangers Thursday night only a few hours after Williams agreed to terms with the Angels.

Failed in end

The New York Yankees worked all winter on getting Williams as their manager, and failed in the end, but the Angels succeeded in obtaining his services in less than one day. Finley helped the Angels much more than he did the Yankees by removing the last legal stumbling block in the path of Williams' signing.

Chief architect in the Angels' acquistion of Williams was Harry Dalton, California's forward-looking executive vice-president and general manager.

Gene Autry and Bob Reynolds, the Angels' owners, flew to Oakland Wednesday and spent eight hours with him, finally got his permission to negotiate with Williams and called Dalton at two o'clock in the morning to tell him the good news.

Dalton felt it was too late to call Williams, so he slept fast, awoke at five in the morning and called Williams. This wasn't as bad as it sounds because that was five o'clock Pacific time. It was eight o'clock where Williams lives in Riviera Beach, Fla.

"Dick, this is Harry Dalton," the Angels' G.M. greeted Williams over the phone. "I'm calling you to tell you we've received official permission from Charlie Finley to talk to you about the possibility of managing the Angels ballclub."

"Is that right?" said Williams.

"Yes, Gene Autry and Bob Reynolds got the permission from Finley late last night. Are you interested in talking to us about the job?"

Persuasive

Harry Dalton is not only bright and personable, he is also persuasive. Generally, he gets whomever he goes after. He had his eye on Frank Robinson, and he got him from the Dodgers two years ago. He thought Nolan Ryan would look good in a California uniform and he lured him away from the Mets the year before that. He wanted Ron Santo for third base this winter and nearly had him, too, until Santo, a 15-year veteran, killed the trade only because he preferred Chicago over Anaheim.

Dalton wanted Dick Williams and made sure he got him.

In his initial phone call, it marked the first time he had spoken to the former Oakand manager since the World Series. He told Williams that Bobby Winkles was being let go and Whitey Herzog was being named interim manager. Dalton asked Williams some of his impressions about the Angels. Williams told him.

"What's your thinking about a contract?" Dalton asked next.

"I'll get back to you," Dalton said.

He did. There was six calls in all between the two Wednesday and shortly after nine Florida time, Dalton said: "Well we have everything all finalized. I think we can let the press release go."

"Fine," said Williams. "I'm very pleased."

Dick Williams says he's going to bring in all the charts he kept his last three years in Oakland when he takes over the Angels Monday night.

DICK WILLIAMS, new Angel manager

Former A's boss arrives Monday

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — Nolan Ryan (10-6) threw a one-hit, shutout as the Angels whipped the Texas Rangers, 5-0, Thursday night. But the game was secondary to events in the pressbox.

The first big story broke at 7 p.m. when general manager Harry Dalton and owner Gene Autry held a press conference announcing that Dick Williams had agreed to be Angels manager through 1977. He'll take over Monday night in time to face his old team, the A's.

The second came at about 9 p.m. when it became known that Bobby Winkles, fired Thursday morning, had blasted Frank Robinson and criticized Dalton in an interview with an Arizona newspaper.

Winkles said Robinson was the main cause of his being fired and criticized Dalton for seldom paying attention to Winkles' recommendations on personnel.

"The job of firing me was handled as though I were a mystery guest or something," Winkles said. "Nobody ever told me anything."

Winkles said the club had arranged to trade Robinson to the Yankees for outfielder Roy White and former Dodger Bill Sudakis, but that Robinson, a 10-year veteran who can nix or okay a deal, had refused to be dealt.

For some reason Winkles apparently had little fan support. "My mail has been almost as big as when I was a movie star," Autry told writers, and all of it was, 'fire Winkles.'"

I believe Bobby was a victim of circumstances," Autry added. "As far as I'm concerned, I don't know of a finer man than Bobby Winkles. But the club was down."

"He never said anything like that to me while he was here," Robinson told writers. "But I'm not going to call him or try to find out why he said it now. He's out of baseball now and I'm still in baseball and I have to think about my career."

Earlier, Robby had told a writer that he and Winkles never had any difficulties until late last season when Winkles told Robinson to stop needling Rudy May and Clyde Wright. "I think I was closer to Bobby Winkles than any other manager I've played for," Robinson said before Winkles charges were known.

Robby thinks Williams will be a good manager. "I rank Dick Williams near the top as managers go," he said. "He's a tough, no nonsense, type of guy who has a habit of turning things around. He did that in Boston in his first year. I don't know if the change will be good or not. That remains to be seen. The Angels seemed to like easy-going types as managers before, like Bill Rigney, Lefty Phillips and Del Rice."

One of the major knocks against Winks, made by the Angel hierarchy and some of the players, was that Winkles did not clamp down on players who failed to hustle all the time. The other was that he could not handle the Robinson situation and consequently lost control of the ballclub.

"Williams wins," Dalton said when asked why he selected Williams. "He won in Toronto (International League), he won pennants in Boston and pennants and world championships in Oakland. He's always been a winner.

"He is able to communicate with the ballplayers of today," Dalton continued and added significantly, "and he's had experience with and been successful in managing superstars."

The announcement of Winkles dismissal was made Thursday noon. At that time, the club only acknowledged that it was in negotiation with Williams.

Autry and co-owner Bob Reynolds had dinner and spent Wednesday evening with Charlie Finley. "We talked until about 11 p.m.," Autry revealed. "He (Finley) cooperated in every manner he could."

Finley apparently went to the judge who had granted an injunction barring Williams from managing the Yankees and possibly other clubs and had it rescinded freeing him for the Angel job.

"I called Dick at 5:30 a.m. California time this (Thursday) morning," Dalton said, "I told him we had Mr. Finley's permission to talk with him and I asked him if he was interested in discussing the Angels' job.

"I talked to Dick, via telephone, six or seven times and we reached an agreement about a half hour ago."

The Halos apparently had to up the ante several times and guarantee Williams complete authority. "His contract is for the remainder of 1974 and all of 1975, '76 and '77 . . . 3½ years," revealed Dalton."

No terms were divulged, the only admission was that Williams will be one of the highest paid managers in baseball. The new manager will fly in Sunday night or Monday and take over Monday night.

In Thursday night's game, Ryan needed only 99 pitches to subdue the Rangers. Coach Jimmy Reese's official count showed 65 were strikes and 34 were balls.

The one-hitter was the fourth of Ryan's career. Others were against the Phillies in 1970 (Denny Doyle, then with the Phils, got the only hit), against Boston in 1972 and against the Yankees in 1973.

The Rangers played like amateurs, committing five errors. Two were by losing pitcher Jackie Brown (6-5), two by shortstop Toby Harrah and one by catcher Duke Sims.

The Angels themselves didn't show a great deal of either spirit, ability mental sharpness. They scored only one run in the fifth inning despite two Ranger errors, two waiks and a double.

First baseman John Doherty contributed little in the four-run Halo eighth when he was picked off second by Sims. "I'll have to keep a rope on him," grinned interim manager Whitey Herzoz, "he might get me fired."

No decision on Herzog or the other Angel coaches will be made until Dalton and Williams have a chance to discuss and evaluate the situation.

It's likely all will be retained at least for the remainder of the season.

Foyt settles for 29th spot at Pocomo race

LONG POND, Pa. (UPI) — Veteran A.J. Foyt, the winner here last year, recorded the fastest time of the last five qualifiers Thursday, gaining the 29th position for the Schaefer 500 Sunday at Pocono International Raceway.

Foyt, who had hoped to top Bobby Unser's pole-winning speed of 182.500 miles per hour, did his four qualifying laps around the 2½-mile tri-oval at an average speed of 181.415 miles per hour.

"I wasn't trying to set no records or anything," said Foyt, 39, "but I probably could have run a mile and a half faster if the track hadn't been as dirty as it was.

"The track was dirty and sandy and I couldn't risk gambling," he said. "I didn't expect to even turn in 180. There was no rubber on the track, especially up high where I usually run."

Taking the 30th position with a qualifying time of 171.772 mph Thursday was USAC Champ Roger McCluskey, who finished second to Foyt last year in the Schaefer 500 after running out of gas.

The last three qualifiers were George Snider with an average speed of 170.948 mph, Tom Bigelow at 170.867 and Eldon Rasmussen in scratch position with a time of 168.201.

Foyt and the other drivers were prevented by rain from qualifying last Sunday, which was to have been the last day of time trials for the $400,000 Indy-style race.

Strong Award top choice in Hollypark feature

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Strong Award, picked up for $20,000 by trainer Bobby Frankel last month, is expected to be the favorite Saturday in the $35,000-added Manchester Claiming Stakes at a 1½-mile over the lakeside turf course at Hollywood Park.

Since Frankel took Strong Award over on May 5, the 9-year-old gelding has turned in three straight victories.

Eleven distance-loving grass performers are entered and the winner will earn $24,000 for his owner.

Under the Manchester's unique conditions, all entrants are eligible to be claimed for a price between $50,000 and $35,000.

Also in the lineup are Olymbrose, Bronze Mink, Most Bagdad, Jim and Robertino.

Laffit Pincay, the 27-year-old riding genius from Panama, piloted Bold Tullah to a three-length victory in Thursday's $18,000 allowance feature.

For Pincay, it gave him 114 wins for the meeting, two shy of the Hollywood Park record he set last year.

Fourth in the rich Hollywod Oaks 10 days ago, Bold Tullah was a lukewarm 9-5 choice in the field of eight 3-year-old fillies. She was clocked in 1:35 3-5 and paid $5.60 to win.

Dodgers begin rugged journey at Candlestick

SAN FRANCISCO — Just off an exciting, wild six-game home stand, the Los Angeles Dodgers begin a rough 15-game road trip here tonight with the chills of Candlestick Park.

The Dodgers begin a three-game set here then continue on to Cincinnati, Montreal and Philadelphia. The slate includes three doubleheaders next week within a span of five days.

All three games from Candlestick will be televised by KTTV (Channel 11) at 7:30 p.m. this evening and 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Tommy John (10-2) will face Ron Bryant (2-9) in tonight's opener but the recent trend would indicate iron-man reliever Mike Marshall, who won all five games during the home stand, will get the decision.

Los Angeles' lead in the National League West was cut to six games Thursday night when second-place Cincinnati defeated Atlanta, 6-3.

The Giants, losers of three last-inning heartbreaks at Dodger Stadium last weekend, return home after defeating the San Diego Padres, 4-2, Thursday night. The win snapped their six-game losing streak.

Arthur Ashe wins before rain strikes

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Eighth-seeded Arthur Ashe of Miami, Fla., managed to gain the third round of the Wimbledon tennis championships today before rain dismayed 23,000 spectators by interrupting play once again.

Using his big serve to best advantage on grass slick from three days of on-again, off-again rain, Ashe whipped Teimuraz Kalkulia of the Soviet Union, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3.

Although he nearly blew the squat Kalkulia off the court in an 11-minute first set Thursday that included five clean aces, Ashe played conservatively today, relying on passing shots for the win.

"It was too slick out there to take chances," he said afterwards. "I didn't want to break an ankle."

Kakulia also showed little aggressiveness, preferring to volley at the net than to chase Ashe's deep backhands. He hung in tenaciously, however, playing a 20-point game in the third set to hold service to 3-all.

Ashe broke for 5-3 and then served out the set and match in the next game after Kakulia had saved two match points with two cracking forehands down the line. Ashe eventually put the match away with a forehand crosscourt.

Football stars helping unfortunate

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Sixty of the top senior football players in the San Gabriel Valley will be helping to meet the needs of at least 600 people in the next year by doing what they like to do—play football.

On July 18 at Citrus College, the top 30 gridders east of the San Gabriel River will meet head-on with the top 30 footballers west of the banks in the Glendora Rotary Clubs 9th Annual All-Star Football Game.

The 8 p.m. affair is a charity classic with the proceeds going to Casa Colina; the Boys Clubs of Pomona, Pasadena and El Monte; and Tim Richards, a Crescenta Valley lineman who was paralyzed after receiving an injury in a game played earlier this year.

Game chairman John Jans said at a pre-game dinner at the Casa Colina Rehabilitation Hospital June 20, "In the prrevious eight years, players like you have made it possible for the Rotary Club to raise $70,000.

Each team will be represented by 19 high schools and each squad boasts eight CIF first or second team stars.

The West is blessed with Jim Laffin of Duarte, the Rio Hondo Leagues co-Player of the Year, an all-CIF 2-A first team linebacker. Larry Smith from Mark Keppel was the Mission Valleys Defensive Player of the Year. Smith was also a first team CIF 3-A selection.

Other CIF first team stars for the West include Alan Staie of 3-A champion Crescenta Valley, and Rich Mueller and Ron Blankenbaker of 2-A champion Temple City.

Dwayne DeSpain, head coach of Los Altos, the 4-A champs, and Gary Rawls, who headed Rowland to the 3-A semis, will pilot the East squad.

This 30-man crew is lead by the San Antonio Leagues Most Valuable back and lineman, Steve Taylor of Pomona and Randy Rizo of Chino. The Montview League also contributed their lineman and back of the year with Baldwin Park's tackle Alvin Holder and Charter Oaks running back Nick Howard. The Hacienda Leagues Most Valuable back, Clyde Christensen of Royal Oak (a quarterback who completed 70 per cent of his passes) was selected to the East squad as a defensive back.

Other local players on the East team include Chaffey's Mike Scanlon and Walt Kaufman, Alta Lomas Jamie Broecker and Kula Kuresa, Claremont's Joe Hillstock and Bruce Abraham, Rowland's Tom Chambers and Gary Schwalbe, Damien's Steve Gearty and Tony Allen, Royal Oak's Ron White, and Walnut's Mike Laws.

Each team selected players from 19 high schools on each side of the boundary line with each team selecting individual gridders according to the players' ability and the squads position needs.

The program originated nine years ago. The East holds the series edge 4-3-1. The Rotary Club was looking for a project to provide community service that would be a recreational activity for the community and at the same time honor athletic students and contribute money to charities in the San Gabriel Valley.

While the dinner brought together the coaches and players of each team, throughout the evening everyone became aware that they were really one team playing for one goal. To raise money for chairty.

And while the players and coaches were suppose to be the guests of Casa Colina, the real guests were four patients: Thair Garrett of Pomona, Linda Piper of Chino, Doug Thon of Anaheim, and Wendell Phillips of Honolulu.

Since its inception, the interest in the game has increased (the past four games have been sold out) and each game the players blessed with the privilege of performing for a worthwhile cause.

DeSpain and Rawls both acknowledged what a pleasure it is for them to work with, "these type of kids." They also recognized the challenge of developing a team in just 12 practice days.

"Its a good opportunity for the kids to see the people they're going to be playing for," said Rawls, the Rowland coach. "A lot of these kids may never have seen people in this situation."

Gunstream added to Rawls' comments saying, "The West is honored to be playing for this cause. Hearing about Casa Colina and its service to people in need certainly touches the heart."

Following speeches by each of the coaches, Dale Ezell, the managing director of Casa Colina gave the players an idea of what they were playing for.

Ezell described the people Casa Colina serves, some of the different programs the service includes, and the purpose of the hospital which is to enable people to manage their new lifestyles.

"It's time consuming and costly," said Ezell. "600 people yearly, each different, with each having a different job to accomplished use the Casa Colina facilities (which includes the staff and the equipment)."

Ezelle then went on to elaborate about two of the newer less fortunate children at Casa Colina and concluded with, "When you football players are on the field thinking of our Sally's or Johnny's and of their new lifestyles, each one of you execute as good as you can . . . so you can turn on that crowd. In other words, do your job just a little bit better so that we can make more 'bread so we can do our job a little bit better."

Dick Runkle beats Porter

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Dick Runkle had to shake himself twice today to be sure he was in the right place.

The 46-year-old Los Angeles attorney has been coming to Pebble Beach and the California Annual State Golf Championship for 16 years now going back to 1959, and suddenly today he's the last of his generation among the four 1974 survivors.

Runkle played two-over-par golf for the 31 holes he needed Thursday to oust 22-year-old Jim Porter of Claremont, 4 and 3, and 20-year-old Jim Ruziecki of Torrance, 4 and 2.

Today, Runkle and three 18-year-old hot shots are all that remain from a starting field of 200, who have been hacking away at Pebble Beach since Monday, and with little success.

Mike Brannan of Salinas, Curtis Worley of Coronado and Lee Mikles of Camarillo are the 18-year-olds standing in Runkle's way as he tries for his first state title. Runkle has been a semifinalist here six times and a finalist three.

Lumpkin signs Blazers' pact

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association Thursday announced that Phil Lumpkin, a 6-foot "quarterback type" guard from Miami of Ohio, was signed to a two-year contract.

Lumpkin averaged 16.2 points a game in three years with Miami and led his team in assists all three seasons.

He was a second-round draft choice.

"He is the quarterback-type guard we have been looking for," said Stu Inman, Portland's director of player personnel.

Lumpkin, who will be 23 on Dec. 20, is a native of Dayton, Ohio.

Claremont erupts for easy 10-1 win

Claremont Post 78, Upland Post 73 and the Walnut Reds all registered wins Thursday night.

The Cardinals routed South Pasadena Post 140, 10-1, in non-league play while Upland clouted Rialto Post 422, 9-4, behind Joey Zamudio's complete-game victory, in District 25 play. Walnut scored twice in the bottom of the seventh to nip La Verne Post 330, 6-5, in non-league play.

Claremont Post 78 made the most of four South Pasadena errors to post its 14th win in 26 decisions (11 losses and a tie) and pitchers John Huddleston and Dave Aguilera hooked up for a six-hitter in the Cardinal rout.

Huddleston went six shutout innings to up his record to 5-4 with Aguilera allowing a run in three innings of relief.

The Cards had only seven hits but made the most of them.

The Cards had only seven hits but made the most of them.

Tony Janusz, raised his average to .337 (32-for-95) by collecting two hits in five at-bats and driving in two runs. Paul Sokolowski, the young sophomore, went one-for-two in his new role as cleanup man and drove in a pair of runs while hiking his average to .383, third highest on the team.

Todd Ervin was up five times and got on base five times on a double, three walks and a hit pitch. The slick fielding shortstop scored twice to run his season total to 32 runs scored in 26 games. Ervin is also hitting .393 (33 for-84).

"We have two teams in front of us, Covina and West Covina," said Helber. "And we play West Covina this weekend. We finish up with San Gabriel and they're an easy club. Covina must play Pomona twice and South Pasadena twice."

"So we're hoping to take all four of our games and then yield all our hopes, prayers and best wishes to Pomona to sweep Covina. We feel if we do our part," continued Helber, whose team is 3-5 in District 18 play, "and if Pomona can do their part, we might have a shot at the playoffs."

The Reds, 13-2-1, scored the tying and winning runs on Sefo Purcell's run-scoring double and Ken Czarnecki's single in the seventh to send Post 330 to its 10th loss in 28 decisions.

The Reds next game will be Sunday against Charter Oak No. 2 at 4:30 p.m. at MSAC.

Steve Smith, Stu Du Vall and Mark Schneekluth all collected two hits in Upland's rout of Rialto Post 422.

Smith drive in one run while Schneekluth drove home three runs. Upland was the recipient of eight walks and four errors which led to six unearned runs.

While Pomona Post 30, who plays Covina Post 207 tonight at Ralph Welch Park at 7 p.m. and again Sunday at MSAC, appears well on its way to an unbeaten District 18 season and a playoff berth several of the local teams are still jockeying for post-season spots.

La Verne Post 330 (5-2) opposes division leading Arcadia Post 247 (7-1) Saturday at 2 p.m. at La Verne College and again Sunday at 2 p.m. at Arcadia High in a 'must win' series.

Claremont Post 78 (3-5) faces a do-or-die situation with a two-game set with West Covina Post 790. Saturday the two meet at MSAC at 2 p.m. while Sunday they square off at Pomona College at 2 p.m.

Rowland Heights Legion hosts San Gabriel Saturday at 2 p.m. and travels to San Gabriel High Sunday for 7 p.m. starter.

Walnut faces Charter Oak No. 2 Sunday at 4:30 p.m. at MSAC.

Bakersfield hosts AAU women's meet

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Seven former Olympians were in the field at the National AAU Women's Track and Field Meet which opened here Friday night, all vying for a spot on the team that will take on the Russian women next week in North Carolina.

The field was headed by long jumper Willye White of Chicago. Miss White was considered the veteran among the former Olympians, having competed in every Olympics since 1956. She also was a veteran of all 11 dual meets against the Russian women.

Esther Story, who was the youngest member of the 1972 U.S. Olympic Team at the age of 14, also was entered as a member of a 1,600-meter relay team competing for the AAU title and a spot on the U.S. team for next week's meet.

While much of the attention was focused on the former Olympians, little Mary Decker, the 15-year-old junior high school student who captured the eye of track fans last year, served notice that she plans to win the national half-mile title.

Expansion club hires coach

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana (UPI) — The Indianapolis Racers, expansion team in the World Hockey Association, Thursday announced the signing of veteran Gerry Moore as coach.

The Racers also announced the signing of defenseman Craig Hanmer, 18, a second-round pick of the team in the WHA amateur draft May 31 at Toronto.

Moore replaces Johnny Wilson, whom the Racers signed as coach in January. Wilson later asked to be relieved so he could coach the WHA Michigan Stags.

Tim Corcoran signs contract

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers have signed free agent Tim Corcoran, Covina, Calif., who hit .352 and .348 the past two seasons at Los Angeles State.

Corcoran, 21, will report to Bristol of the Appalachian League.

Veterans, youthful McCord share Western Open lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Veterans Bob Goalby and Frank Beard, each seeking his first tournament win in three years, and youthful Gary McCord, after his first major victory ever, led the field into the second round of the Western Open today, challenging a course that everybody called "tough."

The trio deadlocked for the first round lead with one under par 70s at Butler National Golf Club and none of them believed that par or better for four straight rounds would be necessary to win the $40,000 first prize in the $200,000 event.

"I think I played about as good as I can play," McCord said of Thursday's round. I wasn't prepared for all of those tough shots. I haven't played in two weeks and I think the players who were in the National Open and the American Classic on those tough golf courses have got to be fatigued. But maybe it sharpened their game too."

Sharing the lead was not new to McCord since he was the first-round leader in the Crosby and tied for the lead midway through the event. "But then," he said, "they overtook me."

McCord lost his chance for the undisputed lead when he flew a six-iron over the green into a grandstand on his last hole to set up a bogie, which he said he was thankful to get.

Goalby, 43, who won the Masters title in 1968, lost his chance to take the lead alone on the 17th hole when he knocked his second shot into a bunker and failed to get out on his first try, going one over par on the hole.

Beard, 35, declaring he "didn't play very well," said he was "fortunate to get out with what I got out of it. But I had no chances to make any more birdies than I did. My game has been getting better; now I'm having more good and fewer bad rounds."

Beard was three under par on his first nine, but took three putts to bogie the 14th hole and went into a bunker on the 16th to go over par.

Eight players were tied at 71, a stroke behind, Gary Sanders, Gary Groh, Al Geiberger, Tom Weiskopf, Lanny Wadkins, Eddie Pearce, Rik Massengale, and National Open champion Hale Irwin.

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:
• defects in material or workmanship,
• normal road hazard failure,
• premature tread wearout (2 32 inches or less remaining),
Montgomery Ward will:
1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.
Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.
Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

Yanks recall Velez

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees Thursday recalled infielder-outfielder Otto Velez from their Syracuse farm club in the International League.

NFL players ready to man picket lines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The NFL Players Association geared up today for a strike to begin Monday but a spokesman said no picket lines would be set up until two days later.

Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director, conferred with the executive board of the players union throughout Thursday, mapping strike strategy. Negotiations with the owners have broken off with no signs they will resume in time to avert the strike.

Garvey said the first picket line would shape up in San Diego Wednesday when the Chargers have summoned their rookies to camp. Picket signs are being distributed to players in all 25 league cities along with T-shirts featuring a brawny clenched fist and the players' strike slogan: "No Freedom—No Football."

Veteran members of the Washington Redskins who have been working out individually at the team's conditioning facilities at Redskin complex 20 miles from Washington plan to switch their workouts to Georgetown University beginning Monday as a strike gesture.

Both sides in the dispute were viewing the rookie turnout in San Diego for the first significant sign of support.

All but a few veterans were reported ready to honor the union's picket lines as they did in a similar strike situation four seasons ago.

But the rookies and free agents don't become eligible for membership in the players' union until the regular season begins and can report if they wish to pre-season training camps beginning next month.

Should enough of them report, the NFL clubs could field teams to play their pre-season schedules although without any established stars in the line-up. However, a boycott by a substantial segment of the draftees and other newcomers could virtually cancel the exhibition games, costing the owners not only revenues from the gate but television and radio money as well.

The players and owners sent representatives to the Coaches All-Star game at Lubbock, Texas, last week to present their point of view.

Another major focal point will be Evanston, Ill., where the College All-Star team is to train for their game with the Miami Dolphins on July 26.

Baseball roundup

McGlothen is like Gibson

By United Press International

If Lynn McGlothen continues to pitch the way he has so far this season, National League batters may think there are two Bob Gibsons in the St. Louis Cardinals' starting rotation.

The 6-foot 2, 195-pound McGlothen became the winningest pitcher in the National League Thursday night when he won his 11th game by four-hitting the New York Mets, 6-1.

A strong-armed righthander who throws heat from the opening pitch to the last out, McGlothen's pitching style and technique are noted as being strikingly similar to Gibson's. In addition to being the same height and weight, both pitchers work rapidly on the mound.

"I work fast because I don't want the hitters to get set," McGlothen says, in words which sound much like the reason Gibson gives in explaining his rapid style.

"I don't consciously imitate Gibson, and I have not patterned myself after him, but it isn't a bad idea to pitch like him," McGlothen says, referring to the winningest active major league pitcher.

The 24-year-old McGlothen, who has been instrumental in vaulting the Cardinals into the National League East lead, has the overpowering fastball, the big curve and the strong arm to throw both. He has undoubtedly profitted from being a teammate of Gibson's this season. If he continues his winning ways, the Cardinals might be fortunate enough to have a top-notch righthander with all the tools ready to step in and fill the huge shoes the 38-year-old Gibson will hang up in a few years.

At least then, other teams will have only one Gibson to contend with.

McGlothen, whose success this season dispels any doubts about his recovery from knee surgery last year, came to the Cardinals from the Boston Red Sox in an inter-league trade during the off-season.

McGlothen held the Mets, the NL East cellar-dwellers, to three singles, while striking out seven, until pinch-hitter Ron Hodges walked in the sixth inning and Cleon Jones followed with a triple. McGlothen's fifth complete game, which raised his record to 11-3, tied him with Sonny Siebert for the club lead in that department.

Ted Simmons and Joe Torre drove in two runs each to pace the Cards' hitting attack off four Met pitchers. Starter and loser Ray Sadecki, now 4-3, was kayoed in the second inning on a four-run uprising triggered by consecutive doubles by another ex-Red Sox, Reggie Smith, Simmons, and Torre.

In other National League games, Cincinnati downed Atlanta, 6-3, Chicago shaded Montreal 5-4, and San Francisco trimmed San Diego 4-2.

In American League Games, Cleveland clipped Boston 2-1, Milwaukee drubbed Detroit 5-1, Kansas City beat Oakland 5-4, Minnesota stopped Chicago 6-3, and California blanked Texas 50.

Reds 6, Braves 3

Shortstop Dave Concepcion pounded a three-run homer to lift the Cincinnati Reds to victory over the Atlanta Braves and knuckleball pitcher Phil Niekro, now 8-6. Clay Kirby won his sixth game of the season, against four losses. The victory pulled Cincinnati to within six games of idle Los Angeles in the National League West.

Cubs 5, Expos 4

Jose Cardenal drove in two runs with a single and a double and rookie pitcher Oscar Zamora bailed out starter Bill Bonham to earn his first major league save as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Montreal Expos. Bonham raised his record to 6-10 as the Cubs snapped a three-game losing streak. Montreal starter and loser Ernie McAnally is now 57.

Giants 4, Padres 2

Bobby Bonds hit a single, triple and three-run homer to pace San Francisco to victory over San Diego, breaking a six-game Giants losing streak. John D'Acquisto, a San Diego high school product, evened his record at 6-6, while limiting the Padres to six hits. San Diego starter and loser Randy Jones, 4-12, was literally driven from the mound by a line drive off the bat of Chris Arnold which bounced off the lefthander's pitching hand, forcing him from the game.

Jones condition is not considered serious and it is unlikely he will miss his next turn.

Twins 6, White Sox 3

Rod Carew is continuing his bid to become baseball's first .400 hitter in over three decades. He collected two singles and a triple in five times at bat to boost his average to an even .400 as the Twins downed the White Sox. Carew's average was up to .402 before he grounded out in his last trip to the plate.

Brewers 5, Tigers 1

Deron Johnson is thriving again on a change of uniform. Hitting only .195 for Oakland before swapped to the Brewers in a waiver deal last week, Johnson hit his second homer in as many games with Milwaukee, a grand slam that powered the Brewers past the Tigers.

Royals 5, A's 4

Hal McRae's two-run triple started a five-run fourth inning that sparked Kansas City to the victory over Oakland. The Royals paraded 10 batters to the plate in the fourth inning and the first eight reached base safely, tying a club record. Reliever Marty Pattin pitched the last 6 2-3 innings for the victory.

Indians 2, Red Sox 1

Jim Perry became the 69th major league pitcher to win his 200th game as Cleveland edged Boston. Perry went 8 1-3 innings to get credit for the win. He won his first game as a rookie righthander for Cleveland back in 1959. It's the second time in nine days that a pitcher has posted his 200th win in Cleveland. Jim Kaat of Chicago turned the trick on June 18.

Hayes released from hospital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)— Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes was released today from University Hospital, where he had been hospitalized since June 6 after suffering a heart attack at his home.

Hayes, 61, said he would have to take it easy for six weeks then gradually ease into his coaching assignments.

Muniz gets quick KO

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Armando Muniz of Los Angeles sprang from his stool and beat Billy Lloyd of Philadelphia unconscious in the first round of their scheduled 10-round welterweight bout at the Olympic Auditorum Thursday night.

Muniz battered Lloyd all over the ring from the opening bell and by 2:42 had Lloyd slumped helpless over the ropes in his own corner. The referee pulled Muniz off the unconscious Lloyd and declared it a knockout without bothering to count.

It brought Muniz' record to 36 victories and six losses, and Lloyd's to 29-8.

In a preliminary, Chile's Renato Garcia, the World Boxing Council's eighth-ranked junior-middleweight, was upset by Felton Marshal of Los Angeles in an unanimous 10-round decision.

Heat limiting Olivares

GILMAN HOT SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Ruben Olivares, former world bantamweight champion from Mexico, eliminated sparring drills from his workout Thursday at this desert resort due to 110-degree temperatures.

Olivares, who faces Japan's top-ranked Zensuke Utagawa for the vacant World Boxing Association featherweight championship July 9 at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif., limited his session to loosening up exercises.

He has sparred 78 rounds to date in preparation for his scheduled 15-rounder.

Lake Perris ready

PERRIS—Question: Take 50,000 trout, 50,000 channel catfish, add 100 spotted bass from Alabama and top the whole thing off with 230 seven-pound channel catfish and what do you have?

Answer: Lake Perris in Riverside County, the Southland's answer to Crowley Lake.

The other lake is Pyramid Lake in Los Angeles County, about halfway between Newhall and Gorman. The Fish and Game Commission postponed opening of this lake until Aug. 24 to allow bass that had been planted there additional time to spawn and raise their young. Spawning this year had been delayed by below normal water temperatures, biologists told the commission.

Anglers at Lake Perris will find that many of the 50,000 rainbow trout which the Department of Fish and Game planted last year as subcatchables now measure up to 16 inches and weigh up to two pounds. Most of the fingerling catfish stocked last year now measure 9 inches in length with a few going to 12 inches.

The 230 seven-pound channel cats came from the Department of Fish and Game's Imperial Valley Warmwater Hatchery where they had been declared surplus broodstock.

The spotted bass were flown from Alabama in January and stocked in the lake in time to spawn. Because they spawn and build their nests in deeper water than do other black bass, biologists hope they will be better able to reproduce and establish a bass population in the new reservoir.

Bill Richardson, chief of the department's inland fisheries operations in Southern California, says there is every indication the opening of fishing at Lake Perris will be a record setter, but he says anglers shouldn't expect a repeat performance.

"These fish have had the benefit of protection from anglers since they were stocked last year, plus the advantage of excellent food supplies which are usually found in new reservoirs.

"Lake Perris will continue to be a good fishing lake, and the department plans to continue to stock it with trout and catfish. However, chances are remote that the lake ever again will have the number of large trout that it does at present," Richardson said.

Lake Perris can be reached from Highway 395 between Riverside and Perris by going east for three miles on the Ramona Expressway. It also can be reached by taking Highway 60 east of Sunnymead to Moreno Beach Drive and taking Moreno Beach Drive south to the entrance.

Although a large crowd of anglers is expected, the State Department of Parks and Recreation which administers the lake reports that only 1,100 parking spaces are available and that no cars will be admitted after the spaces are filled. Three hundred fifty spaces will be reserved for vehicles with boat trailers.

A fee of $1 per car and $1 per boat will be collected at the gate which will open at 6 a.m.

Concessionaire Terry Syrett reports that all of his 30 boats have been reserved for opening day. Boats will be available later in the week, he says.

Cogswell fishing is only for the hardy

PASADENA — Commencing Monday, July 1, hardy fishermen willing to hike 8 miles to fish can try their luck at Cogswell Reservoir again this year according to Max Younkin, Forest Service Acting District Ranger for the Arroyo Seco Ranger District. Opening of Cogswell to public use is a cooperative venture of the U. S. Forest Service, Los Angeles County Flood Control District and the California Department of Fish and Game.

German brown and rainbow trout have been observed.

Acting Ranger Younkin stated that as the water level declines through the dry season, hazardous portions of the shoreline become exposed and the fishing season will be ended for public safety reasons.

Due to public safety and resource protection considerations, the Forest Service has set up guidelines governing use of the area. Motor vehicles may be parked at the parking lot at the West Fork bridge on SR-39 about one mile north of Rincon Station. From that point Cogswell is a 7.7 mile hike. Swimming, wading, camping and powered boats will not be permitted at Cogswell Reservoir. Limited camping facilities are available at Glenn Camp one miles east of Cogswell Dam.

Maps and additional information can be obtained at the following Forest Service offices Monday through Friday, 8:00 A.M. to 4:30 P.M.:

Irvine Lake catfish biting

ORANGE — Whopper Club size catfish again dominated the fishing scene at Irvine Lake over the weekend, as four lunker sized channel "cats" were hauled out of Santiago Flats by anglers.

A total of 11 Whopper Club catfish (catfish weighing 12 lbs. or heavier) has now been taken at the lake since the 1974 season began in mid-January, and eight of the 11 have been caught during only the past two weeks.

Leading this week's action with a 13-lb. 2-oz. catfish was Ed Lishok of Norwalk, followed by Clarence Harrington of Norwalk with a 12½-lb. "cat" and Tony Conrad Pilgrim of Garden Grove just made the Whopper Club category with a 12-pounder.

Mrs. Alice Carlson at the lake tackle shop says several five-fish limits of catfish are now being taken in Santiago Flats. Anglers using stink bait or blood bait are taking the best catches.

To bolster the catfish catches, the lake last week received 1820 lbs. of channel catfish ranging mostly from 2 to 3 lbs., but including some five-pounders, she said.

Trout fishermen are working deep for their sport. Floyd Dempsey of West L.A. checked in with a 4-lb trout limit, while Heidi Alverez of Norwalk had a 4-12 trout limit taken on cheese off the west shore.

Topbass weighed-in recently was the 5-lb. 12-oz largemouth included in the limit of Herb Miller of Baldwin Park. He used a plastic worm in the Rocky Point region.

Chacon begins his drills today

In appeal to housewives

Chavez cites morality as reason for support

ALBANY (UPI) — Cesar Chavez says morality is the chief reason housewives should support his United Farm Workers Union boycott against lettuce, grapes and Gallo products.

Chavez, who is on a nationwide swing to promote the boycott and raise funds, met with union leaders, newsmen, local boycotters and well wishers during an active day in Albany recently.

The 47-year-old president of the UFW told a news conference that housewives "need only look at the exploitation, the crucifixion of the men, women and children, mostly black and brown, who make that produce possible to understand why, in simple justice, they should support us."

Chavez said support for his drive in the Capital District "was better than I thought it would be" and that if New York State farm workers wished to join his union they would be welcomed.

He indicated, however, that he did not plan an active recruiting drive for New York farm workers, but would concentrate his efforts on the West Coast.

Chavez' union is engaged in a bitter jurisdictional struggle on the West Coast with the Teamsters Union over organizing farm laborers.

He accused Teamsters leaders —carefully exempting individual Teamsters —of signing "sweetheart' contracts with the produce growers. He also charged the Teamsters were a "company union" in regards to the farm workers.

Chavez said contracts between the Teamsters and the farm operators did not provide protections called for in contracts between his union and the growers.

Chavez met with local union officials in the morning and in the afternoon joined about 300 pickets in front of a local "Price Chopper" food chain store to protest the sales of non-union lettuce and grapes.

Firms now offering extortion coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) — An Indiana banker was tricked into paying $95,000 to an extortionist who hoaxed him into believing he had kidnapped his wife.

Two extortionists collected $50,000 from a Tulsa bank president after actually holding his wife and four children for seven hours.

Bankers in Cleveland, New York City, Jacksonville, Fla., and St. Louis paid large sums to extortionists who worked much the same hoax that terrified the Indiana banker. A clerk in a Los Angeles broker's office and the manager of a Connecticut food market paid smaller sums to extortionists who used guns to threaten their families.

The growth of extortion by grass roots criminals, rather than the pros of organized crime, has caused casualty insurance companies to start offering extortion coverage as a reasonably priced rider to financial institution bonds.

Since nearly all victims of these extortionist crimes are executives or trusted employees who normally are bonded, the Insurance Information Institute says the new coverage should solve the question of who ultimately must pay the ransom cost.

When someone telephones a banker or business executive to say that his wife has been kidnapped and will be killed unless he delivers $50,000 in two or three hours, his first instinct is to borrow the money from the bank and worry about how to pay it back after his wife is safe.

The Insurance Information Institute said that while banking and corporation lawyers tended to consider that the standard bonding coverage was broad enough to cover extortion losses, there was some question about the matter. "The new rider removes that uncertainty," the institute said. "Where it is purchased, the bonding company must pay regardless of whether the kidnap or bombing threat used to extort the money is genuine or a hoax."

Simply stated, the extortion rider provides coverage for losses away from the insured's office or premises as a result of a threat of physical harm to a director or employee of the insured or any relative of either who is allegedly being held captive.

In many cases, the success of the extortion threat depends psychologically on the victims panicking and failing to take a simple step that would expose the hoax.

The case of the St. Louis banker was typical. A telephone call informed him that his wife had been kidnapped and would be killed unless the money was delivered promptly and that a bomb had been planted in his bank and would be detonated.

When he phoned his home and didn't get an answer, the banker paid. Later he learned that a man claiming to be a telephone company official had phoned his wife and advised her not to answer her phone for the next hour because the line was being worked on. Nor was any bomb found in the bank.

A different wrinkle was used to extort $30,000 from the Cleveland banker. The first call simply instructed him in ominous tones to "call home." He called and a man answered, saying he had the banker's wife and would kill her unless the money was delivered at a designated spot. The banker paid, only to learn later that his wife was working at her job in an insurance office as usual. A phone call to her office would have exposed the hoax.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District will receive bids for furnishing all labor and materials for relocating thirteen (13) portable buildings with all the necessary allied work.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the specifications and other contract documents and-or drawings now on file at the Business Office of said Board, in the Purchasing Department, Education Center, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, CA, where prospective bidders may secure copies. The areas of work should be inspected by bidders to secure measurements and other data.

Pursuant to the provisions of Articles 1 and 2 of Chapter 1, Part 7, Division II, of the Labor Code of the State of California, not less than the general prevailing rate of per diem wages, and not less than the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for legal holidays and overtime work, for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the work contemplated under this Agreement, as ascertained by and set forth in the schedule of such wages specifically hereinafter set forth and adopted by the Board of Education of the City of Pomona, shall be paid to all workmen employed on said work by the contractor or by any subcontractor doing or contracting to do any part of said work, which schedule of wages is as follows:

FOREMEN:

All foremen not herein separately classified, shall be paid not less than the rates agreed upon in the Southern California Master Labor Agreement for the Construction Industry.

APPRENTICES:

May be employed in conformity with Section 1777.5 of the California Labor Code, and shall be paid the customary proportion of the journeyman rate.

Classification	Rate Per Hour
Carpenter	7.05
Journeyman Wireman	9.64
Housemover Journeyman	5.955
Laborer — General or Construction	5.645
Plumbing Journeyman (36 Hr. Week)	9.17

The rates of per diem wages for each of the various classifications of work shall be herein before set forth prevailing rates of hourly wages multiplied by eight (8). Eight (8) hours shall constitute a day's work; it being understood that in the event that workmen are employed less than eight (8) hours per day, the per diem wages shall be deemed to be that fraction of the per diem wages herein established that the number of hours of employment bears to eight (8) hours.

WORKING RULES

1. Where a single shift is worked, eight (8) consecutive hours shall constitute a day's work at straight time for all workers.

2. Forty (40) hours between Monday 7:00 A.M. and Friday 5:00 P.M. shall constitute a week's work at straight time unless otherwise noted in agreement.

3. All work performed in excess of eight (8) hours per day or forty (40) hours per week or on holidays shall be paid for at the overtime rate of the craft involved unless otherwise noted in agreement.

4. Holidays herein referred to shall be deemed to be New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. If any of the above holidays fall on Sunday, the Monday following shall be considered a legal holiday.

Each bid must be accompanied by a Bidder's Bond (issued by a Surety Company accredited by the Board of Education) for not less than five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid, made payable to the order of the POMONA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT, shall be sealed and filed with the Purchasing Agent, Purchasing Department, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, CA 91766, on or before 11:00 A.M. of July 8, 1974, at which time and place the bids will be opened. Bid must be marked to indicate name of bid, bid number and opening date. The District will recognize Sections 4331 and 4332 Government Code.

The above mentioned Bidder's Bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract if awarded the work, and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into a contract after being requested to do so by the Board of Education.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish Labor and Material Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, and Faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, said bonds to be secured by a surety company, or surety companies, satisfactory to the Board of Education.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and-or waive any informality in the bid. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of ten days after the date set for the opening thereof.

By the order of the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
ZONING CASE NO. 6523-(1)

PROPOSED CHANGE OF OFFICIAL ZONING PLAN OF THE SAN JOSE ZONED DISTRICT NO. 21, AMENDING SECTION 332 OF ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 1494, COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, STATE OF CALIFORNIA AND AMENDMENT OF SECTION 25 OF ORDINANCE NO. 10710.

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Board of Supervisors on the matter of proposed changes of zone. Said hearing will be held on July 25, 1974 at 9:30 a.m. in the Hearing Room of the Board of Supervisors, Room 381, Hall of Administration, 500 West Temple Street (corner of Temple Street and Grand Avenue), Los Angeles, California 90012, at which time proponents and opponents of the proposed changes will be heard before the Board of Supervisors. The affected properties are within the area bounded as follows:

on the north and east by the adjacent R-1-8,000 zoning, on the southeast by Diamond Bar Boulevard, and on the southwest by Pathfinder Road.

The Regional Planning Commission, County of Los Angeles, has adopted a resolution recommending:

a change of zone from R-3 (limited multiple residential) to R-3-8,000-1U (limited multiple residential—8,000 square foot minimum lot size and 1 dwelling unit per net acre) and R-3-8,000-15U (limited multiple residential—8,000 square foot minimum lot size and 15 dwelling units per net acre) and repeal of that portion of Section 25 of Ordinance No. 10710, as amended by Ordinance No. 10754, affecting the subject property.

That the Board of Supervisors hold a public hearing to consider the above-recommended change of zone and amendment of Ordinance No. 10710.

By order of the Board of Supervisors, County of Los Angeles, State of California, adopted June 18, 1974.

RESOLUTION NO. 74-146

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DECLARING ITS INTENTION TO VACATE A 15 FOOT EASEMENT FOR PEDESTRIAN AND VEHICULAR USE AS SHOWN ON MAP NO. V-136 ON FILE IN THE OFFICE OF THE CITY CLERK.

SECTION 1. That the City Council hereby elects to proceed under Section 8300, et seq, of the Streets and Highways Code, also known as the Street Vacation Act of 1941.

SECTION 2. That the City Council hereby declares its intention to vacate that 15 foot easement for pedestrian and vehicular use, as shown on Map No. V-136 on file in the Office of the City Clerk, a legal description of which is attached hereto marked Exhibit "A" and by reference made a part hereof.

"EXHIBIT A"

DESCRIPTION FOR VACATION OF A 15 FOOT EASEMENT FOR PEDESTRIAN AND VEHICULAR USE IN LOTS 4, 9, & 10 of TRACT 16332 (V-136)

That easement, 15 feet wide, in the City of Pomona, County of Los Angeles, State of California, designated for pedestrian and vehicular use and shown running east and west in Lots 4, 9, and 10 of Tract Number 16332 as per map recorded in Book 627, pages 27 and 28 of Maps in the office of the County Recorder of said County.

SECTION 3. That the City Council hereby fixes Monday, the 15th day of July, 1974, at 8:00 p.m., in the City Council Chambers of the City Hall, located at 505 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, California, as the time and place for hearing all persons objecting to the proposed vacation for the purpose of its determining whether said easement is necessary for present or prospective use.

SECTION 4. That the City Street Superintendent shall cause notices to be posted conspicuously along the line of the easement or part thereof proposed to be vacated at least 10 days before the hearing, not more than 300 feet apart and not less than three signs shall be posted, each of which shall have a copy of this resolution on them and shall have the following title in lettering not less than one inch in height: "NOTICE OF HEARING TO VACATE EASEMENT."

SECTION 5. The City Clerk shall cause this resolution to be published once in a newspaper published in the City 10 days before the date set for the hearing.

SECTION 6. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this resolution, and it shall thereupon take effect and be in full force.

FIAT

FIAT 124 SPECIAL TC

FREE! On any car delivered or firm order
MK IV Air conditioning •

Fine car precision at a small car price. That's the FIAT formula for value. This car lives up to two names: FIAT and Special. It's compact in size — but in every other way, it's big — space, comfort, safety, dependability, trunk-room, power and gas-saving, money-saving economy. It's only 165.6" in length, yet the interior is a luxurious family room on wheels designed to accommodate four full-size adults. Its acceleration is faster than many cars with larger, less efficient engines; and it cruises silently and effortlessly on fast freeways. An optional automatic transmission is available. Discover the FIAT 124 Special. It fits your family. And your budget.

Standard equipment includes:
4-SPEED TRANSMISSION • 4-WHEEL DISC BRAKES • DUAL BRAKE SYSTEM • RADIAL-PLY TIRES • RECLINING BUCKET SEATS • ALL COIL SPRING SUSPENSION • UNITIZED BODY CONSTRUCTION • FLOW-THROUGH VENTILATION
